Six U.S. Soldiers Killed In Korea Zone Ambush

Just What's Behind The Big Cover-Up?

By GLEN ALLEN

The Loch Ness Monster?

A gift from Jayne Mansfield?

Whatever it is, the thing at the Johnson Street entrance of the new federal building at Johnson and Vancouver is perplexing to everyone but the federal department of public works.

Covered up like original sin itself with black plastic sheeting and wire binding, the thing is identified only by a tag with a Vancouver address.

When it was inadvertently unveiled some time ago another tag saying "send to Capital Iron and Metals" was found on the thing's reverse face. It was thought to be a joke.

"I'm sorry, you aren't allowed to see it," said a construction foreman Tuesday.

"No, I'm afraid not," said the job superintendent, when asked if a photograph could be taken.

Said a spokesman for the department's district architect's office in Vancouver: "I know you must be getting curious over there but we can't let you see it without permission from Ottawa."

Ottawa remains regally silent.

But local intelligence has learned this much:

It is made of ¼-inch steel plate.

It is heavy.

Its finish will be a rusted black.

It will be floodlit.

It is thought to be expensive.

Those who have seen it have variously thought it to be beautiful, ugly, or something in between.

"I talked to the sculptor when we were putting it in," said one workman on the job. "He didn't even seem to know what it was."

Another workman who was party to the monument's installation said it looked to him like "a bent-over taxpayer."

Labor Protest Orderly

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 400 delegates to the British Columbia Federation of Labor convention here paraded for an hour at the court house today, protesting the use of injunctions in labor disputes and the jailing of four labor leaders.

John McNevin, assistant secretary of the federation, said the demonstration was orderly, but feelings were running high.

"Four of our colleagues are in jail," he said. "You can understand why some of the delegates are emotional."

The four—Paddy Neale, secretary of the Vancouver and District Labor Council, Tom Clarke, vice-president of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, Jeffrey Power, president of the Marine Workers Union and Art O'Keeffe, former business agent for the Electrical Workers — were jailed for terms ranging from three to six months for contempt of court arising from demonstrations last spring at the suburban Burnaby plant of the Lenkurt Electric Co.

Further demonstrations have been planned for Thursday by the Marine Workers. Most convention delegates voted not to demonstrate Thursday, the day of the four labor leaders' appeal, because it could be construed as an attempt to pressure appeal court judges.

Federation officers and the convention's resolutions committee opposed the move, and charges and counter-charges followed.

Bill Stewart, secretary of the Marine Workers, said no matter what decision the convention reached, his union will march on the courthouse Thursday.

FIVE PEOPLE INJURED IN RALEIGH TORNADO

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A tornado with winds so strong it bent a flagpole, smashed a suburban trailer court today and skipped across the eastern fringes of Raleigh, ripping down trees and power lines.

At least five persons in the trailer court were injured, including an infant who suffered a severe cut on the forehead.

The storm struck the Forest Hills shopping centre in Garner, the Weston Trailer Court in Garner, the Wake Memorial Hospital and the Raleigh Country Club. Garner is a suburb just southeast of Raleigh. The hospital and country club are on the eastern outskirts.

Wall of Fire Kills 10 Firefighters

SYLMAR, Calif. (AP)—A blast of flames sweeping up a steep hillside Tuesday took the lives of 10 firefighters in a crew of 25 battling one of four brush fires in Angeles National Forest.

The men were veterans who had specialized in fighting the hottest of forest fires in Montana, Idaho, California and Oregon.

But the wind behind them kicked up before they could escape.

"It's something every firefighter thinks about—a sudden gust of wind," said Don Porter, U.S. forest service spokesman, in reporting the death toll of a blaze that swept 2,100 acres.

Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin. Nine of the 15 survivors in the crew were in critical condition at hospital.

Fire officials said the fire was 90 per cent contained early today.

The death toll was one of the worst. In 1956, a fire in the Inaja Forest above San Diego took a similar number of lives. In 1933, 29 died in a brush fire in Griffith Park, Los Angeles.

POWER LINE BLAMED

The inferno of flame coursing through Pacoima Canyon in the Angeles Crest fire was touched off by a downed power line. Hot blasts of dry desert air—a storm known locally as the Santa Ana—poured over the mountains, driving temperatures as high as 101 degrees, a record for November. Gusts reached 60 miles an hour.

No structures were damaged, but early in the day a wall of flames was halted at Olive View Hospital, where most of 600 tubercular patients were

Union Chiefs' Feud Goes To Top Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—A feud between two top labor leaders in British Columbia is headed for the B.C. Supreme Court.

DEEP SORES

Mr. Thompson said he would be "delighted" to appear in court and repeat the remarks which are the subject of the action.

Mr. Lawson's writ claims damages from Mr. Thompson over statements alleged to have been made at a labor council meeting Sept. 20.

Mr. Thompson said: "It is regrettable in my opinion in the labor movement that we should get involved in these affairs. However, there is no use denying that in the labor movement there are deep sores that at times fester and run like a rotten sewer."

The Teamsters are not affiliated with organized labor groups in B.C., and there has been a running feud between Mr. Lawson and other labor leaders.

Turkish Ferry Sinks In Dardanelles Crash

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Rescuers searched the Dardanelles straits today after a Turkish ferryboat with about 100 passengers sank in a collision in a rain storm with a Soviet cargo ship. So far three bodies have been found and another two persons were feared dead, but officials said the crew of the 3,406-ton Soviet cargo ship Taifun rescued nearly all the passengers.

Johnsons Asleep 30 Miles Away

SEOUL (CP) — North Korean troops ambushed and killed six American soldiers and one South Korean below the armistice line before dawn today while President and Mrs. Johnson slept 30 miles away.

The incident was the gravest involving Americans since the Korean War ended in 1953. It occurred eight hours before Johnson left South Korea for the United States.

There was one survivor, an American, from the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division patrol. Wounded by a grenade but reported in good condition, he said the attackers wore North Korean army uniforms.

The Communists escaped and there was no indication that any were wounded.

The United Nations Command announced that the eight-man patrol was jumped by the Communists about 800 yards south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

Since the armistice there have been sporadic clashes between United Nations and North Korean patrols—each side blaming the other for intruding into their territory. South Korean security forces also report gun battles with North Korean agents trying to slip across the lines into the south.

GUARD HEAVY

Under the armistice terms the two sides are separated by a 4,000-metre-wide buffer zone, down the centre of which runs the demarcation line. Neither side is permitted to cross this.

The ambush occurred east of Libby bridge, one of two spanning the Imjin River in the American sector of the front and close to Panmunjom where the military armistice commission meets in the demilitarized zone.

The UN command said the attack occurred at 3:15 a.m. President Johnson gave no indication that he was aware of it when he left Kimpo airfield 15 miles away. The ambush was not announced until five hours after the president took off.

FIND CASINGS

The UN Command announcement said:

"Expended shell casings in the area from which the ambush was launched were Communist-made.

"Search patrols discovered the wounded man and slain soldiers."

The UN command demanded an immediate meeting of the military armistice commission to take up the ambush and "other serious violations of the armistice agreement."

The armistice commission has its headquarters at Panmunjom, where the original armistice was negotiated. There UN and Communist buildings stand side by side and armed guards from both sides march up and down past each other — occasionally muttering insults.

U.S. troops are responsible for 12½ miles of the 151-mile long frontier. Their zone of responsibility is north of the wide Imjin River—a strange silent land where the atmosphere of combat readiness is intensified by the absence of civilian communities.

President Johnson visited the area Monday.

A recent increase in North Korean attacks along the armistice line led some observers in Seoul to think the Communists were trying to apply pressure on the South Koreans to resist American requests for more troops in South Viet Nam. South Korea now has approximately 45,000 troops fighting alongside U.S. forces there.

Pope Seeking Truce For Viet Christmas

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul is working for a new Christmas truce in Viet Nam with a halting of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam as a first major step, a high Vatican source said today.

The disclosure was made after the pontiff received a special briefing on the Manila conference from U.S. presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman and issued an impassioned plea for an end to wars. He begged world statesmen to "quench pride and hatred, lower their weapons and put an end to oppression and snares."

The sources said Pope Paul hoped both the suspension of bombings and the holiday truce could begin well before Christmas.

He was instrumental in arranging last year's brief Christmas truce in Viet Nam and has dwelt repeatedly in recent addresses on the need for negotiations to end the conflict.

BROCK

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — In the midst of a Commons attack on government defence policy, the Conservatives Tuesday became embroiled in an intramural argument about their own defence policy.

Michael Forrestall, 34-year-old Conservative MP for Halifax, distributed to reporters in mimeographed form of what he said was a draft of a party defence policy.

He said the original paper had been prepared more than a year ago at the request of some Conservatives by retired Rear-Admiral Jeffry Brock.

He added that it had been redrafted by a committee including Douglas Harkness and Gordon Churchill, both former Conservative defence ministers, Terry Nugent, Conservative MP for Edmonton Strathcona, and himself.

Mr. Harkness, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Nugent in separate interviews all disclaimed any part in redrafting the paper.

SAYS CAUCUS NEXT

Mr. Forrestall said the paper isn't Conservative party policy and the next move would be to bring it before the Conservatives' parliamentary caucus.

Mr. Churchill said policy resolutions aren't dealt with in the caucus.

The draft policy paper said, among other things, that Canada's armed forces don't need nuclear arms now or in the foreseeable future.

"Naturally, I disagree with that," Mr. Harkness said.

He resigned from the Diefenbaker cabinet Feb. 3, 1963, because the then government wouldn't accept nuclear weapons from the United States.

All this appeared to leave John Michael William Curphey Forrestall out in left field with

Nuclear Appeal Backed at UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly's main political committee gave overwhelming approval today to a U.S.-Soviet appeal to all countries to refrain from any action that might help the spread of nuclear weapons.

Climaxing nearly two weeks of debate, the 121-country committee passed the East-West resolution by a vote of 100 to 1 with Cuba abstaining. Only Albania voted against the resolution.

The resolution, initiated by the Soviet Union with U.S. support, was introduced as a stop-gap measure until an accord can be reached on a treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons.

'Most Historic Journey Of My Life,' Says Johnson

By JACK BROOKS
Special to the Times

"Alaska's future lies between the mainland in the east and Asia in the west," he said.

In another speech he said: "You are on the bridge of a new partnership; you on the coast are on the rim of a new era as the Pacific prospers and grows, Alaska—and Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles and scores of other American cities will prosper too."

"It has been the most rewarding, the most thrilling, the most encouraging journey of my life. I believe it may also have been the most important and the most historic."

Johnson flew to Anchorage non-stop from Seoul, the South Korean capital. After his speech-making in Alaska, he took off on another non-stop flight to Washington, where his arrival at Dulles International Airport at 8 p.m. EST (5 p.m. PST) will be televised live.

PROBE OF RING SHIFTS TO BRITAIN

Real Estate Agent Charged as Spy

LONDON (CP) — A real estate agent was arrested today in the continuing investigation of a trans-Atlantic spy ring and charged with violation of Britain's Official Secrets Act.

The arrests followed by three days the seizure of a U.S. Air Force sergeant who was picked up by FBI agents in Los Angeles and accused of conspiring to pass defence secrets to the Russians.

William Cevil Nulvena, 47, was arrested in an early morning raid on a house at Westcliff-on-Sea, a resort town 40 miles east of London.

Mulvena was charged with offences under two separate sections of the Official Secrets Act and also faced a criminal charge, not yet specified.

The two charges against Mulvena were brought under the Official Secrets Acts of 1911 and 1920.

They relate to the collection, recording, or communications of codes, plans, or document which could be of use to an enemy, and allowing other persons to have official codes or documents issued for the person himself.

Westcliff, near the point where the Thames Estuary meets the North Sea, is the fashionable residential area of Southend, nearest major holiday resort to the capital.

Mulvena, charged at the Southend magistrates' court, was denied bail because he has dual British and French nationality.

He was charged with obtaining for a purpose endangering the national safety, a British passport issued for the use of John Henry de Lancy Forman; having a British passport without lawful authority; and making a statement which he knew to be untrue to procure a British passport for himself or somebody else.

Conviction could bring a jail sentence of up to 18 years.

DIEFENBAKER
. . . here after convention

BIG JOHN TO FISH AND TALK

Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker will come here for a week's fishing, after the party's national convention in Ottawa Nov. 14-16 decides his fate.

He also will make at least one speech, at noon Nov. 28 at the University of Victoria, sponsored by the students' political science forum.

Mr. Diefenbaker will fish for salmon here and steelhead trout up-Island said Russell Simpson, vice-president of the B.C. Conservative party. Mr. Simpson and former Tory candidate Eric Charman will be Mr. Diefenbaker's hosts.

Admiral Brock with an unwanted defence policy.

Conservative party sources said Admiral Brock was asked to prepare the paper more than a year ago with the idea that it might contain some useful ammunition for the 1965 election campaign.

DITCHED IT

They added that nothing useful could be found in it and that the paper was ditched until Mr. Forrestall revived it.

The paper, which Mr. Forrestall said had gone through three drafts, is an anathema to the Conservative party on at least one ground.

It says Canada too frequently proffers military aid to the United Nations and repeatedly urges establishment of a UN police force. It describes this as "singularly inept."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker when in office supported UN peacekeeping operations as strongly as the Liberals have. He obtained specific and unanimous parliamentary approval for sending a Canadian contingent to the Congo for UN duty in 1960.

Admiral Brock commanded the Canadian naval flotilla which was part of Canada's contribution to the UN effort in Korea in 1950-53.

Spy Probe Press Leak Under Study

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — A government inquiry is now underway to determine how word of the security probe in the latest espionage case was "leaked" to the press, it was learned today.

The investigation by the RCMP was being carried out in secrecy to learn how government maps had been made available to foreign agents. The fact that the RCMP were making the inquiry was reported in the press Tuesday.

Now the government has launched another investigation, this time to try and find out how the press got wind of the secret RCMP probe.

ADMINISTRATIVE

It is an "administrative inquiry, not a police probe," it was explained here today by senior government officials.

"We hope to discover how it was the information got out to the press and public before we (privy council office) were made aware of it," said one official.

Meantime there is some concern that the latest espionage inquiry may be a bit embarrassing at this time when External Affairs Minister Paul Martin is leaving Friday for Poland and Russia.

While Russia has not been officially identified as the country involved, it is taken for granted here, that it is the "foreign power" that was obtaining maps and charts.

While government officials are not angry over the press leak they are annoyed. They point out that in more serious circumstances such "leaks" to the press of security probes could be dangerous.

INFORMATION PROGRAM LAUNCHED

Teachers Tell 'Crisis' Story

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association is launching a public information program on the "Crisis in the Schools."

The teachers, currently involved in contract bargaining with the school board, plan a varied approach to parents and ratepayers.

They will issue brochures, provide luncheon speakers and speakers to PTAs and other community groups. A series of newspaper advertisements is planned.

In addition, the teachers hope to establish a liaison committee with the school board to explore differences between teachers and trustees and look for areas of co-operation.

PARTNERS

"There is no point in teachers and trustees arguing with one another. We are partners in education and we should be acting as partners," said Bob Travis, chairman of the association's public relations committee.

Mr. Travis said teachers are particularly concerned about the criticism levelled at the Victoria education system in the Hartrick-Downey report.

NOT ALL BAD

He said one of the unfortunate outcomes of the report is that it has left the impression there is nothing good about the system when, in actual fact, some areas of the system are excellent.

"Under the terms of reference of the report the authors were obliged to dwell on the shortcomings in the system and not talk about the good things," he said.

Nevertheless, Mr. Travis added, the report pointed out some serious shortcomings and the teachers believe they should comment on some of these.

CONCERNED

"Greater Victoria teachers are a responsible group who are greatly concerned about the educational standards in the community," he said.

"Like any other group we are also concerned about the advancement of our own salaries in relation to advances that others are receiving.

"We firmly believe that only by upgrading the economic conditions in the profession can we attract people who can maintain educational standards that all parents desire for their children."

Mr. Travis said teachers are continually engaged in in-service training, in their own time, to upgrade their own educational qualifications and keep abreast of new developments in education.

"We are just as concerned about class size, about classroom facilities and many other aspects of education as we are about salaries," he said.

"These are the matters that we hope to speak out on in the months to come."

Syrians Demand 'Liberation War'

DAMASCUS, SYRIA (UPI) — Thousands of chanting, sign-carrying Syrians marched through the ancient streets of Damascus today demanding "liberation" of Palestine from Jewish rule.

Described by Damascus radio as the largest in the city's history, the demonstration was sponsored by Syria's ruling Arab Socialist Baath party marking the 49th anniversary of the Balfour declaration promising to make Palestine a Jewish national homeland.

Eyewitnesses said about 500,000 people took part in what Damascus radio termed "a chain of people with no beginning and no end."

The demonstrators, including workers, peasants, teachers and students, carried posters calling for a "popular war of liberation" against Israel. They chanted slogans condemning the United States, Britain, Saudi Arabia and Jordan.

Addressing the marchers from the balcony of the government guest house, President Dr. Noureddin Atassi warned the United States that if it attempted to use the U.S. Sixth Fleet against Arab interests, "the fish in our seas will feed on rotting imperialist corpses."

The Sixth Fleet is currently visiting Beirut, Lebanon.

Atassi denounced the United Nations as an imperialist, Zionist-dominated conspiracy from which struggling nations could no longer expect justice.

evacuated. Also evacuated were 450 patients of a veterans administration hospital in the same area.

The men who died were backed up against a rocky cliff, in the process of cutting a line around a hot spot. One of the survivors said the flames "made a flash run up the hill."

The other men were literally covered by a sheet or flame. Some were suffocated as they sought to rescue their buddies, the forest service said.

'Tax U.S. Firms'

Murder Jury Split

VANCOUVER (CP)—The non-capital murder trial of Edward Dowe and Arlie Durling ended Tuesday after the jury failed to reach agreement after eight hours deliberation. The two men were remanded in custody for a retrial. They were charged with the March 17 beating death of William Bohart, whose body was found in Stanley Park.

Saigon Again Hit

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong terrorists followed up mortar and artillery attacks on the heart of Saigon with a grenade bombing today that killed two Vietnamese civilians and wounded five others.

Ghana Won't Budge

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI)—Ghana continued to resist pressure from her African neighbors today to free 19 Guinean hostages held since Saturday, despite fears her action would split the scheduled Organization of African Unity (OAU) summit wide open.

Riot Toll at 17

NEW DELHI (UPI)— Police opened fire in four towns of southeastern India today to quell left-wing rioting. At least two people were killed, boosting the death toll in three days of outbreaks to 17.

Ethiopia Boosts Arms

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie today announced that he plans to enlarge Ethiopia's military forces, already among Africa's most powerful, but pledged they would be used only for defence. The 74-year-old emperor opened Parliament on the 36th anniversary of his coronation.

Judge Rules Man Drunk, Goes Free

VANCOUVER (CP)—A charge of bank robbery against a Vancouver man was dismissed Tuesday when the judge ruled the man was too drunk to know what he was doing.

Eric Eugene Spicer, 27, was charged with robbing a bank of Montreal branch of $3,050.

James Anderson, a customer in the bank at the time of the robbery, said he realized something was wrong when he saw Spicer reaching for a bundle of bills from a teller. He grabbed Spicer and employees locked him in the bank vault until police arrived.

Spicer admitted drinking for seven hours before enering the bank and city analyst Edwin Fennell testified the amount of alcohol in Spicer's blood was enough to knock a normal person off his feet.

"I would have arrested him for being drunk in a public place if I had seen him on the street," said one arresting policeman.

Of Doctor' 'Someone Else Killed Wife

CLEVELAND (UPI)—The defence in the Sheppard murder retrial said Tuesday it would prove Dr. Samuel Sheppard innocent of murdering his wife and would give the jury a "pretty good idea who killed her"—someone "who had a key to the house and had had one for some time."

Chief defence counsel F. Lee Bailey, in an opening statement, told a jury of seven men and five women that it was "no strange intruder" who killed Marilyn Sheppard 12 years ago.

"Someone else was in that house with Sam Sheppard, some adult human being who killed Marilyn Sheppard for a reason which may not be apparent to you now," Bailey said.

He said the defence would prove that the murder weapon was wielded by someone using the left hand — a person whose "physical strength was compatible with that of a woman."

He said the murder weapon was 12 inches long, "possibly a flashlight or something like that."

Several Thousand Switch To B.C. Medical Plan

Several thousand British Columbians insured under Medical Services Incorporated's open medical plans have apparently taken the advice of MSI officials and switched to the lower cost B.C. Medical Plan.

Affected are 7,000 of MSI's nearly 90,000 clients. Of these 4,000 are subscribers to the open plans which provide coverage to anyone who applies, regardless of age or medical condition. The remaining 3,000 are provided free coverage.

MSI officials Oct. 14 informed its open plan clients that although the plan had been operated at loss since its inception the cost of such unselective coverage had forced the subscription fee about the fee level of similar coverage under the government-subsidized B.C. Medical Plan. A scheduled 10 per cent increase in doctors fees effective Jan. 1 was cited as a major factor in the cost push.

ENDS NOV. 30

The open plans are to be discontinued Nov. 30. Open plan clients were urged to transfer to the B.C. Medical Plan before Oct. 30 in order to obtain coverage under the B.C.M.P. beginning Dec. 1.

B.C. Medical Plan manager Alan Brown reported today that applications from new subscribers "are up substantially, by several thousand" for the month of October.

He added the increase is well under 7,000 indicating some MSI clients are late in switching.

Ordinarily these persons would be without medical coverage when the MSI plans a shut down since applications must have been received before Nov. 1 for coverage beginning in December.

Special arrangements have however been made to permit those who transfer late to receive B.C. Medical Plan coverage as soon as the MSI plans lapse.

The B.C. Medical Plan at present offers coverage to 316,000 of whom about 145,000 are subscribers.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Low cloud and fog was reported in parts of the south coast this morning and there are patches of higher cloud in the interior. However, a ridge of high pressure covers the lower half of the province and southern regions were generally sunny today. The next Pacific disturbance will bring rain and gales to the north coast this afternoon, and will spread cloud into the central interior tonight and Thursday. The south coast and the southern interior will not be affected by this system on Thursday and will retain mostly sunny skies.

S. AFRICA DEFIES U.N. DECISION ON MANDATE

EAST LONDON, South Africa (AP) — Premier John Vorster said Tuesday night South Africa will continue to administer the mandated territory of South-West Africa despite the United Nations resolution depriving South Africa of the mandate.

Vorster said the UN resolution "simply had no foundation in international law." It was not only illegal but so far as the United Nations was concerned, unconstitutional.

Vorster's reaction to the UN decision last Thursday to place the giant territory under UN responsibility was the first from the South African government.

Speaking at the ruling Nationalist party's annual congress in the Cape Province, Vorster said the UN General Assembly had no power whatsoever to make a decision of this kind.

"We will continue to administer the territory as in the past," he said.

VORSTER

WILL DO NOTHING

Vorster said his government intended to do "nothing about the UN vote depriving it of the mandate."

"This decision is in the first place illegal and we do not consider ourselves bound by any illegal decisions of whatever organization."

Vorster said the UN decision was taken on a false premise and, "worst of all, hardly had they taken the decision when they themselves came to the conclusion that it will be impossible to implement. We heartily agree."

South Africa has administered South-West Africa, a former German colony, under a mandate granted it by the old League of Nations 46 years ago

Copter Crashes

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI)—A helicopter fell while taking off from he U.S. Navy assualt aircraft carrier Guadalcanal Tuesday and its 27-foot long rotor blades "walked" across the deck, spewing metal fragments that killed three men and injured 12 others. The two crewmen aboard the UH2B helicopter escaped unharmed when the craft spun off the deck and lodged in mooring lines between the Guadalcanal and Pier Five.

AFTERMATH OF HALLOWEEN RIOTS

Father Critical of Son's Trial

VANCOUVER (CP)—A father complained Tuesday night his son was tried and sentenced too quickly in the aftermath of a Halloween night riot that police say will take a month to clean up.

R. G. Walton complained: "I didn't even know there'd been a trial."

His 18-year-old son David was sentenced to 30 days in prison earlier in the day for stealing a policeman's cap during the three-hour shopping centre riot in suburban North Vancouver.

"I thought he (David) had just been taken down to the station . . . with a crowd of other kids from the street and kept overnight," Mr. Walton said in an interview.

"I was going to go down to the station tonight after work and get him when he wasn't here (at home)."

When told his son had admitted in court to taking the RCMP hat, Mr. Walton said: "That doesn't sound to me like it is the sort of thing to give a 30-day sentence for."

His son was among 27 youths arrested during the melee at the Edgemont shopping area when an estimated 1,000 youngsters went on a damage spree.

AMMUNITION VARIED

During the riot, youths hurled garbage cans, eggs looted from a grocery store, bottles and stones at police, their cars and through store windows. Several small fires were set against buildings but none caused serious damage.

Window damage alone was estimated at $8,000.

The battling teen-agers were eventually quelled by police using a high-pressure fire hose. But some went home to get changed after a soaking and returned.

He was one of 40 youths arrested when 500 ran through the downtown section smashing windows and overturning three cars.

Most of those arrested were turned over to their parents.

David Walton was among nine who appeared in magistrate's court Tuesday. Those charged were all North Vancouver youths.

FIVE REMANDED

Bruce Waite, 19, Allan Langlois, 19, Terry Green, 20, David Schaffer, 21, and John Thacker, 18, pleaded guilty to charges of unlawful assembly and were remanded until Nov. 7 for sentence.

Thomas Cherry, 20, and Barry Horton, 20, pleaded guilty to being drunk and were fined $25 or 30 days.

Max Anderson, 19, and Steve Dalman, 18, pleaded not guilty to unlawful assembly and were remanded until Nov. 8.

Mr. Walton said police did not contact him prior to his son's trial. He said he did not go down to the police station Monday night because he thought police would call him when they were ready to discuss the matter with parents.

Staff-Sgt. John Frederick of the North Vancouver RCMP detachment, said it will take a month before all the cases arising from the riot are settled.

Mr. Whittle said two committees were formed at an emergency meeting Tuesday of civic, police and fire officials to find the reason for the outbreak and to plan against any recurrence.

"We're hoping to get representatives to work with us from churches, the school board and even the high school student councils," he said.

Lucky to Be Alive UBC Students Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two youths described by police as lucky to be alive were fined $200 each Tuesday for possession of dynamite Halloween night.

Michael Collier, 19, and William Inkster, 19, both university students, were arrested in a routine check and told the court they had planned to set off the explosive in a field adjacent to a dance hall.

"They had five sticks of dynamite, blasting caps and fuses that were only four to six inches long," said Sgt. Wally Maguire of the RCMP.

"This type of fuse burns at the rate of a foot every 20 seconds and they might well have been killed.

How Much Does It Cost to Feed Baby?

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Does it really cost $7 a week to feed a six-month-old baby on today's sophisticated glass jars of baby food?

Could you do it at home, cooking and straining your own peas, carrots, and fruits for $1.49?

These are the questions with which the Senate-Commons parliamentary committee on prices struggled Tuesday while quizzing representatives of the only two producers of prepared baby foods in Canada, H. J. Heinz Co. of Canada Ltd., and Gerber Products of Canada Ltd.

And Senator Elsie Inman (L—Prince Edward Island), past chairman of the Mothers Allowance Commission of her province, and somewhat older than Senator Croll, supported the convenience to mothers of the prepared foods.

QUESTION FIGURES

But two members of the Commons — Heber Smith (PC—Simcoe North) and M. T. McCutcheon (PC — Lambton-Kent), not so far removed from the age of financing a baby's food bills—disagreed with both figures.

The committee was given a welter of conflicting information by the witnesses.

Carl Smith, vice-president and general manager of Gerber's in Canada, testified that because of high transportation, advertising and promotion expense, it had to withdraw from the market in the Atlantic and western provinces.

This was done in 1961 and 1962, about the same time as it introduced glass jars for baby foods in Canada in the remaining Ontario and Quebec markets. Then and since the company has operated at a heavy pre-tax loss until last year.

Heinz, on the other hand, did not introduce glass jars in the Ontario and Quebec market until last year, when it found Gerber's cutting into its market. Mr. Connell said Heinz will continue to seal baby foods in cans in Eastern and Western Canada as long as it can—until consumer demand forces it into jars.

The glass jars add about two cents to the cost of a 4¾-ounce tin of baby food. Heinz absorbed one cent of this, passed the other cent along to wholesalers and retailers, who put the price up two cents.

Heinz had found through market testing — which included comparative shopping with the Gerber product — that housewives and mothers were willing to pay two cents extra for the glass jars. But this added to the cost of not only the container, but shipping, handling and warehousing.

Later this week, the committee will delve into the processing and canning costs involved in canned vegetables. Chief witnesses scheduled to appear Thursday are representatives of Canada Canners and Green Giant.

U.S. Cutting Canada On Air Link

MOSCOW (CP)—A new Canadian - Soviet air service was launched today with the arrival here of an Air Canada DC-8 jet. Aeroflot, the Soviet state airline, will make its inaugural flight to Montreal Friday.

Meanwhile it was reported from Washington that the U.S. and Russia were close to agreement on a New York-Moscow service that would be operated by Aeroflot and Pan American Airlines. Establishment of such a service is seen as having a serious effect on the economics of the Montreal-Moscow service.

Air Canada officials have been counting on a heavy flow of passengers from New York and other U.S. cities to make the Soviet-Canadian operation pay or at least bring it near the break-even point. Air Canada planned to attract U.S. business by publicizing that it was the only North American airline flying direct to Moscow, with a brief stopover in Copenhagen.

Alphabetical Alterations

BACK IN THE DAYS WHEN MR. John Foster Dulles was United States secretary of state, pact-making became a major concern of the United States and, to a lesser degree of Britain, which followed where Mr. Dulles led.

Of the three main alliances engineered by Mr. Dulles—the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the Central Treaty Organization and the South East Asia Treaty Organization—none remains both completely intact and operational. NATO is the strongest of the three, despite France's withdrawal from military activities, but CENTO and SEATO are alliances in name only and are being displaced by new groupings.

The three alliances were set up originally to contain Communist expansion: NATO and CENTO to ring Soviet Russia, and SEATO to check China. But it is ironic to note that while the first two have been weakened by the moderation of the European Communist thrust, SEATO has been all but killed off by the American response to the growing power of China.

Two of the leading members of the original Asian area alliance, France and Pakistan, are openly friendly with China. Britain offers sympathy to the United States but no troops for Viet Nam, while Japan also is staying aloof from military assistance. In consequence the United States has been forced to abandon SEATO as an instrument of Asian policy and has instead resorted to a series of bilateral agreements and the grouping of powers which met at the Manila summit conference.

CENTO, of which the United States was only an associate member although it provided the main financing, was supposed to bind together Pakistan, Turkey and Iran with Britain to guard against Soviet moves into the Middle and Near East. Britain has diminished as a power factor in that area and the other three members of the organization, without bothering to give CENTO a formal burial, are setting up in its place a Regional Co-operation for Development program and have made it plain they now consider an economic rather than military alliance more useful.

The Pakistan-Turkey-Iran alignment is not without military complications, however. It was Iran, for instance, which helpfully purchased surplus Canadian jet fighters from West Germany and then sent them to Pakistan for "servicing," thus replacing Pakistan losses during the war with India. Pakistan's increasingly strong ties with China, which have not so far ruptured friendly Soviet-Pakistan relations, may also hold military implications.

Report on the Schools

GREATER VICTORIA'S school trustees have, on several occasions, indicated their approval of the Downey - Hartrick report. They have accepted its criticism of their own actions with humility and, in recent days, have supported in principle certain specific recommendations. These include doubling next year's library book allocation, using counsellors in elementary schools and hiring non-professional teachers' aides to do routine paperwork.

The trustees are to be commended on their reaction to the criticism and recommendations included in the report. But its effectiveness will be limited if they stop at the points they have already reached.

The virtue in the report rests mainly on the attention drawn by it to certain unco-ordinated and relatively uncontrolled developments in a school system that mushroomed as the result of an exploding school population.

Drs. Downey and Hartrick are specialists in administration and organization. They emphasize the necessity of familiarizing all members of the system with their particular duties, responsibilities and authorities. To achieve this they have set up a blueprint detailing the jobs of staff members under an executive officer — and reminding the school board to familiarize itself with its own legal position.

Perhaps there is little that is radical in the report. It does, however, outline a method by which the school system can be efficiently organized — and it sets out goals that seem reasonable.

If there is one significant omission from the document it is a section covering costs. The authors did not concern themselves closely with this ingredient of the system. They determined what seemed to them ideal arrangements, pointed to areas in which this school district falls below the criteria they set, and proposed remedies to bring it closer to their ideal. But costs are an integral part of any scheme for improvement, and must be given equally careful scrutiny.

Lowest or Any Tender . . .

THE FACTS OF LIFE IN AN inflationary environment were painfully evident at the opening of tenders for a second ferry to match the Queen of Prince Rupert on the northern coastal run.

The immediate popularity of the new route — Kelsey Bay to Prince Rupert — had encouraged Premier Bennett to announce plans for a second vessel as the first was commencing service last summer. But the ensuing six months have brought changes in the ship-building world. The federal subsidy for construction has been cut from 35 per cent to 25, and rising costs have forced shipyards to submit bids roughly twice as high as those for the first Queen.

On this basis Mr. Bennett has had to cancel his plans and consider what action may be taken. A drastic cut in the specifications might be one answer, but where the vessel is intended as a luxury ship to attract the tourist trade there are definite limits beyond which retrenchment cannot be carried.

Thus the provincial government, as many an individual, has had to face the reality of rising costs and cut its cloth accordingly. Postponement, whether forced or not, is basically sound in the present instance, since nothing will bring the country's price level down more surely than a pronounced slackening of demand and a consequent easing of inflationary pressure.

Few Hits, Few Runs, Few Errors

GREATER VICTORIA POLICE, as well as citizens, may take a bow for the peaceful manner in which Halloween was observed in this area. The shameful hoodlumism in some other cities fortunately found no parallel here this year, and we may be thankful that the good sense of residents — both parents and youth — contributed largely to this end. The organized parties are important safety valves for Halloween spirits. But there can be no doubt that the blanket surveillance of the various police forces was a prominent factor in the relatively damage-free evening. Halloween appears to have been turned over to the youngsters and tiny tots, whose costumes and neighborhood visiting are the only worthwhile feature of a holiday which is gradually losing any significant place in the customs of our era.

"... it's just a pebble in the lake ..."

Ingredients of a 'Shared Unhappiness'

THE October conference with the provinces was exactly what Mr. Sharp and federal officials had anticipated for months; a rugged battle ending, as the prime minister aptly put it, in "shared unhappiness." It was a moment of truth after prodigal years although scarcely the tragedy painted by a number of departing premiers and provincial treasurers. Tax-sharing conferences, by their nature, involve confrontations and disappointments.

Western

It is an invariable rule that the provinces collectively demand more than any federal government is willing, or even able to concede. But there were two substantial differences between this and former conferences. The first was that Mr. Sharp had little room for manoeuvre; given the basic and generally acknowledged federal responsibility for the maintenance of economic stability. The second was that the provinces shared an armoury of fiscal arguments against Ottawa provided for them by the report of the tax structure committee.

One of the unfortunate aspects of such a conference is that it turns distorting mirrors on the problems of the ordinary citizen. There are 10 provinces and only one central government. Most of the premiers spend most of the week condemning Ottawa as a miser, clutching its gold while the provinces starve. At regular intervals we hear dire warnings that, unless the federal government relents or can be brought to see reason, provincial services will have to be curtailed or provincial taxes increased.

Valid Warnings

These warnings may, indeed, be true and at the moment almost certainly are, although they are not the whole truth.

The point is, however, that the grievance of a provincial government is very easily represented as the grievance of a provincial taxpayer. In the past it sometimes was, especially when equalization was a great issue. For the conflict of interest then was in reality between have provinces (as contributors to subsidies) and have nots as the recipients. There are still marginal struggles over this issue but the greatest confrontation in October 1966 was between the provincial governments as a group and the central government.

It was a question of who took what out of the pockets of the same taxpayer. According to projections of the tax structure committee, provincial - municipal expenditures in the period until 1971-72 are likely to climb at a faster rate than those of the federal government. The respective annual rates are approximately 8½ per cent and 6½ per cent. But revenues will rise at about the same rate, with perhaps a fractional advantage for Ottawa.

It all the assumptions are right, the lower levels of government will have to struggle with heavier deficits while the federal government may find itself in moderate surplus.

There is no disagreement about trends. Mr. Sharp frankly admits that the provinces and municipalities will face more painful financial problems than Ottawa in the next five years.

But figures, however useful to premiers pressing a case, are at best educated guesses. They assume, for example, that a well-behaved Gross National Product will go on rising steadily at 6 to 7 per cent per annum; that costs of goods and services will rise consistently with GNP assumptions, that the population will grow in conformity with the tables of the economic council and that revenues will rise at rates consistent with population, production and income assumptions.

Unfortunately, Mr. Sharp cannot be sure that any one of these assumptions will be borne out in 1967-68, let alone 1971-72. When half the economists are warning of inflation and the other half of deflation visibility, to say the least, is unhappily limited. Moreover, we live in an open economy which may be affected by such external factors as war in Viet Nam, crop failures in Russia or austerity in Britain, conditions manifestly beyond the control of Mr. Sharp or any tax-structure committee.

As emphasized by the minister, these figures, although the work of competent officials, are already out of date. Originally prepared in 1965 on the basis of programs then in effect or foreseeable they were revised this fall. Even so they take no account of Mr. Sharp's concessions relating to equalization and fiscal transfers for education. Nor do they include any provision for the federal guaranteed income plan, now expected to cost more than the original estimate of $225 million. Despite the general haziness which surrounds the calculations and recalculations of the past week, it looks as if they may already be out by some $600 million on the federal side.

If the provinces have a legitimate grievance against Ottawa, it is probably that they have been pushed into expenditures which some, at least, were reluctant to accept. Medicare — one of Mr. Roblin's grievances — is a good example: on past experience, it will probably cost a good deal more than is generally assumed by its enthusiastic advocates.

For the past five years, governments have demonstrated ingenuity in elaborating programs for the general betterment. In this process the total tax burden has been increased to the point at which further additions now provoke the immediate resentment of those who have to meet them. To the taxpayer, what matters is the reduction in his take-home pay. The various governments, however, have a special concern in this matter, each having a political interest in shifting the responsibility for the new taxes which are bound to come.

Emphasis on Equitable Taxes

With governments, in response to the demands (real or imagined) of Canadian citizens, having led us into this regime of multiplying services and ever-rising taxes, it becomes more important than ever that taxes should be equitable and that they should be so designed as to impair as little as possible our competitive efficiency. The federal - provincial conference was handicapped by the fact that it had to take decisions which should properly have awaited the findings of the Carter Royal Commission (now expected in the spring).

This gave Mr. Sharp further reason for caution. On the side of the premiers it was an additional argument for a short-term settlement. The actual two year arrangement has, from the provincial standpoint, at least the advantage that it guarantees a resumption of hostilities in 1968 either with Mr. Sharp or, as they may well hope, with a more pliable minister of finance at Ottawa.

BULL'S EYE

What would you do, if a half-sucked bull's-eye was pressed into your hand during a tender passage in the play? (Mrs. Pat having forgotten to spit it out before making her entrance). Surely you would do as I did, and try and fling it back at her at some opportune moment? She took tremendous avoiding action, I remember, and even walked through the French windows off the stage, rather than sit by me on the sofa, as she should do! I threw it at her on my exit, under cover of a gesture of exasperation . . . missed . . . but I still have a signed photo from her "To Miss Agnes Marion, I hope she'll hit the bull's eye!

—Marion Ross reminiscing about the unpredictable Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

Pollution Attack—First Start Talking

"SEWAGE," a delegate to the conference on pollution that opened here Monday was saying with earnest emphasis, "sewage is everybody's business." One of the main purposes of the conference, on "pollution and our environment," is to make everybody as concerned as the experts know they ought to be about the sewage, and a host of other pollutants, in our water and the carbon monoxide, fly ash and other poisons or irritants in our air.

The other main purpose of the Monday-to-Friday session is to provide governments with "guidelines" to the kind of preventive action they should be taking.

The conference is sponsored by the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers and is, in the words of the council chairman, Sterling Lyon, Manitoba minister of tourism and recreation, "the biggest thing the council has ever done."

Before governments could act wisely to deal with the problem, Mr. Lyon explained, they had to find out just what the problem was, how bad it was, and what the experts believed should be done about it.

Uninhibited Dialogue

A main feature of the conference is the discussion groups, meant to provide a free and uninhibited "dialogue" between the various experts and the "decision-makers."

To keep the dialogue uninhibited, there is a rule that reporters may not take notes, at the discussion groups, where biologists and lawyers, chemists and sociologists engage in what has become known as a "cross-fertilization of concepts."

A background paper, one of more than 100 studies of pollution and of the political and social means of coping with it, provides a working definition of the subject of the conference.

As defined by the science advisory committee to the United States President, "pollution is the unfavorable alteration of our surroundings, wholly or largely as a by-product of man's actions, through direct or indirect effects of changes in energy patterns, radiation levels, chemical and physical constitution and abundance of organisms."

More simple language is used on the shock posters prominently displayed around the Queen Elizabeth Hotel where the conference is going on. One of these posters proves that the problem is not new. It quotes the report of a select committee that looked into the pollution of the River Thames in 1836:

"The Thames receives the excrementious matter from nearly a million and a half of human beings; the washing of their foul -linens; the filthy refuse of many hundred manufacturies; the offal and decaying vegetable substances from the markets; the foul and gory liquid from the slaughter-houses; and the purulent abominations from hospitals and dissecting rooms, too disgusting to detail."

A film that opened the Monday morning session of the conference translates the same point into the language of the modern hard sell:

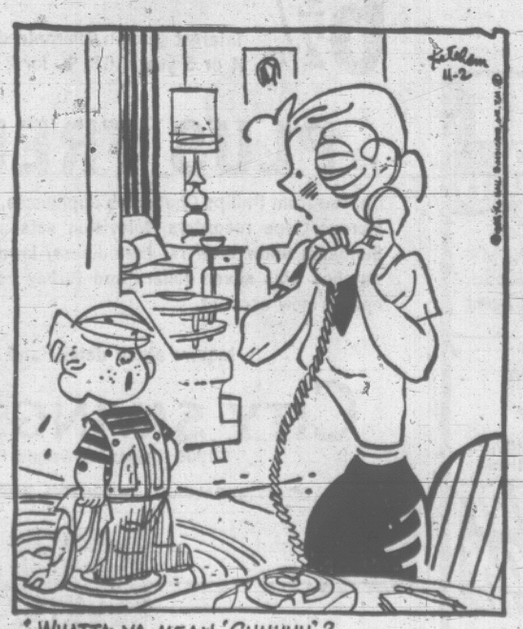

"Aren't you just a little bit out of your mind to be swimming in this filthy water?" interviewer Patrick Watson asks a man he finds in Lake Ontario.

Mr. Watson, who brought his colleague Laurier Lapierre with him in the transition from "This Hour Has Seven Days," to pollution, concludes the film with a reference to Mark Twain's line on the weather: "Everybody talks about it but nobody does anything about it."

The object of this conference is to get everybody talking about pollution so that it may be politically possible for their governments, federal and provincial, to do something about it.

Looking Back

From The Times of Nov. 2, 1906:

OTTAWA—A special cable from England says that the judicial committee of the Imperial Privy Council has dismissed the appeal of Christian Brothers against their being compelled to obtain certificates as a qualification to entitle them to teach in separate schools in Ontario.

The case was taken to the court of appeal and the judgment of Justice McMahon was sustained. It was carried to the Imperial Privy Council and the court of appeals has been upheld.

Reduce Intake

We all have great sympathy with "Women Against High Prices." Prices are now indeed very high. But the cause is not profiteering by chain stores and supermarkets. By reason of their very large turnover these organizations can, and do, work on very low margins of profits (some three cents on the dollar you pay).

Surely the true cause for the present high prices is full employment (everybody buying) and, especially, high wages. Unionized workers in the meat packers (slaughtering), freight workers, meat cutters and salesmen demand and get large increases in wages, at frequent intervals, plus many expensive fringe benefits.

Fancy individual wrapping in transparent plastic preserves the meat and looks attractive, then there are additives to keep the meat a bright red, also extensive advertising. The housewife has become accustomed to these luxuries, but they are expensive and the consumer pays.

But why not cut down on meat altogether? You needn't go vegetarian; very small quantities of meat will give flavor to a well-balanced meal which is chiefly made up of the many delicious vegetables offered in our stores.—John Kenny.

St. Christopher With Him

Re article in your paper of October 18th by Terry Izzard, "It's Suicidal But Officials Powerless."

It occurs to me while the circumstances are hazardous Mr. Izzard has allowed his reporting to run heavily to disastrous results.

I can truly say I am almost certain that when I was 20 years old I would have joined such an adventure. I am now 80 years old (please don't put this statement down to senility).

That there is no engine in the vessel is to be regretted. It would certainly have been a safety measure. Had I known that he was really making this trip, I would have made sacrifices to get him one.

Clever Pigs

I am interested in the story about the "Talents of Pigs" on page one, Saturday October 29 from Mr. Bud Clardy, U.S.A.

I knew a widow, who had a farm. When her faithful dog died, the old sow took up his duties, i.e., running after the milk cows, nipping their heels, and guiding them home each evening at milking time. I am a sworn witness, as I had a horse and had offered my assistance (if necessary!).

The new mother pigs can be very savage too, as I found out on another occasion. When I stooped to admire her new "brood" or litter, she charged. — A. T. BURGESS, 1703 Bay.

Heroes or Rabble?

"Heroes" but yesteryear, "rabble" today, so Mr. Wurtele says. "Rabble" because they will not sumit to coercion, intimidation, and dictatorship.

Mr. Wurtele says that Commissionaires must inform on their comrades for the greater glory of the corps.

Mr. Wurtele says that a Commissionaire was fired because the Department of Defence insisted he be fired.

Mr. Cardin says the Department of Defence was not involved in the matter in any way. — R. QUINN, 4831 West Saanich Road.

India's 226 Million Cattle Cause of Riots and Famine

By CYRIL DUNN

NEW DELHI — Battle has evidently been joined between the traditionalists and the modernists in Mrs. Indira Gandhi's cabinet on the subject of state protection for the cow — an animal held sacred by the Hindus but currently destroying on a vast scale the limited food resources of hungry India.

The outcome of the cabinet conflict has been the kind of blurred compromise not unusual in Indian affairs. The government has agreed by 'consensus' not to bring in an all-India law forbidding cow-slaughter throughout India — a step for which anyway there is no clear constitutional authority. But it seems to have endorsed a policy which, if it succeeds, will in due time achieve the same effect.

The move was first made, apparently on his own initiative, by Home Minister Gulzarilal Nanda, a Hindu so firm in his vegetarian principles that he sometimes takes his own food to official banquets. He has called on all states of the Union which have not already done so to pass without further delay a law banning the slaughter of cows. To this indirect approach the cabinet has now given its support, overriding the reluctance of its modernist members.

Progressive Indians, most of them Hindus, suspect that even this compromise means that the Congress government is backsliding from Nehru's secularism and, with the country's fourth general election three months away, is making an early and open bid for the overwhelming Hindu vote.

But Nanda insists he was simply following the Constitution, in which there is certainly a strange directive principle, addressed to the states, calling for a ban on cow-slaughter. He says also that there is a wide-spread sentiment in favor of state protection for the cow. And finally he says that state laws on this subject have no rational uniformity.

It is true that while in some states there is no ban on killing cows, others have a partial (and readily evaded) edict and some a total prohibition enforced by officials who raid domestic refrigerators in search of illicit beef.

But Nanda's main arguments were available in the days of Nehru, who rejected them with scorn and, in spite of the directive principle, virtually forbade the states to bring in laws protecting the cow.

Ten years ago, when an effort was made to get a bill through the Delhi Parliament banning cow-slaughter throughout India, Nehru became incoherent with anger, spurned the bill as futile, silly and ridiculous and declared that, rather than agree that cows were more important than human beings, he and his government would resign. Nanda, as it happens, was then one of Nehru's ministers.

Though some Indians say Mrs. Gandhi, unlike her father, inclines towards a ritual Hinduism, the general notion here seems to be that a Congress government with less popular appeal than it had in Nehru's prime has been forced to make this move by election pressures.

Hindu Majority

It is after all a fact that Hindus outnumber the next biggest religious community in India — the Muslims — by roughly 10 to one and the Christians by 40 to one. Members of both these communities eat beef when they can afford it, which is not often.

But Congress leaders could claim they are simply trying to head off an election issue which might be more dangerous to law and order than to the government's stability. An agitation against cow-slaughter, plainly timed to coincide with the election campaign, has already begun. Its main leaders are sadus or holy men. There are said to be uncounted thousands of them and, though modern Indians deride all but a few of them as charlatans, they certainly cover the constituencies more often than most Congress MPs and probably exert great influence on the Hindu peasantry.

Many have already successfully courted arrest by going on hunger strike outside Mrs. Gandhi's house. There is a plan to lead 50,000 of them to her doorstep Nov. 7, and at the same time to bring the life of the capital to a standstill.

First Riot

In Maharashtra, a state with no ban on cow-slaughter, the agitation has incited its first outburst of violence. A procession demanding cow-protection was stoned, presumably by Muslims, and in the riot that followed police opened fire and 11 people were killed.

Modern Indians deny that special treatment for the cow has any true religious base. They allege that the Hindu peasant is moved only by a superstitious dread which cheapens Hinduism — the fear that if he kills a cow he will be reborn as one of the lower and more afflicted animals.

The cows of India have a serene placidity rare among the fatter kine of the West and this evidently reflects the kindness with which they are handled. But progressive Indians deny that the Hindu attitude towards cows is genuinely humane. They point out that when a cow becomes useless she is often turned adrift, to feed where she can in the country and, in crowded city bazaars, to subsist on Hindu charity eked out with scraps of newspaper.

'Cows Eat Us'

But the chief argument of the modern elite is — as it was Nehru's — that India, constantly threatened with famine, cannot afford a cattle population of 226 million, more than half of them not simply useless but actively destructive. By eating pastures down to the roots they cause soil erosion. By taking their unearned share of limited fodder they cut the milk yield of the rest to a tenth of what is normal in cow-killing America and so impose death from malnutrition on countless Indian children. As one modern Congress minister put it to me: "You eat cows. Here cows eat us."

His modern critics dismiss Nanda's claim that in calling for total cow-protection he is simply being constitutional. They say the directive principle, demanding in a single sentence both higher standards of animal husbandry and a ban on cow-slaughter, is self-contradictory and absurd and should be ignored by any intelligent government.

Aware that Hindu peasants, reared by their sadus — and by their mothers — in the belief that cow-killing is a deadly sin, are not really open to rational argument, some Indians, casting about for an alternative, are now proposing birth control for cows. But sadus who condemn contraception for humans as sinful will not readily agree to its being imposed on animals they wish to be considered divine.

Does Canada Really Need A Third TV Network?

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Good grief Charley Brown, we've got TV coming out our ears and here's Ken Soble saying we need more.

That's my reaction to Mr. Soble's latest pitch to the BBG for coast-to-coast Soble service. It wasn't many months back, you may remember, that the expansionist boss of Hamilton's CHCH-TV asked the BBG to let him take over the CTV netowrk. He lost on that one.

Waring

Now he's got a bigger idea. With capital from the Power Corp., and know-how from RCA Victor, he proposes to position two telecommunication satellites 22,400 miles out in space, and use them to relay TV to a network of 97 new TV stations from coast to coast and as far north as the sub-Arctic.

All this for a mere $75 millions.

"At this time a further extension of television service is most desired," he said to the BBG.

Certainly by Mr. Soble. Also by several provinces for educational broadcasting. Mr. Soble contemplates a commercial network with revenues of $21 millions the first year, but the provinces want many of the channels required by his proposed NTV network. So, he told the BBG, he would make "a substantial share" of his network's broadcast facility available for educational TV.

At last count Canada, pop. 20 million, had 253 operating TV stations comprising one expanding French network and two expandable English networks. By Mr. Soble's count, 28 U.S. stations incidentally serve a substantial Canadian audience, while Canadian stations offer electronic reciprocity. And then there's community TV, or cablevision, growing rapidly in major centres.

We need yet another network, another 97 stations? Tut, tut, Mr. Soble!

The PR man who wrote Mr. Soble's pitch missed few bets. The prospectus hits at "imported TV,' 'including cablevision, as bad for Canadians compared with "NTV . . . a new Canadian creative production structure to provide programming for all Canadians, equal to the best in the world — with standards equal to the challenge of export."

It appeals to national pride, imagination and resentment of the U.S. We can make satellites, it says — even if we have to depend on the U.S. to launch them. Let's stake out a piece of the sky for Canada. Let's beat the Yankees!

It suggests that cost savings by satellite transmission over present microwave systems "may be appreciable," but with disarming frankness admits "we are not dead sure" of this. Anyway, satellites "will agument microwave systems, not replace them."

But if CBC and CTV microwave costs prove higher than satellite transmission costs, who can cut his advertising rates and take the business? Why Mr. Soble, of course. And since CTV is financially shaky anyway — it was nearly bankrupt a year ago when the member stations took it over — Mr. Soble might well put CTV out of business.

"The capacity does exist, the project is possible, and the Canadian-built network service could be the finest and most efficient in the world," the prospectus says. And, I suggest, the most unnecessary.

However, this is not to gainsay that satellite transmission is the coming thing in telecommunications. It's in use now, with TV reaching us via Early Bird, Telstar, and soon Lanibird. A Canadian satellite system deserves a hard appraisal by government. But it doesn't need another network to make it feasible or desirable.

Where George, Carey and Louie 'Ran the Store' for Victoria

By ART STOTT

When Archie Wills and Tom Merriman decided to put me on the city educational beat in the early 'thirties, George Deane ran Victoria's schools from the office of municipal inspector at the Fiddler's Green end of the old city hall.

Stott

Carey Pope attended to the secretarial work, Louie Newnham handled the stenographic chores, and when the typing load built up, Sylvia Smith came in to help. Donald Cameron and George Stewart reported from time to time in the course of their building and grounds work, and Wm. J. Edwards came around to list the kids playing hooky.

Magistrate George Jay, the perennial chairman, put the formal motions to the board and the trustees voted yes on the word of Mr. Deane, who "ran the store" for Dr. S. J. "Sammy" Willis, a courteous provincial superintendent of education.

Principals operated their own schools with an apparent minimum of interference. Vice-principals taught Lower Fourth and looked after the soccer team and cadets.

Victoria hadn't built a new school for about 20 years and wouldn't for another 15. Life in the system was uncomplicated.

A third of a century later Victoria is being told how the widely proliferating school administration — now a force of 73 — has fallen down on the job and some of the things it should do to attain the desirable objective of becoming the educational "showplace of the country."

★ ★ ★

Your read the Downey-Hartrick report and you are impressed by the complexities involved in handling what was once a relatively straightforward job of providing what the schools needed. Drs. Downey and Hartrick, of UBC's faculty of education, have excellent reputations in administration. This is the field of their study and the basis of their report. They set up what they consider the ideal in the respective sections of their document and judge the system by it. It is their ideal, incidentally, and not necessarily the ideal another team engaged in different specialties might conceive. But it seems a reasonable outline and both the criticisms and the recommendations are temperate.

Fundamentally they seem to be proposing means of straightening out the kinks in the chain of command, fixing responsibility and letting all the links know what they are supposed to be doing.

To use another simile, they let the local authorities and staff know who's producing the show — the provincial department of education for the provincial government — but they point out the opportunities for the local talent to introduce innovations in the acts. And they want to encourage a competency that can come only from an understanding of duties and authority all along the line.

They remind the old-timers, without saying so, that the George Deane-Carey Pope-Louie Newnham days are long past, that the administration which has mushroomed since that time can only function adequately if it is properly organized and — pardon the word — if communication is adequate.

The professors follow a familiar pattern in many recommendations. They want better libraries with the facilities that new libraries should provide. They want principals freed from paper work to furnish leadership and evaluation. They want school trustees to recognize their position under the school law as members of a corporate body which must speak and act like a corporate body, not as independent chiefs. They want co-operation and harmony. They want educators to keep up with educational thought and develop new educational ideas, to attempt experiments, to work in a team — with appropriate appreciation for rank. They want smaller classes and more initiative from teachers under control of their seniors.

They want Greater Victoria to consider the basic requirements laid down by the department of education as a minimum and to work toward an optimum on their own hook.

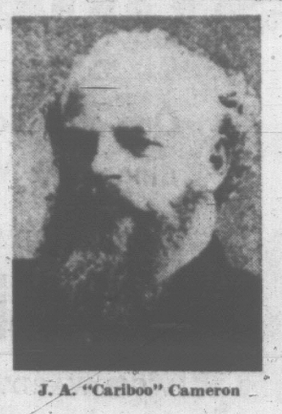

They find that the partnership within the school system has "all but disintegrated." They warn the district that it is in danger of becoming known as "an undesirable place to work; (where) the recruitment of staff will become correspondingly difficult."

School board officials will tell you that they haven't yet faced a shortage of qualified applicants for senior jobs, though some teachers forecast that possibility if wages and working conditions don't come up to their expectations.

The report is essentially constructive in its criticism and recommendations — even if it takes little congnizance of costs and the feelings of the taxpayer on that point.

In the restricted field to which they have devoted their analysis, Professors Downey and Hartrick have done a conscientious job. They admit the restrictions — and if they have stepped on toes, maybe that will help the owners of the toes to remember they have feet and that the feet can carry them away from apathy and complacency.

Founders Of B.C.

J. A. "Cariboo" Cameron

John Angus "Cariboo" Cameron was a gold rush pioneer who struck it rich and died broke. But what inscribed his name in British Columbia's history was the strange tale of devotion to his dead wife — and her four funerals.

Born in Ontario in 1820, Cameron came to the west coast in 1852, seeking California gold. He went home to marry in 1859 and in 1862 brought his wife Sophia and an infant daughter to Victoria. The child died here. The couple headed out that year for the Cariboo gold fields, earning a stake by taking with them a ton of candles which sold in Williams Creek for $5 a pound.

Mrs. Cameron was stricken with typhoid and died in October — the first white woman to die in the Cariboo. Her deathbed wish was that her husband take her body back to her Ontario home for burial. The corpse was placed in a tin coffin which was placed in a wooden box and left in a deserted shack until he could take it to the coast.

In December Cameron and his partners made a rich strike which brought him a fortune of $350,000. In January 1863 Cameron and a friend, Robert Stevenson loaded the coffin on a sled with 50 pounds of gold lashed on top. The toboggan wore out three horses before they got over Pavilion Mountain to Lillooet and to Douglas where they boarded a steamer. They had been travelling 39 days in weather often 40 degrees below zero.

In Victoria an undertaker filled the tin coffin with alcohol. Then Mrs. Cameron was formally buried and Cariboo Cameron went back to his claim, emerging again in the fall considerably richer. In October 1863 he raised the coffin and set out by ship for New York and Glengarry, Ontario, where Mrs. Cameron had her third funeral. Nine years later Cameron had her disinterred again to dispell rumors that she was not dead but had been sold to the Indians. Those who came to her fourth funeral saw her face, still preserved by the alcohol.

The Test for America In the Viet Nam War

By NORMAN COUSINS
Editor, Saturday Review

Let us take a simple statement and pursue some of its implications. The statement, generally presented as a bedrock cause for U.S. involvement in Viet Nam, takes this form:

"Adolf Hitler could have been stopped in the Thirties if the free nations had acted promptly and decisively. It was when aggressive Nazism discovered that the free nations were more concerned with their comforts than their convictions that Nazism made its greatest gains. If the United States had had the wisdom and courage to stand up to Hitler early enough, the lives of millions of people could have been saved.

Test of Nerves

"The world today is undergoing another test of nerve. Communist China — expansionist, aggressive, restless — seeks to take over all Asia. The initial target is Indochina; in particular, Viet Nam, Laos, Thailand, and Cambodia.

"If China should succeed in gaining direct or indirect control over any one of these nations, it will not stop until all four have come under its dominion. After that, unremitting pressure will be directed against Indonesia, Burma, Nepal, India, Pakistan, the Philippines, Japan, Australia and New Zealand. The time to stop Communist China is now and the place is Viet Nam."

We don't happen to agree with this particular historical analogy. There are significant differences between the situation as it existed thirty years ago and the situation today.

War Incidental

But our purpose here is not to argue that point. Our purpose, rather, is to examine some of the implications of a policy based on the validity of the analogy. What it means is that the Viet Nam war is incidental to a larger problem and purpose. But the price the Vietnamese people have had to pay for their geography is far from incidental.

Whether as victims or wards, the Vietnamese have been caught up in one of history's bloodiest meat-grinders. The arrival of the Viet Cong has meant assassination, intimidation, raw terror. In the attempt to liberate them from the Viet Cong, the Americans have rained bombs down on the Vietnamese, defoliated their crops, burned their villages.

It is not easy to distinguish Viet Cong from noncombatants. According to estimates, four Vietnamese have died for every member of the Viet Cong who has been killed.

Winston S. Churchill, grandson of the British war leader, recently visited hospitals in Viet Nam. He reported that medical treatment is indescribably wretched. Countless thousands of civilians wounded by war are without adequate medical attention.

Representatives of the American Friends Service Committee report that thousands of Vietnamese children urgently require sustained medical care. Many of them are suffering from serious burns. Many of them need homes.

American surgeons, sent on missions supported by private funds, report that there is a virtually endless procession of people who have been maimed and who require plastic or reconstructive surgery.

Moral Claim

Is this something that Americans should take in their stride? Do we make the necessary adjustment just by saying that all wars are horrible? Or do we say that nothing in our history lays more of a moral claim on Americans?

The test of the United States in Viet Nam will be represented not by our ability to exterminate the Viet Cong but by our determination to save lives where we can, to make mercy just as central as military operations, and to put the individual human being first.

It is estimated that it costs the United States about $100,000 to kill one member of the Viet Cong. How much is it worth to us to keep people alive? Why should instant dollars be available for bombs but only pennies wrapped in red tape for medical care and rehabilitation?

Interference

Why should the American people be satisfied with the explanation that the hospitals seen by Mr. Churchill are under the jurisdiction of the South Viet Nam government and that it would be interference to try to set things straight? In military matters, we have no difficulty in running the war the way we think it should be run. Why should we be any less forthright where where human values are at stake?

Despite what has been said recently in some quarters, life is not cheap in Asia—or anywhere else.

The conditions of life may be wretched and difficult to endure, but there could be no greater indictment than for Americans to take the position that the life of any individual, however illiterate and miserable he may be, is cheaper than the life of any American, however eminent or prosperous.

The fact that we should have to remind ourselves of these things, with years like 1776 and 1787 in our history, is profoundly disturbing in itself.

Famous Last Words

Don Calo Vizzini, (1886-1954)

This ruthless and unscupulous chief of Sicily's Mafia dies at 68, not of a bullet but of a heart attack, saying: "How beautiful life can be!" Equally incongruous is his memorial tablet which states: "He was chaste, temperate, forbearing, tireless in his defense of the weak, and, above all, a gentleman."

THE GALLUP POLL

Canadians Not Sympathetic To Mass Strike Picketing

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Canadians are not sympathetic to mass picketing in labor strikes. Nearly six in ten (59%) believe any picketing of strike-bound plants should be restricted to union members in that particular plant.

Even among union members themselves, a majority (52%) say picketing should be restricted. Only a third of those who profess union membership feel that sympathetic unions should be able to join the picket line.

The question: "When unions strike a plant, what do you think should be done about the picket line—should it be restricted to union members in that plant only, or should members of sympathetic unions join if they wish to?"

Blood Clinic Donors Given Awards

Red Cross blood clinic support for many years has earned certificates of merit for four local associations: provincial government employees, officers and men of ships of the Maritime Command (Pacific), Royal Roads staff and cadets, and faculty and cadets of HMC Venture.

The awards were presented at a Tuesday night ceremony at Red Cross House, by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes. Certificates for 50 and 20 blood donations went to individual donors.

Certificates for 50 donations were presented to Roy I. Comrie, Victor G. Coventry, Lindsay Hodgson, Alexander J. James, Hugh Mooney and William G. Hargreaves. Other recipients are Andrew J. Fracy, John Hodder and Capt. William E. Watson.

COURT ROUNDUP

Cigarette Flicked Into Officer's Face

A youth who flicked a lighted cigarette into a policeman's face pleaded guilty to two charges when he appeared in central court Tuesday.

Melvin Smith, 19, of 851 Seven Oaks, will be sentenced next Tuesday for assaulting a police officer and causing a disturbance by shouting. He had previously pleaded not guilty to both charges but changed his plea.

The offences arose after Saanich police broke up a noisy party in the 500 block Kelvin Street early on Oct. 16, involving about 50 milling and shouting young people.

Three youths were arrested. The other two have been fined $50 for disturbing the peace.

The assault charge arose when Smith was being hustled into a cell at the Saanich station after using obscene language in referring to Constable Robert Pringle.

For 30 minutes Monday night city police found they were dealing with two men named Andrew Broesraman.

First there was the driver of a car which made an illegal left turn from Pandora to Douglas and who had no driver's livence. He insisted he was Andrew Broersman.

Then there was his friend who officers fetched from a mid-town hotel.

He insisted he was Andrew Broersman.

Constable Ronald Stewart told the court it took half an hour of questioning before the driver admitted he was John Pranger, 19, of Guelph, Ont.

During the investigation, when the real Broersman claimed Pranger was Pranger, the accused confused the issue by arguing Broersman was Pranger.

"You're fortunate you're not charged with public mischief too," Magistrate Ostler told Pranger, fining him $50 for the illegal turn and $10 for not having a licence.

In default of the fines, the accused was sentenced to 16 days in jail. He was given no time to raise the fines.

★ ★ ★

Keith Wayne Kaye, 210 Gorge, was fined $350 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was charged Sunday after police saw his car come to a screeching halt on Fort and Yates, a stop so fast it turned his car sideways.

The accused was also barred from driving for the next four months.

Dale Ferguson, 19, of HMCS Qu'Appelle, told police he had been drinking when he took a $10 set of socket wrenches from a parked car Sept. 9.

He was fined $50 when he pleaded guilty to theft of goods worth less than $50.

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said police do not know who owns the wrenches.

City police on the lookout for a hit-and-run driver Oct. 23 came across Ronald Williams sprawled on the front seat of his parked car.

The 20-year-old, who lives at 2850 Bryn-Maur, pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and to careless driving. He will be sentenced Friday.

Officers said Williams caused $500 damage when he hit a parked truck on Rock Bay.

Teen-Ager Admits Taking Nylons, Clerks' Purses

Gail Harvey, 16, of 46 South Turner was raised from juvenile court for trial. She was remanded to Nov. 8 for a presentence report.

A city detective testified the offence occurred Sept. 20 when Miss Harvey and two other juveniles went to Standard Furniture, 737 Yates Street.

One girl held the attention of the clerk while the others took her purse, he said.

He testified the trio's next stop was the T. Eaton Co. store, 1150 Douglas where they raided employees lockers of a purse and 24 pairs of hose.

Birth Control 'Emergency' In Jamaica

They are urgently needed in a country which has a population of 400 per square mile compared to only 18 per square mile in Canada," writes Rev. Dr. F. H. (Howey) James, formerly of Victoria.

Dr. James, now conducting a Methodist mission in Jamaica, says the island's 1,800,000 population is mushrooming at the rate of more than 3 per cent each year.

"This means that a thousand new Jamaicans are born every week in a country which already has a density of 400 per square mile.

"In a land of such great need there is tremendous scope for missionary and humanitarian expression. Our richly-endowed land of Canada is already doing much for Jamaica and other parts of the Caribbean.

DO MORE

"But the terrific need can never be adequately met until the prosperous nations are prepared to do more.

"Nations as well as individuals have responsibilities in stewardship, and only in this kind of generous, sacrificial expression can men and nations know the meaning of peace."

Dr. and Mrs. James left Victoria in July, 1964, after 12 years' ministry with the downtown church of Metropolitan United.

RETIRE HERE

They plan to retire in Victoria next January.

"During our two years in Jamaica, we have travelled more than 25,000 miles," writes Dr. James.

"We have greatly enjoyed our contact with the Jamaican people and the beautiful land in which it has been our pleasure to live. But, despite its kindly people, balmy climate and exotic scenery, this is a land of many problems and great need.

"We have visited many of Jamaica's overcrowded schools and the conditions are deplorable. Many of the teachers are sadly below normal requirements in academic qualifications.

LOW STANDARD

Dr. James says the finest schools in Jamaica are those under church supervision.

"The evidence of progress in education is the steady growth of the University of the West Indies, which compares favorably with our Canadian standards.

"Sadly, so many of the young people of the West Indies are unable to take advantage of these facilities."

Dr. James mentions unemployment as another serious problem.

"More than 20,000 young men and women are thrown on the labor market every year, and already the unemployment figure has been quoted as 25 per cent of the total labor force."

Labor Asks Joint Study On B.C. Manpower Needs

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. Federation of Labor decided Tuesday that it wants more research into manpower requirements of the provincial labor force.

The federation manpower committee told the annual convention that statistical information on labor requirements and on worker training and retraining is inadequate.

The committee called for creation of a government - management - labor group to study apprenticeships and their relation to technical and vocational schools.

In other business during the day, the federation adopted a three-point program it believed would combat inflation and rising prices.

It called for a cut in interest rates, more funds at lower interest rates for home construction and restraints on costs, prices, profits and dividends.

Pat O'Neal, organization director of the International Pulp and Sulphite Workers Union, said the Canadian Labor Congress should attack inadequate combines legislation when it appears before the Parliamentary committee on living costs.

Mr. O'Neal said a lack of adequate combines control over corporations is the real problem in fighting rising prices.

He said three or four corporations control the automobile industry and four or five the gasoline industry. He said similar tight control exists in other fields.

RADIATION MINUTE IN CHINESE BLAST

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — China's nuclear tests before last Thursday's shot added little to the atomic radiation in the world, says a United Nations report released Monday night.

The report is the latest from the UN Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Radiation, whose 1958 conclusion was that "even the smallest amounts of radiation are liable to cause deleterious . . . effects".

It was released four days after China announced it had successfully detonated a nuclear-tipped guided missile. The United States Atomic Energy Commission estimated the warhead at 20 kilotons, the force of 20,00 tons of TNT.

ON CAR INSURANCE RATES

'Other Nations Copy Canadian Schedule'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Toronto insurance executive told the Royal Commission on Automobile Insurance Monday that rate-making procedures in Canada are admired the world over.

Donald B. Martin, past president of the Canadian Underwriters Association and general manager of the Royal Insurance Group, said Canadian methods are more often the choice of insurance researchers than any other country's methods.

Mr. Martin mad his remarks prior to presentation of a brief by CUA officials to the commission. The association represents 47 individual insurance companies and groups of companies which provide insurance for a third of British Columbia's car owners.

Points made by the brief include:

—The cost of automobile insurance "is in proper relationship to the effective protection obtained."

—Rocketing costs of car insurance are not peculiar to B.C., or Canada, but are reaching similar proportions in the U.S., Great Britain and Europe.

—In 1962, losses to companies jumped 15 per cent over 1958 figures, while in 1964, losses were 40 per cent greater than in 1958.

—Heavy losses incurred by companies from 1958 were responsible for increased premium rates. If rates had not been raised, the companies would have lost $14,600,000 from 1959 to 1964.

—CUA premiums are designed to allow 67 per cent of earned premium income to cover loss claims, leaving 33 per cent to cover all other expenses, a formula standard throughout the industry.

"The automobile insurance industry in Canada has been fortunate in that the political atmosphere in which it operates has left it free to exercise its judgment over its own affairs within fairly wide limits, said the brief.

"The industry has used its freedom wisely. It has been willing to explain to interested and intelligent critics the reasons for its actions and to consider suggestions from outside the industry."

Higher Premiums If Changed

VANCOUVER — The royal commission on auto insurance was told Tuesday that any change in legislation to make it easier for car passengers to sue drivers would result in a hefty premium rate increase.

Fred Smart, manager of the casualty branch of the Phoenix Assurance Co., said the premium for bodily injury and property damage likely would go up by five per cent.

In British Columbia, a passenger must prove gross negligence on the part of his host driver to recover damages for injuries should the vehicle be involved in an accident.

Other testimony before the commission suggested that the law should be relaxed to require a passenger prove only that there was "ordinary" negligence on the part of the driver.

The present law arose out of collusion between drivers and passengers to bilk insurance companies.

Cause Unknown Of Stable Fire

A Vancouver Fire Marshal's report released Tuesday says the cause of mid-October's stable fire at Sandown Park remains unknown.

The fire, which broke out the night of Oct. 16, killed 13 Thoroughbreds, including some of the Sandown season's leading runners, and one lead pony.

Housing Scheme Launched

Saanich took the first step Tuesday night to initiate a subsidized housing scheme in the municipality.

The move capped six months of discussion and reports at the municipal health and welfare committee.

This committee agreed Tuesday night to recommend to council that Saanich apply to the provincial government for a housing authority, first step in the procedure.

If approved by the senior governments, the scheme would involve the purchase of 50 houses and construction of a small apartment in Saanich.

The houses would comprise 25 two-bedroom dwellings, 20 with three bedrooms and five with four bedrooms.

The apartment, for senior citizens, would contain 23 single and six double units.

Committee chairman Coun. Edith Gunning outlined differences in cost between building new homes and buying existing ones and brushing them up if necessary.

New ones would cost between $14,900 and $19,200 while 10- and 15-year-old houses were available in the $11,000 to $16,000 price range.

Asked how much tenants will pay, Coun. Gunning said about 30 per cent of income.

Meet People Bonner Plan In Election

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Attorney-General Bonner said Tuesday that shortly after his defeat in the Sept. 12 provincial election, several MLAs offered to resign their seats to pave the way for a byelection and a second chance for him to be elected.

However, Mr. Bonner said he did not want to be in a position of accepting a resignation offer from an MLA. "I wanted my colleagues to work things out themselves."

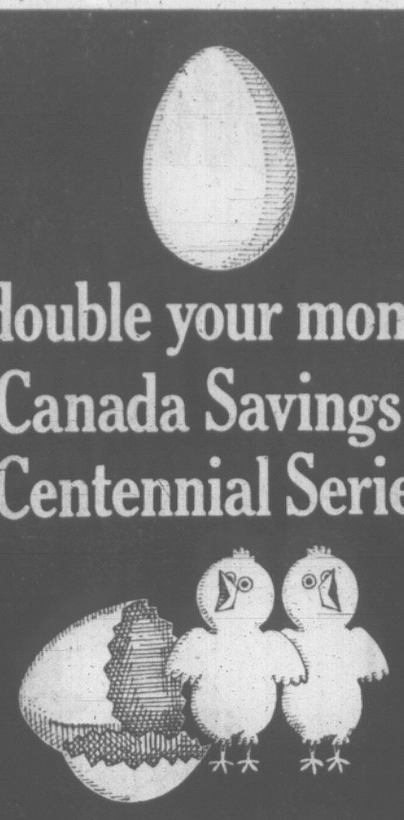

Mr. Bonner hopes to be elected to the legislature in the Cariboo where Social Credit MLA William Speare recently resigned his seat. The byelection has been set for Nov. 28.

The attorney-general, making a swift two-day tour of the Cariboo riding, said he will be disappointed if there is not a good slate of candidates to oppose him in the byelection.

Mr. Bonner said his campaign will centre largely on a "meet the people" policy, and that he is going to fight the constituency on a personal basis.

"There are many scattered pockets of people who are entitled to have representation, and if there is time I plan to go and meet them all."

MPs Defy Portugal Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — Two opposition members served notice on the Portuguese embassy Monday that they will continue a campaign against suppression of democratic opposition in Portugal.

In a letter to Ambassador Eduardo Brazao, MPs Andrew Bretin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) and David MacDonald (PC — Prince) defended their right to attack the Portuguese regime.

The two recently visited Portugal and have since publicly criticized conditions in the country.

They said in the letter Monday that an embassy statement condemning "foreign meddling" apparently referred to their statements.

But Canada and Portugal were allies under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which bound members to safeguard the liberty of their peoples.

"We propose to continue to the best of our ability to turn a searchlight on the facts and to break down to the greatest extent within our power the wall of silence which surrounds Portugal today."

Appeal Bill Refused

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal Monday refused to allow 26 labor demonstrators, sentenced for contempt of court, to appeal their sentences to the Supreme Court of Canada. The decision was handed down by Chief Justice Dana Porter.

bright, bubbly Calona Crackling Wines.

3 very superior wines to add an extra measure of pleasure to every special occasion.

You'll appreciate the champagne quality of Calona Crackling Wines... they're vinted exactly the same as champagne for extra fine flavor, life, and appearance.

Start with our suggested uses, but be sure to try all three, and then decide for yourself when you like each the best.

Crackling Rosé — A delightful medium dry, full-bodied pink wine. Particularly enjoyable with meals but suitable and proper at any time and for any occasion.

Crackling Burgundy — A lively medium dry, full-bodied red wine. Specially appreciated with roasts, steaks, game, and for special occasions. Serve well chilled.

Crackling White — A fine medium sweet, full-bodied white wine. Light and bright in the Italian Spumante tradition. An outstanding sweeter wine for entertaining. Serve well chilled.

Calona Crackling Wines are best, and most fun, when served in champagne type stemmed glasses. Store in a cool, dry place, out of direct sunlight, upright or on the side.

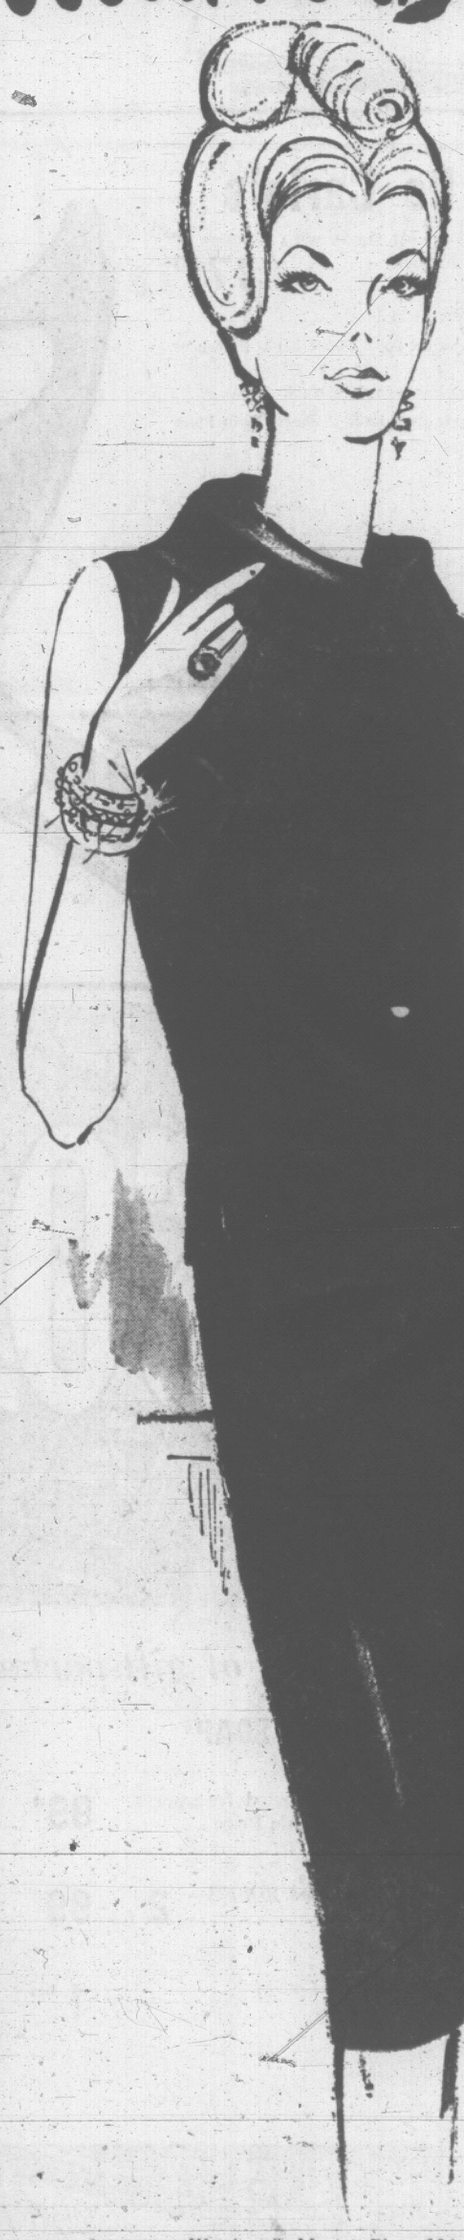

Why are the bubbles so fine?

COUN. LUM:

Mayor Scuttled Elk-Beaver Plan

Saanich Coun. Edward Lum today blamed Victoria Mayor A. W. Toone for scuttling a plan to spend $580,000 to improve Elk-Beaver Lake over a 10-year period.

He also said if former mayor R. B. Wilson had remained in office the plan would have been ratified.

Under the plan, the city was to dedicate the land it owns as a park and Saanich would provide the maintenance money.

Coun. Lum, chairman of the Saanich parks and recreation committee, said he is "very surprised" at Mayor Toone's reply to his comments last Friday criticizing city maintenance of the park.

He noted that Mayor Toone, when he was an alderman last year, was on the committee when negotiations were taking place on the future of Elk-Beaver Lake.

MONTH MORE

At that time, Mr. Wilson was the mayor.

"And my only regret is that ex-mayor Wilson's term was not a month longer at which time the agreements would have been ratified," said Coun. Lum.

This would have ensured the area remained a recreational use at all times "and not live under constant fear of losing it at the whim of succeeding city councils."

In an interview, Coun. Lum said the committee was at the stage when solicitors were to be instructed to draw up agreements.

Mayor Toone then "just dropped the subject" and "we don't know why there was the change."

'CLOUD THE ISSUE'

He accused the city of using the water rights question as an excuse to try and "cloud the issue."

"The provincial government stripping the city of its water rights, I feel, has no bearing on the issue whatsoever as far as the land use is concerned."

Referring to Mayor Toone's comment that he should have consulted Reeve Hugh Curtis before his blast last Friday, Coun. Lum replied:

"I can only say the reeve is not responsible for my actions and could not have given me any more information than what I already know.

"However this matter was discussed with him before any statements were made to the press."

He also said both Mayor Toone and city alderman Robert Baird would better understand his criticism if they "spent as much time as I have over the past two years watching the work done in the Elk-Beaver Lake area instead of just reading reports by their parks administrator.

"I would suggest that if city council asks those people using the area for recreation their views they will say that my criticism is well founded."

If the city was sincere in recognizing the area as one for recreation, then it could dedicate it as a park and protect it for all times.

'I'll Kill You, I'll Kill You'

"Home."
"Have you got a wallet?"
"No."

A 64-year-old caretaker with a heart condition recalled this conversation in central court Tuesday when a man broke his arm with a tire iron 10 days ago in an early morning robbery attempt.

David Barr, 2424 Wark, said he was walking home shortly after 2 a.m. from his caretaking job at the Begg Building when his assailant challenged him at the corner of Quadra and Cormorant.

JUDGMENT FRIDAY

Charged with assault with intent to rob is James Griffiths, 20 of 422B Craigflower. Magistrate Ostler adjourned the case for judgment Friday.

Barr testified the man who attacked him kept yelling, "I'll kill you, I'll kill you," as Barr stumbled up some steps and sought refuge in an apartment at the corner.

"I was hoping with all my heart that door wasn't locked. I turned the handle and the door opened," the janitor said of his apartment refuge.

WORE PACEMAKER

The first blow with the tire wrench was aimed at his ribs, he said. He dropped his arm to protect a "pacemaker," an electronic device "to keep my heart moving."

It was while he was retreating up the steps another blow broke his wrist.

The electric heart device reduced his agility, he said.

"If I hadn't the pacemaker, he wouldn't have hit me. I got a pair of damn good Irish mitts and I know how to use them."

CONTEMPT WARNING

Another "outrageous" remark of that sort and he would be cited for contempt of court, Magistrate Ostler warned him.

More Cong Deserters

SAIGON (AP) — Government officials Monday announced a sharp rise in Viet Cong desertions to the South Vietnamese side. They reported 2,062 defectors from the Communist cause in October, the third highest month this year.

CEMETERY 'TRAPS' TO HALT VANDALISM

The alderman made the comment Tuesday during a discussion on ways and means of curbing young vandals who smash grave-stones for kicks.

Ald. Baird did not elaborate on what type of traps he had in mind.

A letter from Cannon Jack Rogers touched off the discussion.

Parks administrator Herbert Warren said he felt the gates would eliminate automobile traffic but would not cut down vandalism.

Shops Protest Tax

JERUSALEM (AP) — Most of Israel's shops closed Tuesday for 24 hours in a "warning strike," protesting increased business taxes levied by municipalities. Movie houses stayed open but turned off their outside lights to show sympathy with the businessmen.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Blue Chips Hold Major Interest

By AB KENT
Business Editor

If the current low pitch of stock market activity has about run its course as some people believe, look for a business slump next spring.

That's the word if business activity follows the pattern set by market activity—or lack of it—in the past.

Business, it is found, tends to respond to market trends by reflecting conditions some six months later.

The market just now is attractive to investors who can look far enough ahead to see that gains will be made next year if they buy at today's low prices.

By the time business comes out of its slump, stocks generally should be generously advanced.

That's the theory. Time will tell if it's valid for the current situation.

B.C. may have to be considered separately because of its lumber market depression that is bound to affect business, if not before Christmas, then certainly after the New Year.

In other words, B.C. may feel the business pinch earlier than the rest of the country.

For instance, one of the country's most respected mutual funds in the period Aug. 22-Oct. 13 bought $5 million worth of common stocks representing sound long-term investment at favorable prices.

This was after a six-month period of virtually no purchases by that particular mutual fund.

A California publication—the Buck Investment Letter of Danville—speculates the Dow Jones market average of 740 set a few weeks ago will stand up as the "bottom" of the down market.

There will be steady but unspectacular improvement to nearly 900 by the end of next year, it is predicted.

A "vigorous eight-year bull market" is aborning, which could see the DJ average at 1,000 by mid-1968, 1,200 by the autumn of 1969, followed by a dip then 1,500 by December, 1973.

The letter further declares the average could be 1,800 by 1975 That's positive thinking.

Heavy banking activity was noticed Tuesday as Canada Savings Bond holders cashed in their annual coupons. Across the nation $250 million worth of coupons came due, $75 million paid out in the form of cheques to registered bond holders.

Canadians have bought and hold about $5.3 billion worth of the bonds.

Natural Gas Demand Will Soar

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The growth in demand for natural gas during the next 10 years will probably be greater than for any other type of fuel, T. L. de Fayer, director of the economics branch of the national energy board at Ottawa, said today.

He told the annual meeting of the Ontario Petroleum Institute that preliminary results of a study of supply and demand of all types of energy in Canada suggest an over-all growth in the next decade of about 4½ per cent.

That would be in line with the anticipated economic growth, he said.

"Preliminary studies suggest that natural gas may continue to gain new markets at a faster rate than oil.

"The rapid rate of growth experienced during the last decade or so in the use of gas clearly cannot continue — that is, at the rate of some 18 per cent per annum — but expansion in demand for gas is, nevertheless, expected to increase faster than demand for other fuels."

PGE Adds Diesels, Chip Cars

Three new diesel locomotives and 75 chip cars worth a total of $1,750,000 are being added to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway's rolling stock to meet the demands of the booming pulp and paper industry.

The locomotives worth $250,000 apiece have already been delivered, bringing to 57 the number of diesels on the PGE line between North Vancouver and Fort St. John, a PGE spokesman said Wednesday.

The chip cars costing $13,000 each will be put into service as they come off the assembly line at Vancouver Iron and Engineering Works Ltd. The PGE already has 300 chip cars in use.

Earlier this year the bustling railway acquired 100 pulp and paper cars each worth some $17,000 and 150 high-stake logging cars worth $11,000 each.

The latest orders bring the value of this year's additions to PGE rolling stock to over $4 million.

Government Stands Firm Against Redeeming Bonds

OTTAWA (CP) Finance Minister Sharp said Tuesday in the Commons it would not be in the general interest for the government to redeem the $55,000,000 perpetual bond issue of 1936.

He was replying to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, who asked the government to reconsider its decision.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the value of the bonds has fallen by about 50 per cent since the government's announcement, causing undue suffering to older people.

In view of Mr. Sharp's explanation that he did not want speculators to make a killing, he wondered if the government would redeem bonds from those who had held them for 15 years

Mr. Sharp told the Commons Oct. 5 that the government did not feel it would be justified in redeeming the bonds since some purchasers had bought them at a discount. Redeeming them would give some holders a captial gain at the expense of the taxpayers.

He also said Tuesday it would not be just to cover the losses of those holding the bonds now while ignoring the losses of those who have sold them at a discount.

NEW POLICE WAGON FROM SHIPYARD

Victoria's new police paddy wagon is to be built by a shipbuilding firm.

Victoria police commission Tuesday approved a $3,951 bid by Yarrows Ltd. and a local automobile firm to build the new wagon which will replace the aging two now in service.

The chassis will be provided by the auto firm and the body will be constructed by Yarrows Ltd.

Police Chief J. F. Gregory said only one wagon will be needed in the future when police are relieved of ambulance duties.

Nickel Price Increased

TORONTO (CP) — International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd., the world's largest nickel producer, has increased its world price for primary nickel, effective immediately.

The increase was announced at a press conference Tuesday when Inco also reported lower earnings for the first nine months of 1966 along with a gloomy forecast for its fourth-quarter operations in 1966.

Inco advanced the price of refined nickel in North America by 7½ cents a pound to 92.15 cents in Canada and 85.25 cents in the United States.

Henry S. Wingate, Inco chairman, attributed the rise to "greatly increasing costs" along with the expense of bringing high cost, low-grade deposits into production.

Earnings for the nine months dropped to $89,396,000 or $3.01 a share against $107,973,000, $3.64.

Third - quarter earnings showed the sharpest decline, sliding to $15,766,000 or 53-cents a share compared with $32,127,000, $1.08.

BLAMES STRIKES

Mr. Wingate said the major reduction in earnings was "caused by several strikes in the company's Ontario division beginning in July and extending into September, including a 25-day illegal strike."

"These abnormalities and the cost of the settlement will adversely affect the fourth-quarter earnings."

The company declared a regular fourth-quarter dividend of 70 cents a common share, payable Dec. 20 to shareholders of record Nov. 21. However, it said dividends for the year will be limited to $2.80 a share against $3.05 in 1965.

The company increased the price of nickel oxide sinter by 5¾ cents a pound, bringing the Canadian price of sinter 75 to 87.5 cents a pound and sinter 90 to 87.8 cents. The equivalent U.S. price is 81-cents a pound and 81.25 cents.

The new price in the United Kingdom for nickel pellets refined at the Clydach refinery in Wales moved up to £702 a long ton from £642.

Mr. Wingate said the labor settlement reached with the United Steel Workers of America in September will increase the company's hourly costs in Ontario by 17½ per cent in 1967 and 25 per cent in the beginning of July, 1968.

PRICE WENT DOWN

He said the last increase the company made was in 1961 and during the period, the price of nickel had actually declined 2¼ cents a pound.

"As nickel is a quality metal primarily used as an alloying agent in specialized products, the effect of the price adjustments on consumer and industrial end products will in most cases be either quite small or negligible."

The company also announced that because of the increased prices it is going ahead with the development of a $100,000,000 high-cost, low-grade nickel mine at its Pipe Lake property in northern Manitoba.

The mine, about 20 miles south of its Thompson mine, is expected to be in operation in about three years.

Million Dollar Gate For Clay-Williams?

HOUSTON (AP)—Earl Gilliam, the Texas promoter, says that boxing fans have bought $225,000 worth of tickets for the November 14 Cassius Clay-Cleveland Williams world title heavyweight fight in the Astrodome and prospects for a $1,000,000 gate remain good.

"We still have about $100,00 out in reservations," Gilliam said.

The last $1,000,000 gate occurred on June 19, 1946, when the then heavyweight champion Joe Louis, who had to come from behind to score a 13th-round kayo in their first fight, stopped Billy Conn in eight rounds in Yankee Stadium, New York.

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH
(The Washington Post)

WASHINGTON—The Rev. Cassius Clay, a self-ordained preacher of the Black Muslim faith, will soon learn from his Louisville draft board whether he is army-exempt. Meanwhile another decision involving Clay will be made. He will be taking his portable pulpit to Houston, where it will be decided on the night of November 14 how well the parson can take a punch.

That is when he will be defending his heavyweight title against Cleveland Williams, who is a big hitter with his right hand but is best known as, well, a survivor. Only two years ago a policeman's bullet tore its way through Williams' innards preliminary to charges of driving while drunk and resisting arrest, and it was presumed that at least a boxing career had ended.

Williams beat the hospital rap and also did pretty well in court where his manager came up with a novel defence against the charges of the arresting cop who said that Williams punched him several times before the shooting. Hugh Benbow denied his tiger had struck the policeman, saying, "If Cleve had hit him even once the officer also would have wound up in the hospital."

He was the second-ranked heavyweight in the world at the time and the arrest did Williams out of a fight with Ernie Terrell, for the World Boxing Association version of the title. A few months later he was involved in some more gun play, but not on the receiving end. He was arrested for carrying a pistol, and charged by his wife with threatening her.

Clay Hacks But Williams Destroys

These affairs claimed only a couple of Williams' boxing lives and here he is getting the big shot at Cassius Clay. He hasn't actually beaten any fighters of special note but he has knocked out 55 guys, indicating he is more than a paper tiger. It is his size and his punching power that make his fight with Clay interesting.

He is as big as Clay, to begin with, and at 34 is not so old as to have peaked out. Unlike Clay, who rarely can end a fight with one punch, Williams has taken guys out that way, a slew of 'em. In no less than 25 of his encounters he has walked out the winner before the end of round one or, at the longest, round two.

Thus Williams is a different punching type from Clay, who defeats but does not destroy. Clay hacks them up and leaves them for the referee and the ring physicians to dispose of, but Williams can take them out cleanly, either with a big punch or combinations, and then needs only a referee who can count to 10.

Cleve Archetype of the Old Pro

Williams is a Houston native, and archetype of the old pro. He has been a professional boxer for 16 years. He has had more fights (71) than any heavyweight now active. Back in 1955 he quit for a year as if to say what's the use, but it was a living, so he returned to the wars in 1956. But something always happened just as he seemed ready to get the big-shot fight.

He has been beaten only five times in his 71 fights, but three of those defeats were, like so many of his victories, speedy knockouts. One was by Bob Satterfield, a Chicago light-heavyweight who could knock out anybody he elected to hit first. When Satterfield lost the coin toss and was forced to receive, his own chin was a big liability. But Williams' knockout by Satterfield was not a disgraceful affair.

Two of his other knockout defeats Williams would like to forget in the light of later developments. These were delivered by Sonny Liston, the first one in three rounds in 1959. One year later, Liston beat his own elapsed time by stopping Williams in two rounds. This one was in Houston and Liston could have been taking no chances on a home-town decision.

His Disaster Threshold Awaits Test

Since that second affair with Liston nobody has stopped Williams except that cop with a bullet. Ernie Terrell, now the fair-haired heavyweight of the WBA, tried it in 1962 and got himself knocked out in seven rounds. This now stands as a considerable feat by Williams in as much as nobody else has ever knocked out Terrell before or since, mostly because Terrell is a clutcher who can neutralize punchers.

Clay has had little experience against punchers. Doug Jones, a pretty good one, almost beat him. Sonny Liston had the reputation of being a puncher but was a strangely reluctant warrior against Clay both times. Clay's pigeons on his recent European safaris, Henry Cooper, Brian London and Karl Mildenberger, couldn't carry the laces of Williams' gloves as punchers.

None of this is intended to say that Williams will lick Clay on Nov. 14 because Clay still is the fastest and most cunning heavyweight now in business. But he sometimes does leave his chin exposed and if Williams strikes him on it, then for the first time perhaps Clay's disaster threshold can be appraised.

Feeding Golfers Gets Call Over Refreshing

At the monthly meeting of the Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday it was agreed that all municipalities should financially support the staging of the Willingdon Cup and Commonwealth Golf Tournament next year.

But how?

Pay for a banquet for between 400 and 500 golfers from New Zealand, Australia, South Africa and Canada?

Pick up caddy fees as a gesture of goodwill?

"I don't know," said Oak Bay Reeve Alan Cox. "But I think feeding golfers would be cheaper than pouring them drinks."

The committee will decide later what form its aid will take.

MARATHON SKI TOUR

OTTAWA (CP)—A three-day marathon ski tour from Montreal to Ottawa to mark the centennial of Confederation next year will be held late in February.

FOOTBALL IS FOR SISSIES

They call it "cage ball" and some people claim it's tougher and rougher than football. Traditional game between Springfield (Mass.) College freshmen and sophomores is annual riot that produces plenty of bruises as teams of 25 players each try to force six-foot ball over opposing goal. Freshmen are shown in process of scoring 2-0 upset in this year's clash. (AP Wirephoto.)

Leafs' Next Two Of Must Variety

Totems in Town Tonight; Blades Rally for 4-4 Tie

Coach Frank Mario has hauled out the "must win" stamp for the first time in the current Western Hockey League season.

This morning Frank thumped it over the next two games of the Victoria schedule. They are the ones at Memorial Arena that send the Leafs against Seattle Totems tonight and against the California Seals on Saturday night.

"They're important. We have to take the next two before we go on that road trip," Mario said before heading for the dressing room to emphasize the fact to the Maple Leafs in their usual pre-game meeting.

Leafs had a break at the start of their schedule, playing seven of their first eight gaems on home ice. Following Saturday's tussle with the Oakland Seals of coach Rudy Pilous, the Leafs hit the road, where things are usually tougher, and play five games before returning home.

Leafs lost one and tied one of their last two games at Memorial Arena and are tied for second place, five points behind Portland Buckaroos.

They felt pressure from a new challenger Tuesday night when Los Angeles Blades, who tripped the Leafs 5-3 here last Saturday, played to a 4-4 deadlock with the Canucks at Vancouver and climbed to within one point of Victoria.

REDAHL AT CENTRE?

Jolted Monday when centre Larry Keenan suffered a heel fracture, Mario was still undecided how to assemble his third line. Rookie Mike Laughton, working as a centre since joining the Leafs this season, may pivot the line. However, Laughton played on left wing last season and Frank may shift Mike to the wing and use Gordie Redahl in the pivot spot.

Blades charged back from a 3-1 first-period deficit to earn the 4-4 overtime tie with Canucks before 2,200 fans.

MALONEY STARS

Phil Maloney led Canucks with two goals and an assist while Gord Vejprava and Brian Hextall added singles. Jak Stanfield, Tommy McVie, and Willie O'Ree also scored for Los Angeles.

Canucks moved ahead at the 6:08 mark of the first period when Vejprava went in alone on Los Angeles netminder Jack Norris and slipped the puck into the corner of the net.

Stanfield evened it seven minutes later before Hextall and Maloney replied with two goals in two minutes to give Canucks their first-period 3-1 margin.

Norris was sensational for Los Angeles coming up with 45 saves, 19 of them in the third period. Don Simmons in the Canuck net was called on to make 33 saves.

Bouncy Boston Bruins Hand Hawks First Loss

PIT MARTIN
. . . fourth goal

By The Canadian Press

Boston Bruins, playing their third game on the road in four days, came up with a hustling performance Tuesday night to edge Chicago Black Hawks 3-2 in the only scheduled National Hockey League game.

The Bruins out - hustled the Hawks for most of the game and also got a solid performance from netminder Bernie Parent, making his first appearance of the season, to hand the Hawks their first loss of the season against four wins.

The Boston victory was the second in six starts and moved the Bruins into third place in the NHL standings, one point behind Montreal Canadiens and three points behind the league-leading Hawks.

The Bruins survived five penalties to Ted Green and two against rookie defenceman Bobby Orr. The Hawks drew only two penalties despite the roughness of the game.

Green was given minors for two slashing infractions, holding, hooking and for high-sticking. He holds the record for most penalties in one game. He took three minors, two majors and two misconducts for a total of seven penalties against New York Rangers last season.

The Canadiens will be strengthened at left wing with the return of Gilles Tremblay, who has been sidelined with a shoulder injury since the beginning of the season. They will be without Dick Duff, another left winger who is out with a knee injury.

BOB BAUN RETURNS

The Leafs will regain Bob Baun and Larry Jeffrey.

Terry Sawchuk probably will start in the Toronto goal. The 36-year-old veteran turned in a standout performance in Toronto's 3-2 victory against Detroit Red Wings last week, but missed Saturday's game against the Bruins due to the death of his mother-in-law.

Bruce Gamble will be the backup netminder. Johnny Bower is nursing a back ailment.

It will be the first meeting between the two clubs since Canadiens eliminated the Leafs in four straight semi-final playoff games last April.

Steelers' Formula For Fourth Spot Simple . . . on Paper

The formula is simple. On paper.

There are other small details, of course.

Edmonds must lose to Eugene Bombers in the last Pacific Football League game for both teams on Nov. 12. The probability of an Edmonds loss is greater than the possibility of an Eugene defeat.

To make the Steelers' dream come true, Tacoma would also have to lose its final game against Portland Thunderbirds Nov. 12. The Birds have handled virtually every team except the unbeated Seattle Ramblers and Eugene.

TAYLOR RETURNING

For this Saturday's contest of strength and wills, the Steelers will be fully manned. Not all the men will be fully healthy but all will play.

This includes brilliant Seattle rookie halfback Bill Taylor. Out of action recently with a shoulder separation, Taylor will be strapped and ready to go Saturday at 2 p.m.

Steelers may also have Nub Beamer in strip.

The former Lion fullback who played earlier in the season has indicated he wants to play in Steelers' final two games.

Steelers may needs a full complement.

HE'S A BIG ONE

Among the more sizeable Edmonds Warriors they will have to contend with is lineman Dick Hard. At six-six, 305 pounds he could be Hard to contain.

Steelers have designated Saturday as "Salute to Minor Football Day." About 150 minor footballers, mostly members of the Norm Fieldgate Bantam League, will attend. Two teams will play a brief game during the half-time intermission.

Tickets purchased before Friday will sell at a 50-cent reduction. Firms wishing to buy blocks of children's tickets for their employees' offspring can do so by contacting club treasurer Bill Clark at the Dominion Hotel.

NEW STADIUM WOULD SWING IT FOR CINCY

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — With the awarding of the National Football League's 16th franchise to New Orleans Tuesday, former coach Paul Brown set out today to get an American Football League team for Cincinnati.

And Pete Rozelle, the NFL boss who will become commissioner of the merged National and American Leagues in 1970, indicated Cincinnati has the inside track for the new AFL team, scheduled to begin play in 1968.

Brown, ex-coach of the NFL Cleveland Browns, said in Cleveland Tuesday night that he believes "we can have the franchise for 1968 if assurance is given that a new stadium in Cincinnati will be ready in time".

All Voters Agree Sandy's the Best

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sandy Koufax has won the Cy Young Award as baseball's best pitcher for the third time.

Reached at his home Tuesday in suburban Studio City, the superb southpaw said he was delighted. The vote by the Baseball Writers of America was unanimous, as it had been in previous years.

The award to the Los Angeles Dodgers' superstar amounts to an unprecedented event. No hurler had ever won it twice, as did Sandy in 1963 and 1965, much less three times.

"I'm thrilled," said Koufax who may have been groping for words different from his reactions on the previous award occasions.

"It's a great honor to be selected more than once, and it's an even bigger thrill to win it two years in a row.

"Especially since we have some great pitchers in the league — in both leagues, that is."

REMEMBERS ORIOLES

Koufax paused, as if reflecting on the innocent, momentary omission on the American League, and quickly added with a chuckle:

Queried about rumors that he may retire from baseball because of his famous, and infamous, ailing left elbow, Koufax merely said he has given no thought one way or another about his future plans.

CHANGE POSSIBLE

The 30-year-old Koufax, who had a 27-9 record, may be the last Cy Young Award winner as it now is designed, covering both leagues.

Baseball writers are voting on whether the award should be given to the best pitcher in each league.

Since it was originated in 1956, National League pitchers have won the honor seven times.

Belting Billys Draw High Golfing Honors

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Billy Burke has been voted into golf's Hall of Fame and Billy Casper has been named the 1966 Golfer of the Year.

Results of the balloting were announced Tuesday night at the annual president's dinner of the Professional Golfers' Association.

Burke, 65, who won the 1931 U.S. Open in an epic, 72-hole playoff with George Von Elm, was elected by living members of the Hall of Fame.

After the marathon match, playoffs were limited to 18 holes.

PGA members and sports-writers of the PGA national press list voted Casper, currently the leading money winner on the tour, as the year's outstanding player. His official earnings amount to $116,623 so far this year.

UBC PROFESSOR HAD THEORY . . . . . . FOR RECORD WRECKING

Training in a Compression Chamber

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia professor has set out to prove that athletes trained at high altitudes perform much better than those conditioned at sea level.

Dr. Eric W. Banister of UBC's physical education department has an experiment under way at the campus that he says could help Canadian athletes shatter world records.

Dr. Banister is using a $15,000 compression chamber to acclimatize a group of volunteer students to rarefied atmosphere.

The students pedal a stationary bicycle inside the compression chamber while altitudes of 7,000 to 12,000 feet are simulated by reducing the oxygen content of the atmosphere in the chamber.

Dr. Banister contends that humans have almost reached their limit in speed and endurance records with normal training procedures. He says he's sure that records will continue to topple if athletes start using his altitude-acclimatization program.

Athletes trained at Mexico City or Banff, for example, would compete better than those trained in Vancouver's sea level atmosphere.

He says his theories apply only to athletes to whom endurance is an important factor, such as long distance runners.

"I don't think it would be useful for weightlifters or others who require quick, short responses."

The UBC professor says he is completely satisfied with the results of his experiments and that much useful information has been obtained from them.

Dr. Banister's research is supported by a $13,930 grant from the federal department of health and welfare.

DAME PATTIE MATCHED . . .

. . . AGAINST MODIFIED GRETEL

Aussies Test New, Old Yachts

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Two yachts — one an international veteran, the other a sprightly newcomer to deep waters — are engaged in shakedown trials vital to a decision on Australia's challenger for the America's Cup against the United States next September.

Gretel, the unsuccessful 1962 challenger, and the new Dame Pattie are being finely tuned as they skim across eastern Australian waters in preparation for the classic blue-water event.

Gretel is racing against the leased American trial-horse Vim. Two teams are in training from which Gretel's final crew will be chosen.

She is skippered by Jock Sturrock, who proved his ability at quick starts and skilled tactics against America's leading 12-metre skipper, Bus Mosbacher, in Gretel's 1962 challenge.

Both yachts will continue to train crews and iron out the inevitable problems of highly-strung craft until they begin racing against each other in preliminary trials in January.

In March, after racing in selection trials off Sydney, both yachts and their chosen crews will be shipped to the United States.

The final choice of a challenger will be made after a series of trials in the normally light winds and choppy seas off Newport, R.I., where the America's Cup struggle will again be decided.

In 1962, experts regarded the Newport conditions as a major cause of Gretel's defeat. Then, after six weeks of preparations with its only 12-metre yacht, Australia became the first country in 28 years to win a cup race, but lost the series 4-1.

Since her cup challenge, Gretel has undergone hull modifications described by shipbuilders as more difficult than building a new yacht. A slimmer Gretel, redesigned for Newport conditions, is being tested now.

Gretel is training with American sails, which she would be permitted to use next year because she had them in her 1962 challenge.

It is not yet known if she will use her original American sails or others made from new material Australian manufacturers have perfected.

Australian sailmaker Joe Pearce who played a prominent part in making the sails for the U.S. yacht Constellation, the successful defender against Britain in 1964, believes that one of the new fabrics, Kadron, is even better than was hoped.

Different in concept of design from Gretel, Dame Pattie is training with Australian-perfected sails. From the shoulders aft, Dame Pattie is fuller-figured, compared with Gretel's more severe lines.

Dame Pattie, the second Australian-built 12-metre yacht, was constructed specially for Newport conditions by a syndicate of Australian companies. She has had teething troubles. Her mast became unstepped in one accident, and she now is fitted with a new, stronger mast.

Eastern Grid Playoff No Free-Wheeling Tiff

By Canadian Press

Canadian football fans probably won't be surprised if Sunday's Eastern Football Conference semi-final is decided by a 1-0 score.

Montreal Alouettes, third-place finishers in the East this season, defeated the first-place Ottawa Rough Riders by exactly that score last Sunday, and it could happen again when second-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats play host to Montreal this weekend.

The winner of the sudden-death affair will play the Rough Riders in a two-game total-point series Nov. 13 and Nov. 20 to decide the eastern representative in the Grey Cup game Nov. 26 in Vancouver.

Sunday's contest, which will be carried on the full CBC network at 11 a.m. PST, shapes up as an even greater battle of defence than last weekend's game.

AIM AT ZUGER

And the Alouettes, who held the Ticats to six pass completions in 16 attempts in the last meeting between the two clubs, are out to muffle Hamilton quarterback Joe Zuger this weekend.

"The key is stopping the pass," Montreal's assistant coach Ralph Goldston said Tuesday. "They won't run us off the field."

Hamilton allowed only 160 points against, 17 fewer than Ottawa, during the 14 regular-season games, although the Ticats finished four points behind the Rough Riders.

QUARTERBACKS EQUAL

"I think both teams are on a par when it comes to quarterbacks. Neither Joe Zuger or Frank Cosentino has impressed me this season and I think Bernie Faloney and George Bork can do just as good a job for us."

"The Tiger-Cats have an advantage at offensive ends with Hal Patterson and Dave Viti over our Mike Gibbons and Ken Galloway, but we have better offensive linemen.

"Larry Jordan and Pierre Desjardins are ahead of Ellison Kelly and Bronko Nagurski at the tackle positions. And Tony Pajaczkowski is a superior guard to Bill Danychuk. Hamilton's Chick Walton has the edge over our other guard Ray Lychak and I'd take Chet Miksza at centre over our Gene Ceppetelli on the strength of experience."

NOBODY SOUNDS OFF . . .

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bud Grant, recalling a handful of tough post-season clashes in the 1950s, respects the club his Winnipeg Blue Bombers will face in the sudden-death Western Football Conference semi-final Sunday.

Coach Neill Armstrong, preparing Edmonton Eskimos for the 2:30 p.m. CST kickoff, feels his club can start winning the close games.

"We believe we can do it Sunday," said Armstrong, whose Sunday's WFC semi - final will be televised over Channel 8 starting at 12:30 p.m. Victoria time.

Eskimos squeezed into the playoffs for the first time since 1961.

"They're basically a good football club," said Grant. "They've got outstanding running in Jim Thomas, Trent Walters, Butch Pressley, Joe Hernandez and Randy Kerbow.

"We're no better than they are. We're playing a little better now, but we're still far away from what I think it's going to take to win."

Eskimos have to make a few shuffles to replace centre Ron Capham, who suffered a broken arm in the last league game.

Bombers boast the best defence in the WFC — it has allowed a shade more than 14 points a game—but as Grant puts it: "It's not how many points you give up, but when you give them up."

BOWLER OF WEEK

Spilling pins for three-game total of 633, Keith Snelling, assistant manager of Mayfair Lanes, has again won men's tenpin award in Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. Snelling, who topped division in 26th week of last season's contest, didn't wait as long this time. He hit the top in fourth week with torrid triple on games of 221, 187 and 225 in Men's Senior League at Mayfair.

Kerries Clip Killarney

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bob Steeves scored 22 points to lead Kerrisdale to a 75-53 victory over Killarney Tuesday night in an Inter-City Junior Basketball League game.

In other league action, UBC Braves defeated North Shore 69-55 with the help of a 13-point performance by Derek Sankey. John Hart scored 15 points for the losers.

Hoop Angels Top Langford Squad

Metropolitan Angels turned back Langford Tigerettes 33-22 at S. J. Willis Junior High School Tuesday in a bantam girls' game that featured a Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association card.

Midget boys—Metropolitan 32, St. Louis 12.

Canadian Team Finishes Second

NEW YORK (CP) — The United States has wrapped up its second straight national horseshow title at Madison Square Garden, winning the last international jumping event of the eight-day competition Tuesday night.

The Americans took the team title with eight victories in the 11 jumping events while Canada was second in the team and third in individual championships. Kathy Kusner of the U.S. won the individual title with Gail Ross of Edmonton in the third spot.

The U.S. had 131 points to win the team title and Canada with three jumping wins was second with 95 points. The other countries were out of contention. The United Kingdom had 24 points, Ireland 16, Chile 12 and Mexico three.

Miss Kusner, though gaining no points with Untouchable in the concluding event, had 42 points to 28 for runnerup Mrs. Frank D. Chapot of the U.S. Miss Ross had 26 points and Jim Day of Oak Ridges, Ont., was fourth with 24.

Mrs. Chapot captured the final event, the Grand Prix of New York, before a crowd of about 9,000.

She rode Tomboy to a clean round in the jumpoff in 35.3 seconds. Canadian Club, ridden by Day, also was clean in the jumpoff, but was caught in 37.2.

City Soccer Finalists Don't Fear the Future

Around the corner (Friday, to be precise) is the city high school soccer final between Cornell's Mount View Hornets and Price's Victoria High Tyees.

Farther off in the distance stood the future two schools' prospects. Somehow the two coaches started sizing up the future.

"We played an exhibition against Colquitz Junior High," Cornell mentioned as a matter of fact. "We beat them, but had no right to. . . ."

'WE, TOO!' SAYS PRICE

"I'm not worried about the future either," retorted Price. "Central Junior played my guys, and we wound up with a 3-3 draw."

Central is Vic High's "farm". Of more important consequence is Friday's sudden-death playoff at Victoria High. Tyees, unbeaten in league play this season, stand out as the favorites.

Price's crew includes goalkeeper Jerry Lister, Ollie Moilanen, Rick Couch and Jindy Johl, all of whom play with Victoria's entry in the Inter-City Junior League. Lister is the lad who has four straight shutouts going for him in the junior circuit.

IN DISTRICT LOOP

Cornell replies with five players who cavort in the District League—Dennis Somner, Curt Clarke, Bob Walker, Ken Meadows and Ralph Storey.

It will be Mount View's first appearance in the city final since 1961. For Tyees, Friday marks the sixth straight time they have been in the final. They won last year's playoff by upsetting heavily-favored Oak Bay, 3-2.

Game time Friday is 3:15.

Awarding of Games Surprises Maritimes

HALIFAX (UPI) — The twin cities of Halifax and Dartmouth, N.S., were "surprised" they were awarded the Canadian Summer Games for 1969.

The announcement of the awarding of the games to the Maritime centres was made in Montreal Tuesday.

Newly-elected Mayor of Halifax Allan O'Brien said: "Nobody counted on getting" the Games as the eastern bid was "made within the last month."

O'Brien said he is hopeful for financial aid from the Nova Scotia government in making the games a complete success, as well as their already promised moral and advisory support.

One of the major problems, apart from Olympic Games-sized facilities, was accommodation. This, said the mayor, has been pretty well settled.

Accommodation for athletes and associated personnel will be housed in the sprawling Dalhousie University quarters, said O'Brien, with present hotels, motels and camping sites preparing for the influx.

Planning and preparation for the Games will cost Halifax and Dartmouth an estimated $950,000. This tab will be shared by the two centres, with the hope of financial aid from the provincial coffers.

All operating costs will be covered by the Federal government.

Two of the other major Canadian centres that lost out to the Maritime bid for the games were Vancouver and Winnipeg.

Clancy's Goal Sinks Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — A goal by Terry Clancy with less than four minutes remaining gave Rochester Americans a 3-2 victory over Quebec Aces in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night.

The victory was Rochester's fourth against three losses and moved them to within one point of Pittsburgh Hornets, who hold down top spot in the league's Western Division.

The loss was the first in eight games for the Aces.

NEW COMPACT: DART By DODGE

Dart is an altogether new kind of compact. It's small enough to be a compact; big enough to be by Dodge. Dart's 111-inch wheelbase is the biggest in its class. You see, Dart says owning a compact doesn't mean giving up things. Like big room, luxury, performance and comfort. Dart gives you another thing that other compacts don't in '67 . . . a choice of 2-door hardtop and a convertible. Just about the only thing compact about Dart is its price. See Dart. The compact Dodge is proud to put its name on.

THREE YOUTHS FINED IN HALLOWEEN MELEE

DUNCAN—Five youths appeared in court here Tuesday as a result of what RCMP described as a "melee" in the downtown area Halloween night.

Thomas Douglas Gell and Larry Edward Romuld were fined $150 each for assaulting a police officer by throwing eggs. Rolf Haxthow was fined $75 for obstructing a police officer.

Stephen Timothy Chang was remanded without plea and Allan Roy Nikirk pleaded not guilty and was also remanded. Both were charged with assault.

CALL FOR VOTE

LRB Picketted By Pulp Union

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Labor Relations Board office here was picketed Tuesday by 27 members of the Pulp and Papers Workers of Canada.

The pickets, including 16 women, carried signs calling for a vote by the 1,000 workers of the Harmac pulp mill near Nanaimo on whether they wanted to be represented by the break-away PPWC or by the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

The Harmac workers are represented now by the international union and the LRB recently turned down a PPWC bid for decertification.

"All we want is a vote," said Orville Braaten, an executive member of the Canadian union. "This we're being denied."

JUROR FINED FOR DRINKING DURING RECESS

Mrs. Justice Craig Monroe examined the juror at 2:30 p.m. and adjourned for an hour the trial of A. V. Forsberg, charged with seven counts of breaking and entering.

At 3:30 p.m. the juror, whose name was ordered not published, was fined and warned not to drink before 10 a.m. today when the trial resumed.

School Bus Service Protested

School bus transportation in Sooke school district is a headache for officials, a worry for parents, and the cause of a long day's travelling for many children.

A six-year-old girl with a kidney ailment has to leave home at 7 in the morning and does not get home until 5 p.m.

Parents who live on Becher Bay Indian reserve are asking the school board to have the bus go right into the reserve instead of stopping at the end of Becher Bay Road. They say this would save the children a 40-minure walk to the bus.

WALKS MILE

Mrs. Gillette Chips says her six-year-old daughter Leona has to walk a mile to get the bus and is often soaked in wet weather before she gets to school. It is a worry for Mrs. Chips because Leona has a kidney problem. And when Leona arrives at school, says Mrs. Chips, she has to wait outside for an hour before classes.

BUCK KILLED

RCMP Warns Drivers About Deer on Road

SHAWNIGAN LAKE—A deer was killed when struck Tuesday night by a car driven by Ken Milne of Duncan.

Milne was driving home on the Trans-Canada Highway when he hit the buck about a mile north of Mill Bay.

The collision broke both headlights on Milne's car and pushed in the radiator.

Constable Ed Mantik, Shawnigan RCMP, said today the accident should serve as a warning to drivers.

He said an average of four deer a month are struck on the stretch of highway between Mill Bay and the summit of the Malahat.

In a second accident in the district John Rae Hall, Nanaimo, early this morning ran his car into a boathouse.

Hall was travelling on Old Victoria Road when he lost control on a curve, struck a telephone pole and veered through the wall of Hamilton's boathouse.

BURRARD INDIAN MAKES CANOE FOR MALAHATS

He's the Friendliest of Enemies

By DON DINGWALL

The Malahat band was coast champion for three successive years form 1949 to 1951. Chief Daniels wants to see history repeat itself.

The result of their pow-pow was the company donation of two logs from its Jordan River operation.

Vincent and Melvin Harry selected and felled the two cedars.

Butler Bros. loaded the logs out of the woods, and A. J. Simard & Sons, Mill Bay, hauled the logs to the Malahat big house on Mill Bay.

Using a power saw, an axe and an adze, Herbert George fashioned the classic lines of the canoe in 30 days.

He remembers, before the days of power saws, when the job would have taken eight months.

The canoe is only 31 inches wide at the centre and when dried out will weigh about 350 pounds.

Mr. George said spruce and pine have been tried for building canoes but cedar is easier to work and maintain, and it is lighter.

North Vancouver has won the war canoe racing honors for the past two years so it is with mixed feelings Mr. George looks forward to next season.

The Malahat band is only 100 strong — men, women and children. Chief Daniels said: "We will probably have to train a combined crew."

If Malahat men are joined by oarsmen from North Vancouver, Mr. George will be able to cheer them to victory with a clear conscience.

FINAL TOUCHES are being put on this 54-foot Indian war canoe being built for the Malahat tribe by Herbert George, of Burrard Inlet. Using a power saw, an axe and an adze it has taken a month to finish the classic outline of the racing canoe, which is only 31 inches wide at the centre and when dry will weigh 350 pounds.

Her Voice Rang Out For Victory

By ELIZABETH FORBES

The dictionary defines memory as "the faculty of remembering."

In other words to each individual is given the power to store away what has been learned or experienced over the years and then, presented with a certain set of circumstances, to recall those things and to bring them into sharp focus again.

Forbes

This happened to me a few days ago when I read of the passing of Winnifred Lugrin Fahey, whose career in music went back to the days when I was young.

Stored away in my memory was an event that took place 48 years ago. It came to life again as I thought of this talented woman.

Judging from published facts, Mme. Fahey must have been in her mid-30s then. She was tall, well figured, fine featured and with a wealth of long hair combed in a soft pompadour and rolled loosely at the nape of her neck.

She had a glorious singing voice. It was strong, vibrant and so powerful that when she stood on the steps of the Parliament Buildings to sing — as sometimes happened — it was said she could be heard far up Government Street.

That is the memory I have of her on Nov. 11, 1918, a day fated to pass down the ages as heralding the end of the First World War.

You must remember there were few if any, radios at that time and certainly no television sets. To know what was happening, people gathered in front of newspaper offices to read hand-printed window bulletins prepared from reports that came in over the telegraph wires.

★ ★ ★

On that particular day I stood with a group of young friends in a crowd that huddled expectantly outside the Victoria Daily Times (then at the corner of Broad and Fort Streets.)

It was a silent crowd. A crowd that did not mill and stamp about but a crowd that grew with every impatient moment. All eyes were on the windows.

Suddenly there was excited movement in the Times office. A kindly-faced man wearing heavy rimmed eyeglasses smiled and waved. Then, a young girl held a sheet of newsprint for all to see. Across it, in great black letters, she had printed — "Peace — All Hostilities Have Ceased."

As the windows filled with more and more bulletins, the crowd increased. It spread up Broad street in the direction of what today is the T. Eaton store (then David Spencer Ltd.)

★ ★ ★

Now everyone was shouting, talking, laughing and slapping each other on the back. A few were crying.

Through this milling, excited mob, a wheel-length at a time, came a long grey automobile, with its hood down.

In the back of that car was Mme. Fahey. A cape was thrown hastily over her shoulders. Her head was bare and her hair shone in the pale November light. Seated around her were sailors and soldiers.

The car stopped near the David Spencer store. Then this woman with the glorious voice stood up and clear and strong, came the deep rich notes of song.

Cheering died down. Every eye turned and every voice was still. No one moved as she sang, her head thrown back and her eyes on the sky.

★ ★ ★

First it was "Land of Hope and Glory" and, as men removed their hats and women bowed their heads, "Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow."

By then all windows on the Broad Street side of the big store were filled with employees who leaned far out and dropped on the crowd below, hundreds of tiny flags of all the allied nations.

The car moved on and the singing was repeated on many other streets as people rushed into town to celebrate the end of war.

Next week we mark another Nov. 11. Remembrance Day we call it now.

So it seems fitting that today I share with you my memory of a well-loved musician who through her glorious voice and her untiring work in musical circles, has left much to add to the culture of the city she loved and that she called home.

Central Garbage Dump Favored by Engineers

Municipal engineers and the senior medical health officer for Greater Victoria would like to bring garbage disposal under regional district control.

They would also like to see one central garbage dump administered by the municipalities rather than by private firms.

The two recommendations were revealed Tuesday when Reeve Hugh Curtis, Saanich, presented the engineer's report to the monthly meeting of the Intermunicipal Committee.

In presenting the report Reeve Curtis said the municipalities had to face the fact that whatever steps were taken to improve the garbage disposal system would cost money.

"Anything we do will cost more," he said. "But we are not really going to improve the situation until we control the dump by removing it from the hands of private operation."

At present the dumps are controlled and operated by private firms who pick up approximately 50 per cent of their operating costs from salvage operations.

One of the strongest recommendations in the official report is that in future, salvage be prohibited to allow the dump operator to concentrate on efficient burning.

But Reeve Alan Cox, Oak Bay, said he was by no means sure that municipal employees could operate the dump any better than private companies.

"I am not prepared to accept that private operation cannot operate the dump as well as the municipalities," he said.

"I would at least, before we put somebody out of business, like to see if they can do the job as we want it done."

METHOD COSTLY

In the engineers report incineration was listed as the obviously best solution to the problem, but it was stressed that the cost of proper incineration equipment would be excessive.

The engineers and Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread made four solid recommendations to improve the existing problem:

- That garbage disposal facilities be considered on a regional basis with one central facility.
- That the facilities be owned and operated by the regional district or some other form of government.
- That pending acquisition by the regional district salvage operations be prohibited.
- That if the regional authority takes over garbage disposal the problem be a subject of constant review and improvement until smokeless incineration can replace the present system.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow pointed out that to prohibit salvage from which the private firms obtain 50 per cent of their revenue would mean a 100 per cent increase in garbage disposal costs to the municipalities.

The matter will be studied by individual councils before a final decision is made.

League To Honor Martin

Premier Bennett and national party leader Robert Thompson will address the B.C. Social Credit League's annual convention Friday in Vancouver.

Mr. Bennett will speak before the noon break and Mr. Thompson will speak after lunch. League officers for 1967 will be elected in the evening.

The convention will continue Saturday with discussion of 81 resolutions, speeches by MPs. Bert Leboe and Alex Patterson and a banquet honoring retiring Health Minister Eric Martin.

Annual meeting of the league's women's auxiliary will precede the convention Thursday.

Canada-Jamaica Pact

OTTAWT (CP) — Canada and Jamaica Monday signed two loan agreements making $1,300,000 available interest-free to Jamaica for purchase of Canadian equipment to help accelerate its development program. The loans will enable Jamaica to buy technical equipment for a youth training scheme and help modernize the island's public works department.

THROUGH CMHC

Private Loans Still Available

A winter freeze on speculative building loans has Victoria contractors worried.

But Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. still has money for private dwelling construction, the local office said today.

Builders will have to rely on private orders, or else take out private mortgages for themselves in order to keep busy through the usually quieter months for the construction industry.

But whereas CMHC interest is 6¾ per cent, private loans are a point or more higher, leaving many speculative builders reluctant to go into private financing.

Unemployment in the construction trades and higher prices for real estate transactions are forecast as a result of the CMHC ban, according to Esquimalt - Saanich MP George Chatterton and Victoria Home Builders' Association president Frank Thorne.

Mr. Thorne said fewer than 50 per cent of contractors who sought CMHC financing had got loans.

Mr. Chatterton's main criticism was directed to the labor department, which he said indicated money for speculative building would be available.

The normal pattern for release of such funds is once a year, in August or September, and this year's allotment has been made.

Prayers Tonight For Gardener

Prayers will be said at 7:30 p.m. today in the Queen 'of Peace Church, Esquimalt Road, for Percy Shaw, a nurseryman and gardner at the Empress Hotel for 20 years. Mass will be celebrated Thursday at 9 a.m.

He died Saturday. He was 72.

He is survived by the widow, Josephine and daughter, Mrs. Peggy Merrett of Victoria.

Interment will be in Veterans Cemetery.

NO NUMBERS ON HOMES

Fred Durrand, municipal clerk, told council the fire department's ambulance has difficulty locating homes because they don't have numbers or are placed in an obscure position.

"Some house numbers are hidden from view by bushes or trees," he said.

Council will look into the matter.

Reeve Gordon Lee said a meeting will be held Nov. 16 to discuss a centennial project. Delegates from community and recreational organizations will attend.

Arthur Mayse

Among the outgrown institutions which our culture has perversely chosen to enshrine, there is none more likely to fetch a sentimental sigh than the Little Red Schoolhouse. It was, we are assured, the fountainhead of all true learning, which was imparted by a dedicated teacher for a stipend of $400, a hindquarter of beef and a sack of turnips each year.

Well, it's an amiable folk-myth, and I really hate to shoot holes in it. But as a veteran of several Little Red Schoolhouses, I can assure you they left much to be desired.

There was, for instance, the frozen ink bottle that exploded when the rusty old pot-bellied stove dispensed heat enough to melt the frost on the windows. To these you can add the slates that squealed like tail-twisted pigs, the confusion of three or more grades jammed in a room, the summer heat and the autumn mud, and the primitive lighting that could never quite cope with November's lowering days.

I will not fault the teachers. They were of their generation, which held firm beliefs about spared rods and spoiled children. Then as now, they did their best with the materials to hand, and no doubt the forward-thinking looked ahead to a time when the teacher's lot would be a great deal easier.

★

That it is today in some respects, no one can honestly deny. Except in the outpost schools, of which Canada still has her share, no board would dream of asking its teachers to double as janitors.

Teachers get paid a lot more, too; but despite all changes, the job remains both hard and demanding.

For a start, we might note that living costs have climbed at a rate rarely matched by teachers' salary raises.

Consider, also, that a permanent teaching certificate comes much harder than it used to. As a matter of fact, the teacher who hopes to advance in his profession must train indefinitely — a fact overlooked by critics who point to those long summer vacations with pay.

Very many teachers sweat out their 'free' months at university summer school. Since they are paid on a 10-month basis, they must finance July and August from their savings, a necessity which in the case of a family head, requires a stern juggling of funds.

Add to these demands a sloughing off upon the schools of various responsibilities once assumed by the parent; top the load with a work-day that consumes part or all of the evening plus a bite out of the weekend; and the teacher emerges as a man or woman whose load is heavier than most.

The points I've listed are part of the total of a modern teacher, and — except for this matter of lagging salaries — are taken in stride.

However, if you care to enquire, I think you will find a deeper grievance among teachers than pay scales by no means commensurate with the vital service performed.

The over-crowded classroom is one. No teacher can get the best out of a class of 40 or more children. The too-large class puts a very severe limit on badly-needed individual instruction.

Nor are we spending enough on a per-child basis for teaching materials and aids. I could name you teachers who have put hundreds of dollars into such equipment as tape recorders and duplicators in order that their pupils may be adequately served.

What I've been telling you here adds up to a bleak fact which isn't going to be altered by a refusal to face it. We are going to have to spend much more than our already considerable outlay if we wish our children to receive the best in education.

In the complex world that awaits them, only the best will serve . . . and if we hope to provide it, we'd better get rid, once and for all, of the Little Red Schoolhouse mentality.

LORD LOUIS MAY BE SENT TO STANLEY PARK ZOO

The 101-year-old bird's guardian—a city lawyer who wants to remain anonymous—said Tuesday "suitable alternatives" to his present abode are being studied.

He said the last of the important parrots in the house (thought to be Louis' companion Maudie) died a short time ago.

"Except for a pheasant or two he's alone there," the lawyer said. "And the cost of keeping him is mounting."

A move to Stanley Park is being discussed, he said.

Louis is the sole obstruction between bequests to the Royal Jubilee Hospital and the Red Cross Society. He reigns supreme in a big white house on Courtney Street, considered one of the most valuable pieces of property in the city.

He was owned by Miss Victoria Wilson, a spinster who died in 1949 and stipulated in her will that Louis live out his days on the estate.

She also willed the macaw must receive his daily tot of brandy. Her manservant Wah Wong, was to care for Louis.

He says the hospital could use the money and it irks him to see the estate being depleted.

(The hospital and Red Cross already have received $100,000 from the estate, says hospital administrator George Masters.)

Mr. Wurtele wonders which is more important—parrots or people?

He said the whole Louis episode is embarrassing to Victoria.

"It makes us look like a backwater," he said.

He said money is being wasted.

"The estate is being eroded and I am afraid there will be nothing left for the hospital."

The estate was about $60,000 but has been reduced to about $20,000. It takes $4,000 annually to maintain Louis.

Nothing can be done as long as he lives—and parrots have been known to live until 200.

Meanwhile, while the dark gathers at the top of his stairs, Louis perches pretty.

He has yet to be heard from.

Mock Trial Story Called 'Substantially Correct'

'Never Said a Word'—Jayne; Off-Color Goings-On Denied

A senior city official said today Tuesday's story on the Sunday visit of Jayne Mansfield to the Greater Victoria criminal court was "substantially correct".

The statement was made in the face of an outright denial in Vancouver by Miss Mansfield that she had staged a "trial" of one of her pet chihuahuas during a brief visit to the courtroom.

Miss Mansfield said she "only sat in the magistrate's chair for a few minutes, and then only because the deputy chief of police invited me to. I never said a word."

NOTHING IMPROPER

Deputy Police Chief Ray Maitland also denied that anything improper took place during the brief visit to the court.

"I'm a senior officer and I was there. Nothing of impropriety went on in my presence," he said.

While refusing to comment on the latest developments acting city manager William Hooson confirmed that a verbal report on the incident was given to him with considerable concern Monday morning by building superintendent John Marshall.

Mr. Hooson also confirmed that he had passed on the report to elected officials.

Asked this morning to confirm or deny Tuesday's Times story, Mr. Hooson declined to give a definite answer.

"I don't think a trial took place per se," he said.

Asked if one of Miss Mansfield's dogs was charged with sexual impropriety, Mr. Hooson answered: "I have no comment on that at present."

SHOCKED

Interviewed Monday by two Times' reporters Mr. Marshall said he was shocked by Miss Mansfield's actions during her courtroom visit.

He thought it proper to report the entire matter verbally to Mr. Hooson.

At the time of the incident Mr. Marshall said he was too shocked to protest although he did recover sufficiently to suggest that the party move on to other parts of the building.

In the first interview Mr. Marshall said he was "thoroughly disillusioned" by the entire incident.

'LITTLE ABOVE'

"If they want to have a monkey court down there, (in the United States) all well and good," he said. "But we Canadians look on our courts as being a little above others."

Mr. Marshall said he regarded the entire event as a publicity gimmick in bad taste.

"Anyone seriously interested in the courts doesn't ridicule them," he said.

Miss Mansfield has professed a serious interest in penology and court procedures.

Senior Magistrate William Ostler has called for a full investigation of the affair and has promised that it will be pressed to the full.

Snow Tire, Chain Signs Due on V.I.

Vancouver Islanders may see highway signs requiring chains or snow tires for the first time this winter.

Highways Minister P.A. Gaglardi, in an annual pre-winter warning, today said that section 198 of the Motor-Vehicle Act will be used again this year "with added emphasis . . . on Vancouver Island in the event of sudden and severe winter snow storms or ice conditions."

The section enables his department to make snow tires or chains mandatory equipment for cars along posted sections of highways.

BAD YEARS

The signs are common place in the Fraser Canyon, Rogers Pass and other mountainous areas but will be used, when necessary, on the Island "because we have had a couple of bad years of snowfall which has caused quite a bit of trouble," a department offical explained.

Mr. Gaglardi's press release said the regulation will not be put into effect unless hazards exist and will be rescinded as soon as conditions permit. It will be publicized in advance of imposition.

The Malahat and some sections of road up-Island are the most likely areas that will be affected.

FINE, JAIL

The regulation will be enforced by RCMP and violations can bring penalties up to a maximum of $500 fine and three months in jail.

Mr. Gaglardi said his department will issue daily road reports again this winter and he urged all drivers to have their vehicles winterized and equipped with a shovel, sand or old blanket to help give traction when stuck.

THE WEATHER

It Really Wasn't Much Of a Month

And a cool, dull, wet, windy time was had by all.

Victoria's weather statistics for the month of October were down for temperatures and hours of sunshine and up for rainfall.

Weatherman Alan McQuarrie's office reports the month's 3.08 inches of rain was .23 inches above the normal. Measurable rain fell 15 days, or one day more than it usually does in October here.

The mean temperature of 50.8 degrees was 1.3 degrees below the normal of 51.8 degrees.

68.1 WARMEST

The hottest it got was 68.1 degrees, on the 14th. The coldest, taken near the grass, was 33.4 degrees on the 13th.

Total hours of bright sunshine were 118.6, or 22.1 hours under sunny Victoria's standard.

It was a little windier than normal, the average being 9.5 miles per hour as compared to 9.2 mph.

There was for a brief and blustering moment on the 20th, a wind of 57 miles per hour.

Firm Hopes To Stimulate Broad Mall

Investment House Begins Expansion

A national investment firm is doing a major renovation of its Victoria branch as a stimulus to Broad Street mall urban renewal.

Pitfield Mackay Co. Ltd. in an expansion and face-lifting operation expresses confidence in the investment business potential and in the future of downtown Victoria as the financial and business core of the city.

"This expansion is in line with the belief of our firm's executive that Vancouver Island has the greatest investment business potential of any area in Canada," said Pitfield's Victoria manager, William A. Du Moulin.

"The move shows our confidence that the downtown core will remain the business and financial heart of the urban area.

Follow Suit

"In this way it falls in with civic plans for urban renewal via Broad Street mall development, and we hope our action will stimulate others to follow suit," he said.

Broad Street is designated as a pedestrian mall between Pandora and Broughton, with businesses oriented to the walk-in trade, making it suitable for commercial and financial houses, boutiques and associated firms.

Plan Delayed

Civic development of the street has been delayed in favor of prority to arterial traffic and Johnson Street parking projects.

General contractor G. H. Wheaton Ltd. is renovating the interior of Pitfield's offices at 1220 Broad, adding about 1,000 square feet of adjoining property for 2,500 square feet of office space, and rebuilding the facade.

Architects Wade, Stockdill and Armour have designed an attractive red cedar and old brick exterior using black anodized aluminum door and window frames.

Just inside will be carpeted executive and sales offices and remaining in the rear will be the board room where stock market quotations are received and posted.

Dec. 15 Completion

Pitfield's, which established in Victoria in 1954 with purchase of the local firm of H. A. Humber Ltd., offers complete investment service including direct wire connection with New York and all major Canadian financial centres.

It provides quotation service at all major Canadian stock exchanges and has become one of Canada's leading underwriters and stockbrokers.

Fast Start Made On Family Club

Sod Turned To Roar Of Bulldozer

The sod was turned this morning for a new home for the Racquet Club of Victoria, near the university.

Construction will start almost immediately on the first phase, which must be completed in 185 days with the "family" club planning to start operations May 1.

This will cost about $750,000 and will provide a regulation-size skating rink, which will also be used for curling until the curling rink is completed; a five-court badminton hall which will be large enough for indoor tennis; three squash courts and nine tennis courts as well as dining area, lounge, locker rooms and offices.

SWIM POOL

As the membership of the club grows, an enclosed Olympic-size swimming pool will be added.

Further plans include a six-sheet curling rink, grass tennis courts and such other items as a sauna bath.

The club is now located at Fort Street and Foul Bay Road but sold this property to purchase the new five-acre site in Saanich.

COMPLIMENTED

Reeve Curtis complimented the club on locating in Saanich and said the area is due for a "major transformation" with the Centennial Stadium, the expansion of the university and road improvements.

The Racquet Club of Victoria has about 450 members and anticipates an increase with the start of construction of new quarters.

Family memberships cost $500 but this will go up shortly to $600.

Major Tax Battle To Supreme Court

A multi-million-dollar tax battle between the provincial government and MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd. will be decided by the Supreme Court of Canada in a rubber match.

The nation's Supreme Court has given the government leave to appeal a decision by the B.C. Appeal Court, provincial surveyor of taxes J. O. Moore said today.

Lloyd Mackenzie, QC, representing the attorney-general's department, said he will file the appeal documents this week but does not expect the hearing will be held before June because of the Ottawa court's commitments.

ONE EACH

Both sides have won one round each in the courts since Mr. Moore assessed a 39,000-acre parcel of timber land bought by the company from the E and N Railway at a bonus tax of $8.5 million.

The case is considered a test of the amount of bonus taxes — under the special E and N Land Tax Act which levies a flat 5 per cent tax on the actual value of any purchases within the land belt — which the government may obtain from a huge deal between the CPR and two forestry firms in 1964.

SOUGHT RULING

MacMillan-Bloedel started the legal battle when it sought a court ruling declaring illegal a government plan of assessing each parcel in the transaction separately because the timber had to be cruised for the first time on the previously tax-exempt properties.

However, it lost the first round when Mr. Justice Victor Dryer validated the government procedure. An appeal to the B.C. Appeal Court reversed the decision and the court also declined to give its leave for further appeals by the government.

Mr. Mackenzie and Ottawa lawyer William Burke-Robertson, QC, were successful this week in obtaining the federal court's permission to make a final appeal.

ROLLING UP RESULTS is Greater Victoria's United Appeal with 66 per cent of this year's objective received to date. Campaign is running slightly behind last year's which brought in 66.4 per cent by this point in the Appeal. Only two cities, Ottawa and Edmonton, have gone over the top and Vancouver lags behind Victoria with 64.8 per cent donated by last night.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Ray Mahaffey, 1176 Dunsterville, was fined $100 on a charge of careless driving when he appeared in central court today.

He was the driver of a truck which struck a car stopped on the Trans-Canada Highway. The car caught fire and burned.

Ask The Times

Q. Is the French Foreign Legion still operational? If so, how can I join? G. R. L.

A. The French Foreign Legion still exists, but in greatly reduced strength since the Algerian war, the nearest thing to a battlefield being a training camp in Corsica. Volunteers aged 18 to 40 years serve for five year terms. All criminals other than murderers are safe from prosecution while serving.

While a search for a Legion headquarters address proved unavailing, a safe bet would be to write to: Regiments Etrangers, Ministere de l'Armee, Paris, France.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

City Sculptress Off to Oregon To Cast Bronze Figure for Expo

Elza Mayhew, the Victoria sculptress, leaves here today for Eugene, Ore., to cast the bronze figure that will be the centrepiece in the Sanctuary at Expo '67.

Mrs. Mayhew was given the commission for the work by the Canadian government.

It will be housed at next year's World Exhibition in Montreal inside the Sanctuary, a place for meditation.

The Sanctuary is not an overtly religious place; it will have no cross, no Star of David.

But both the Sanctuary, and Mrs. Mayhew's sculpture, are designed to create an atmosphere where visitors will meditate — and pray if they feel like it.

The styrofoam model of the sculpture is now completed at Mrs. Mayhew's studio in an old warehouse at 1119 Wharf. She was asked to take on the job 18 months ago.

At first she declined the commission because her ideas did not agree with those of the Expo architects. But they compromised and almost a year ago she began "the period of gestation" to create the sculpture.

Although it is now carved, the most technically difficult stage is still ahead. Mrs. Mayhew is one of the few sculptors who actually casts her own work, assisted when necessary by a few strong men.

She is a small woman and the men who work in the Eugene casting foundry are amazed that she can do their work.

It will take her a month to do the casting. And then she will hire a truck and drive it to bring the bronze back to Victoria for finishing.

Only then will pictures be released showing what the figure looks like.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Today We Think Old Myths About Pregnancy Ridiculous

As old as history are the myths and misconceptions about pregnancy and childbirth! Today we think of most of them as ridiculous and laugh at them. However, many people still cling to, or at least wonder about some of these. For instance:

Lowman

Myth — Many folks still believe that if a baby is carried high in the abdomen, it is a boy.

Fact — In certain phases of every pregnancy, the baby's position is higher or lower. No single pregnancy is all high or low. Position bears no relation to a baby's sex.

Myth — Teen-agers have the healthiest pregnancies.

Fact — The best age seems to be between 20 and 30, although more than 80 per cent of women over 40 deliver perfectly normal first babies.

Fact — Routine dental work may be done during pregnancy, even necessary extractions. Long, tiring sessions should be postponed if possible. Every pregnant woman should visit her dentist to have her teeth examined and cleaned professionally at least twice during pregnancy.

Myth — Babies were bigger in grandmother's day.

Fact — Years ago, babies were born at home and scales were scarce and inaccurate. Doctors estimated the baby's weight, without scales, and often guessed the weight a little high to please the proud parents.

Myth — There is no way to tell a baby's sex before it is born.

Fact — For all practical purposes, this is true, but I understand that there is a difficult, impractical, expensive, and rarely-done test which is accurate. This is called the sex chromatin test.

It is thought that a baby's heartbeat indicates its sex. If the heartbeat is more than 140 times a minute, it is a girl, if less than that, a boy. This belief probably comes from the fact that large babies usually have slower heart-beats than smaller ones, and boys are usually larger than girls. Most physicians tell prospective mothers that they guess wrong as often as correctly.

Fact — Long, hot baths are fatiguing. Short, warm ones are fine. Your doctor may prefer showers or sponge baths during the last few weeks of pregnancy.

If you would like to have my new booklet, "Don't Blame Your Baby," which gives you preventive and corrective information about saving your figure, as well as much more helpful advice than I could crowd into this week's columns, send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for this booklet. SHOPPING GUIDE

Sets of Little Pans Have Great Purpose

By Penny Saver

Weekends in the Saver household are as haphazard as ever now that the season is in full swing. Any type of dinner-time round-up is impossible, especially on Saturdays. We've tried having a "free-for-all" in the kitchen, in which whoever is hungry makes himself dinner whenever he's home. This lasted only one day as it took ages to clean up the aftermath. The kitchen looked like a battleground after everyone had come and gone.

Our gourmets have protested against eating out of cans on those busy days. With the help of individual pans, I found a way to serve a complete dinner with no extra work at all.

These small dishes are just big enough for one person. What I do is make a stew or casserole, fill up these dishes and pop them in the freezer. When the family comes home, just put them in the oven. The dishes won't break or crack with the temperature changes.

This idea is perfect for late-comers, who otherwise may have to eat a meal that has been "warming" in the oven for hours.

These dishes sell by the set of four for $7.95 in one store. One dish, then, serves as a storage container, baking dish and serving dish. What could be easier on a busy day?

Some of my dishes discolored slightly after I'd used them for quite a long time. I learned that this is the result of mineral deposits that build up on the surface.

The simplest way to remove stains from these pots is to fill them with water above the discolored part, add one-half cup of vinegar and bring to a gentle boil for 15 to 20 minutes. This loosens the deposit, which can then be removed with any non-metal cleaner. For stubborn stains, try the above method, and then rinse and fill with water again, adding a household bleach. Heat until the color disappears.

Individual pans are a boon to every serving need. Want to know where Penny found them? Give her a call at 382-3131.

Brentwood To Have Bazaar

You name it, they'll have it! The annual Christmas bazaar of the Afternoon and Evening Branches of Brentwood Memorial Chapel will offer everything to be desired when it gets under way, Saturday, at 2 p.m. in the Women's Institute Hall at Brentwood. Continuing until 4:30 p.m. it will feature stalls of everything from home cooking to Christmas decorations, including a special stall of children's treasures. Among the attractions will be booths of fancy-work, aprons, plants, bulbs, white elephants and surprise packages.

Officiating at the opening will be Archdeacon E. H. Maddocks. Guests will be greeted by presidents, Mrs. J. A. Macfarlane and Mrs. W. N. Hitchin, and Mrs. Maddocks.

CLUB CALENDAR

Annual meeting and election of officers, Ladies' Division of the Gorge Vale Golf Club, Monday at 8 p.m. in the clubhouse. All women members are reminded to attend.

Bingo game, Women's Auxiliary to Gorge Road Hospital, this evening at 8 p.m., at the hospital.

All-Day Event

Next Saturday will be a busy day for members of the Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1 as they work at the group's annual bazaar, to be held in the IOOF Hall, 1323 Douglas Street from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

District deputy president Mrs. W. Foubister will officially open the tea at 2 p.m. Guests will be received by noble grand Mrs. V. Rossiter and vice-grand Mrs. B. Daniels.

Stalls will offer a variety of raffles, aprons, candy, home cooking, knitted goods, fancy-work, white elephants, a penny sale, novelties and miscellaneous articles. A door prize will be another feature.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bertrand, 1885 Quamichan Avenue, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Muriel Mary, to Mr. Zolden Banman, only son of Mrs. Eva Banman, Porcupine Plains, Sask. The wedding will take place on Thursday, November 10, in Fairfield United Church. Miss Bertrand, a former Miss Victoria princess, is this year's Miss British Columbia Hospitality. CLUBWOMEN'S NEWS

Realize $120—The sum of $120 was realized from the recent rummage sale, held by the Women's Auxiliary to Gorge Road Hospital. This was announced by treasurer Mrs. C. Douglas at the group's recent meeting in the hospital. Mrs. E. R. Owen presided. Plans were discussed for the Christmas bazaar, to be held on Dec. 1 in the hospital, and Mrs. A. G. Hamilton and Mrs. W. Green were named conveners.

CWL UNDERTAKING

Annual Fall Bazaar

The Catholic Women's League of the Queen of Peace Council will hold its annual fall bazaar next Saturday in the parish hall, 849 Old Esquimalt Road. It will be opened by Fr. Lewis McLellan at 2 p.m.

There will be many attractive stalls, including home cooking, sewing, white elephants, Lucky Seven and a fish pond that's bound to attract many of the younger set.

There will be several raffles and a tombola, complete with a variety of prizes. An exquisitely outfitted doll that has been seen in many local stores will be raffled during the day.

Afternoon tea will be served, bingo games will be arranged and refreshments will be served during the evening.

Of Personal Interest

TO BE PRESENTED

The first names on the list of 1966 debutantes who will be presented to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes at the annual ball of the United Services Institution of Vancouver Island, to be held at the Empress Hotel on Wednesday, December 7, have been released this week.

Making her social debut will be Miss Catherine Alison Bell, daughter of Mrs. C. S. Bell, 3120 Humber Road, and the late Mr. Bell. A former student at St. Margaret's School, 18-year-old Miss Bell has also studied in Europe, both at the English city of Oxford and in Lausanne, Switzerland. She will be sponsored by Wing. Cmdr. C. J. H. Holms.

Two other names have also been announcd. The first is that of Miss Cecily Edith Mosedale, the 17-year-old daughter of Lt.-Col. W. J. Mosedale and Mrs. Mosedale, 3923 Cumberland Road. Miss Mosedale is a Grade XII student at Mount Douglas Senior Secondary School. She will be escorted by Officer Cadet Robert Ogilvy, RCAF. Also to be presented is Cairine Ash, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ash, now living in Reno, Nevada, and formerly of this city. Miss Ash is a first-year arts student at the University of Victoria and will be escorted by Mr. Donald Mosedale, of the same university. Both Miss Mosedale and Miss Ash will be sponsored by Lt.-Col. Mosedale.

Far East Trip

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Johnstone of Thompson Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Schaddelee of Stanhope Place, left Friday evening by plane for the Far East where they will be attending the International Junior Chamber of Commerce Convention in Hong Kong. En route, the four stopped at Hawaii and Tokyo. They will be returning home on November 13. Mrs. Johnstone is national Jaycee-Ette liaison chairman.

Farewell Party

The staff of the pediatrics department at St. Joseph's Hospital recently gave a farewell party in the Taylor Street home of Miss Lorraine Ratzay in honor of Miss Linda McBride, who will be married this month, and Miss Mary O'Neill, a former staff member who left Victoria on Thursday for Montreal where she will take a post-graduation course in pediatrics at the Montreal Sick Children's Hospital. Each received gifts. Invited to attend were Mrs. C. Squire, Miss Elizabeth Walthers, Mrs. H. Chekivich, Miss Maida Duval, Mrs. D. Gibson, Mrs. M. Grivia, Miss Pam McMillan, Miss May Comer, Miss Jane Eaton, Miss Valerie Edwards, Miss Sheila Yip, Miss Brigette Steinback, Miss Connie Cownden, Mrs. R. Graham, Mrs. M. Shratz, Mrs. A. Molesworth and Mrs. J. Chalmers.

Honor Bride-Elect

Bride-elect Miss Veronica Lawrance, whose marriage takes place November 11, was honored with a shower in the Quadra Street home of Mrs. R. H. Punt. Miss Wendy Punt was co-hostess. Corsages were presented to the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. G. Lawrance; the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. H. Walker, and grandmother, Mrs. W. L. Llewellyn. A decorated basket concealed gifts. Invited guests included Mrs. L. Fletcher, Mrs. G. Girton, Mrs. D. L. Lang, Mrs. J. Gauti, Mrs. L. Mosure, Mrs. H. Sneade, Mrs. C. Just, Mrs. R. Turnbull, Mrs. Nicholls, Mrs. F. Briers, Mrs. D. Mabon, Mrs. O. D. Hyggen, Mrs. D. Landree, Mrs. J. S. McClure, Mrs. R. Moyer, Mrs. E. Fletcher, Mrs. J. McAllister, Mrs. Laura Charlesworth, Mrs. J. E. R. Schoor, the Misses Lorna Dallin, Doris Wormald, Sue Girton and Linda Baldwin.

Luncheon

Baskets of chrysanthemums in autumn shades decorated the Uplands Golf Club, Thursday, when Mrs. P. C. Ferguson and Mrs. Charles Compton entertained at a snack luncheon at noon. There were 60 guests attending.

Sorority Holds a Reception

Twenty-one members received their pins in three separate candlelight ceremonies, held at the annual fall reception of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority in the Victoria Golf Club.

Receiving guests were city council president Mrs. A. Mercer, presidents of local chapters, and Mrs. J. R. Kingham, Mrs. L. H. Morrison, Mrs. W. R. Clark. Among the special guests to receive invitations were the Hon. Nancy Hodges, the Misses Elizabeth Forbes and Susan Mary Fawcett, Mrs. T. H. Johns.

Mrs. D. Ackerman was the officiant of the Nu Phi Mu pledge ritual which was received by the Misses Marlene Dodsworth, Barbara Henry, Patricia Kirby, Jose Mettes, Gai Paul, Judy Harper, Joy Johnstone, Susan Macfarlane, Pamela Morrison, Darlene Rogers and Sue Wilks.

Mrs. B. McNally-Dawes conducted the pledge ritual for Xi Chapter. Receiving the degree were Mrs. Robert Foster, Mrs. Clare Tully, Miss Shirley Wells, Mrs. A. I. Thompsett, Mrs. S. Woods, Mrs. T. Lewis, and Mrs. R. Gallagher.

The ritual of jewels was conducted by Mrs. Kingham. The recipients were Mrs. W. L. Ingram, Miss Heather McFadden, Mrs. S. Thompson and Mrs. N. Wensley.

Mrs. A. Mercer gave the welcome address, paying special tribute to Miss Fawcett who received the sorority city council's scholarship of $100 and the Omicron Chapter's scholarship of $50. Both awards are given annually to a student at the University of Victoria.

Mrs. Ken Bosence welcomed the new Nu Phi Mus. Congratulations to the pledges and ritual of jewels candidates were given by Mrs. J. H. Downard and Mrs P. Hamilton.

DEAR ABBY . . .

This Girl Should Take Hard Look

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 24 and have been on my own for six years. I'm engaged to be married, and the kind of wedding my fiance and I want will cost about $1,500. My mother has offered me $200 towards my wedding, which is the amount she gave my sister for her small wedding, which is all it cost, so you can imagine it was pretty crummy. My fiance says my mother should pay for the kind of wedding we want as she can afford it.

The truth is, my mother and father were divorced and mother is remarried, and she doesn't think her new husband should put on a wedding for ME, and she personally can afford only $200. This is causing trouble between my fiance and me. He says mother can get the money. What can I say?

SOMEWHERE IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Tell your fiance that if HE wants to go into hock up to his fetlocks for a fancy wedding, he can finance it because your mother will not. And I would take a good hard look at the man you are planning to marry, dear. Because if this is a sample of his reasoning, you are in for plenty of storms on the sea of matrimony.

DEAR ABBY: Here is a suggestion for parents to help safeguard their daughters during their courting days. First, make a rule that your daughter cannot go out with a young man unless he comes to the house for you to meet.

When he shows up, the mother should entertain him while the father goes outside and takes down his license number and a good description of his car. Color, model, etc. During the evening, if the daughter has any trouble with him, she could say, "My father took down your license number and will call the police if I am not home at the time they specified." This is foolproof protection for any girl.

DAD

DEAR DAD: And what happens if Jack The Ripper shows up in a taxi?

DEAR ABBY: I am a freshman in college. I am not a wolf but I like to take a girl out on Saturday nights. I found a real cute and interesting girl in one of my classes. We had a few coffee dates and I finally asked her out for Saturday night. She said she promised her mother she wouldn't single date, but if I got her girl friend a date she would go. I did, and we all had a good time.

I asked her again and it was the same story. I have fixed up four of her girl friends with dates, and I still can't get this girl to date me alone. Do you think she is on the level, or is this the way college girls get dates for their friends?

FIXER UPPER

DEAR FIXER: I know how you could find out in a hurry. Quit fixing up her girl friends, and double date with one of your boy friends and a girl of his choice.

Confidential To H.M.: Look at it this way: Hypertension is the price you pay for being a race horse instead of a cow.

DEAR ABBY: I am a man, 58, who is considering marrying a 38-year-old divorcee who has a 13-year-old son. (I lost my wife 4 years ago). If this woman did not have the responsibility of the boy I would marry her tomorrow, but I do not feel up to raising a 13-year-old boy.

All the men I have talked to who have married women with teen-agers have told me that if they had to do it over again, they wouldn't do it. Expense is not a factor. What is your advice? NEGATIVE.

DEAR NEGATIVE: I, too, am negative, but only because you are. Were you to marry this woman and there be discord between you, the boy would be the innocent victim. He deserves better.

DEAR ABBY: Last night something happened to me that is really worth writing home about. I have no home, so I am writing to you because I just have to tell somebody.

I am a cook in a restaurant. A gentleman came back in the kitchen and handed me a $10 bill, saying, "I want to thank you for one of the best meals I have had." Abby, it wasn't the $10 I appreciated as much as his kindness in wanting the cook to know that he was pleased.

I have been cooking for 21 years and that's the nicest thing that has ever happened to me. Yours truly.

FEELING GOOD.

DEAR FEELING: You make me feel good just reading about it. More people should be so thoughtful.

CHEAPER GAS AVAILABLE IN ONTARIO

U.S. Line Best for Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Energy Minister Pepin Tuesday defended the decision to permit a natural gas pipeline to run through the U.S., arguing it will bring cheaper gas to southern Ontario and a greater volume to Northern Ontario.

Mr. Pepin, speaking during an interim money supply debate, said the decision was not simply between good and evil and it provided Canada "the best of two worlds."

He said that critics who want a second pipeline to be all-Canadian were forgetting that nobody has sought permission to build another entirely in this country.

But the agreement with Trans - Canada Pipelines Ltd. contains a commitment that the present Canadian line will be "twinned" starting in 1970, while the benefits of the U.S. route would be available to both Northern and southern Ontario long before.

He said Northern Ontario will get a greater volume of gas from the existing line because the U.S.-routed line will meet more of southern Ontario's demands.

HAS STAYING POWER

Noting Opposition Leader Diefenbaker's criticism about Liberal "continentalism," the energy minister said this fear has existed for 100 years and probably will be present for another 100.

Canada will benefit from the arrangement, if the United States approves, through lower construction costs and increased gas exports that will improve the Canada-U.S. imbalance of payments.

Penalty clauses that would fine Trans-Canada more than $1,000,000 for each infraction of the agreement will protect Canada's interests, he said.

Mr. Pepin's statement was disputed by a New Democrat and by one of the government's back-bench members.

Norman Fawcett (NDP—Nickel Belt) said Canada would be assured of complete control of its natural gas resources only if an all-Canadian route were chosen. This should be done even though it would be more costly, he said.

Robert Andras (L — Port Arthur) urged Mr. Pepin to visit northwestern Ontario and said he is not sure that the region's needs have been guaranteed.

The promised 1970 start on twinning the all-Canadian line might be too late to meet the needs of increasing industrial development, he said.

BLAST RIPS CP TRACK

NELSON (CP)—A miscalculated blast ripped up and buried several sections of CPR track under tons of rock Tuesday, delaying trains for over five hours.

Telephone communications were also cut.

The blast was set off on the Nelson, Taghum Highway reconstruction project, a million dollar project that is providing a new low river-level entrance to Nelson from the west.

600 Experts Discuss Pollution Problems

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. John P. Tully, secretary of the Privy Council committee on water pollution, said today Canada's pollution policies "for the next generation" will evolve from guidelines set at a national pollution conference here.

Mr. Tully, a chemist who has worked on pollution problems for more than 35 years, was speaking in an interview at the five-day pollution conference of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers.

Six hundred experts from a variety of fields have been assembled to establish guidelines on water, air and soil pollution for the council, set up to advise the federal and provincial governments.

Listening in are about 400 decision-makers, such as cabinet ministers, deputy ministers and high-level civil servants.

"There has been no other conference of this kind anywhere in the world at any time in history," Mr. Tully said.

The guidelines would represent the best thoughts of Canada's leading intellectuals.

ACTS AS CONSULTANT

Mr. Tully, former chief oceanographer for the federal government on the Pacific Coast, also acts as a consultant to the chairman of tht fisheries research board of Canada in oceanography and pollution.

He serves as secretary to the Privy Council's pollution committee, established in March to help co-ordinate work on pollution problems between the federal and provincial governments. The committee has already met with Ontario officials and meetings with other provinces will follow the pollution conference here.

Mr. Tully said work for this conference began three years ago when 2,000 experts began preparing papers for possible use as background material. It outranks any world congress he has been in.

The millions of words spoken and written will be distilled into guidelines "printed on not more than 10 double - spaced pages."

The purpose of these guidelines will be to help determine recommendations for government action and "to bring the cost and consequences of air, soil and water pollution to Canadians."

The guidelines, still under discussion, will be presented at the conclusion of the conference Friday.

"I anticipate that this document will govern our policy for the next generation."

All politics aside, he said, no government would dare neglect the recommendations of such a gathering, which he estimated cost about as much to run a day as it costs to run Parliament.

Fluorides Could Help Arteries

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Harvard University researchers say a study indicates water with fluorides may help prevent severe hardening of the arteries.

Five doctors from Harvard's nutrition department conducted the study with two groups of people in North Dakota. Results were published Sunday in The Jounal of the American Medical Association.

Severe calcium deposits in the aorta — the major artery carrying blood from the heart to branch arteries in the body — were less in high fluoride areas, the scientists said.

The research centred on 300 men and women living in southwestern North Dakota where water has a high fluoride content and on 715 persons whose homes are in a low fluoride area of northeastern North Dakota.

In the same issue, the AMA Journal commented editorially on the study, saying fluoride may help keep calcium deposited in the teeth and bones and out of the arteries.

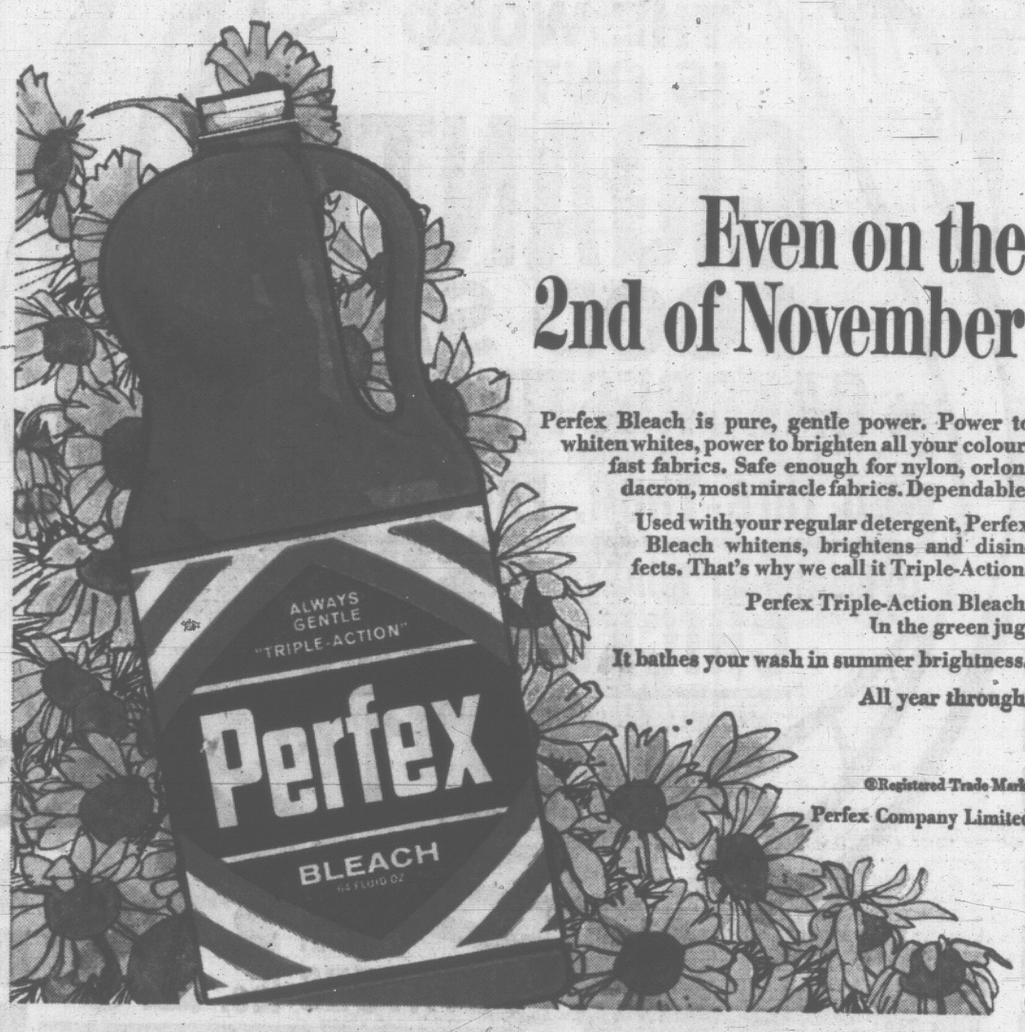

Fluorides have a proven role of cutting tooth decay 60 to 70 per cent, the editorial also said.

TAILOR AND CUTTER EDITOR

U.S. Men World's Worse-Dressed

In a book — "It's a Small, Medium and Out-sized World" which will be published here Nov. 10 — the author says:

"With the U.S. assumption of the mantle of international leadership of the West, the basis of their new look in the '50s and '60 became a kind of exaggerated understatemen'."

He cites black ties, the natural unpadded shoulders of the Ivy League suit, narrow-brimmed hats and black gabardine coats "hitherto sported only by rabbis."

"With the acceptance of cosmic responsibility, Uncle Sam eschewed his star-spangled manner and began to adopt the dullness of Victorian England. The psychology is clear enough — if you wish to be taken seriously, you must first take yourself seriously."

Taylor, editor of the weekly magazine Tailor and Cutter, says that in only one facet does the American male of today differ from the Victorian Englishman.

"The imperial Briton had no guilt complex," says Taylor. "Therefore he had no basic need to be loved. The Englishman honestly regarded as the world's God-given leader and saw only a reflection of providential approval of his relative riches."

Not so the American male.

"Americans came to power parallel with the universal acknowledgment of the tenets of democracy and their relative riches were a perennial source of embarrassment," claims Taylor. "Perforce, they tried to avoid any vulgar indication of it in front of a penurious world, or, alternatively, to convince themselves and the world that the trappings of success did not really matter."

He sums up:

"Thus they finally emerged from the simple Victorian leadership principle of the father figure, and embarked upon an extension of deliberate deshabile. A kind of 'penance for my privileges' uniform during the 1960s established the Americans as the worst-dressed men in the world."

In this connection Taylor cites:

He says the American "it-doesn't-matter" attitude reveals itself in suits of cotton trousers and jacket in which they travel the world "as the most screwed-up citizens of any paramount power."

A final shot:

"Their disregard of protocol, their accelerated tendency to embrace country sport clothes, and the final banality of their buttoned-down shirts — with the buttons deliberately positioned to buckle the collar into simulated negligence — were all an immense apology for the good fortune of being born in God's own country."

BUS MISHAPS KILL 28 IN TURKEY

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)—Two bus accidents in eastern Turkey Monday killed 28 persons and injured 32, police reported.

Nineteen were killed and 15 injured when a bus overturned on a mountain road in the Sivas province. Police said the bus apparently was travelling too fast.

In the other accident nine high school students were killed and 17 injured when two buses collided in the Kayseri province.

Divorce Law Charges Urged In Bar Brief

OTTAWA (CP)—A brief proposing extensive changes in Canada's divorce laws was presented by Canadian Bar Association executive at a meeting of the Parliamentary divorce committee Tuesday.

A. Gordon Cooper of Halifax, CBA national vice-president, said in presenting the brief that the group had been working towards divorce law reform since 1914.

The brief, based on resolutions approved at the association's annual meeting, recommended that grounds for divorce include sodomy, bestiality, conviction on a charge of rape or wilful refusal to consumate the marriage.

Incurable unsoundness of mind would be considered grounds for divorce, "where the afflicted spouse has been continuously under care and treatement for a period of five years."

Desertion for three years or cruelty—"conduct that creates a danger to life, limb or health or . . . is grossly insulting or intolerable" — also were included as grounds in the two-page brief.

A three-year voluntary separation of a couple immediately prior to their filing for divorce would be satisfactory grounds provided there was "no reasonable likelihood" that the pair would live together again and that a divorce decree "will not prove unduly harsh or oppressive to the defendant spouse."

Children Healed Through Card Sales

UNICEF stands for United Nations International Children's Fund. It was once just for emergency relief but now helps feed, clothe and teach children the world over at all times.

A chief source of income for the fund is the sale of UNICEF Christmas cards with pictures done by an international group of artists, — Japanese, Haitian, Lebanese, Swedish, French and others.

A five-card series in this year's UNICEF collection has been done by Eskimo artists on Baffin Island.

The drawings, of caribou, geese, huskies and Eskimo village life, are from stencils which were cut into sealskin by the artists.

Another Canadian painting, entitled Village in the Snow by Group of Seven artist A. Y. Jackson, is featured on another greeting card.

The cards are being sold by the Victoria Committee for UNICEF, at 749 Broughton St., room seven, and are also available through several local high shcool groups.

FEMALE HOPEFULS

Wife Picked To Give George Another Term

LURLEEN
. . . in the family

WASHINGTON (AP) — An auburn - haired former dime-store clerk seems almost certain to become the first woman state governor in 42 years in the Nov. 8 United States elections.

She's Lurleen Wallace, wife of Alabama's retiring racist governor George Wallace, and she doesn't represent much growth in the female role in politics.

Mrs. Wallace, 41, a mother of four, is running openly as a front woman for her husband's continued control of Alabama because the law says he can't run for re-election again.

She is one of 29 women bidding for high office in the elections Nov. 8 — two for governorships, two for the Senate and 25 for the House of Representatives.

Two incumbents are retiring, so that the male grasp of the instruments of political power should remain just as strong, or stronger. There were two in the 100-seat Senate and only one seems likely to be there after Nov. 8. There were 11 in the 435-seat House.

PREFERS WIFELY ROLE

Mrs. Wallace won the Democratic party nomination handily and is expected to trounce her male Republican opponent, although she has never hidden her preference for a role solely as mother and wife.

Wed at 16, she survived an operation for cancer earlier this year and let George do practically all the talking in the campaign.

The other candidates stand firmly on their own feet, however, although the prospects for at least half of the 29 are shaky.

Mrs. Judith White, 28, a school teacher, is the Socialist Worker candidate for the New York governorship but is expected to run well behind her four male opponents who include incumbent Nelson Rockefeller and Franklin Delano Roosevelt Jr.

Back in 1925, Mrs. Miriam Amanda Ferguson, another wife of a retiring governor, won the governorship in Texas. Wyoming elected Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross the same year.

LOOKS A WINNER

Indications are that Republican Senator Margaret Chase Smith, briefly a presidential candidate in 1964, will be a winner in Maine again.

Maurine Neuberger, Oregon Democrat, has retired from the Senate and Ruth M. Briggs, a Republican battling in Rhode Island, looks like a loser. A former Women's Army lieutenant-colonel, she opposes Liberal Democrat Claiborne Pell and while she urges a much tougher line on Viet Nam, she doesn't — in one observer's words — "scare anybody."

British Debaters Win Round

The touring team of Ian Forrester, a 21-year-old law student at Glasgow University, and Lord Ian Douglas-Hamilton, a 24-year-old law student at Edinburgh University, took part in a verbal exchange with Uvic students Nick Lang and Steven Stark.

The upshot of two debates was that it was resolved that party politics is for men without principles and extremism in the defence of liberty is indeed a vice.

In one debate the visitors were paired together and in the other they split up and joined with a Uvic student. Arguing as a team, the Britishers have lost only one debate in their 15 appearances across Canada. That was when they argued at a women's college that women should be kept barefoot, pregnant and in the kitchen.

DEMOCRATS LEVEL CHARGE

GOP Campaign Film 'Distorted'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats charge that a Republican campaign film scheduled for television showing Sunday contains "highly distorted and misleading material."

The charges were made by Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey in a letter Tuesday to the Fair Campaign Practices Committee.

Republicans thanked the Democrats for giving them publicity but contended that a final version of the film has not yet been made.

The committee said only that it has received Bailey's letter.

The film, entitled What's Going on Here and narrated by Toronto - born actor Raymond Massey, is scheduled to be televised on the NBC network.

Film clips are said to include shots of American soldiers being fired on in South Viet Nam and of rioting in the streets of American cities. At one point, President Johnson is quoted as saying, "We only have inflation under the Democrats."

NIXON PREDICTS

Former vice - president Richard M. Nixon said in Bloomington, Minn., that if Republicans unseat Minnesota Governor Karl F. Rolvaag and Senator Walter F. Mondale, both Democrats, it would be a very serious blow to Vice-President Hubert M. Humphrey's chances of staying on the ticket in 1968.

Nixon also forecast big victory margins in the Nov. 8 election for three men mentioned—along with Nixon—as possible Republican presidential nominees in 1968. He said Ronald Reagan would become governor of California, Charles H. Percy would win the Illinois Senate race and Michigan governor George Romney would win a third term.

The controversial Republican campaign film is to fill a half-hour of free network television time given by NBC. The network said it is also giving the Democrats a half hour.

Last week, Democrats complained to the Fair Campaign Practices Committee, a bipartisan group which polices political campaigns, that Republicans were distributing an "edited" tape of a statement by President Johnson, with a portion obscured so as to create an impression opposite from the president's words.

New Yorkers to Vote Tuesday On Bid to Operate a Lottery

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York voters will decide next Tuesday whether this state should operate a lottery to raise money for the schools, as does New Hampshire.

The question will appear on the Nov. 8 election ballot as a proposed amendment to the state constitution. Many election observers believe the voters will say "yes" despite opposition to the proposal in high councils of government, education and religion.

Such legalized gambling as pari-mutuel horse racing and bingo enjoys widespread popularity in New York and, say law enforcement officers, so do such illegal ventures as bookmaking and the numbers game.

There also have been indications, judging from sales of sweepstakes tickets, that many New Yorkers look favorably on the New Hampshire lottery.

The lottery amendment is so broadly worded that the 1967 legislature would have complete discretion in deciding exactly what kind of lottery to establish.

SCHOOLS WOULD BENEFIT

Democratic state legislators, who fostered the idea, envisage a system similar to that of New Hampshire, which sells $3 tickets based on selected horse races. Advocates of this plan say it could raise $500,000,000 in revenue annually.

Under the terms of the amendment, all proceeds would have to be used for public schools. The state now channels more than $1,300,000,000 a year into school aid.

Opponents of the lottery include Republican Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller, his Democratic opponent in the race for governor, Frank O'Connor, and Senator Robert F. Kennedy, (Dem—N.Y.), although none of them is campaigning against it.

Both Rockefeller and O'Connor have said they think a lottery is a poor way to raise revenue, and Rockefeller says it would tend to take money from people who can least afford it.

But both O'Connor and Rockefeller have said they would sign legislation setting up a lottery if the voters approved the amendment.

Strike Date Set

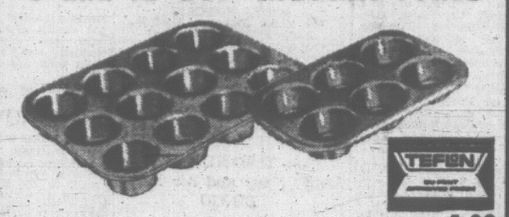

OTTAWA (CP) — A tentative strike date of Monday, Nov. 14, was announced Monday for Air Canada's 5,200 machinists. The walkout, if it comes, would likely stop all operations of the national publicly owned air line.

BOND SALE QUESTIONED

OTTAWA (CP)—Ralph Cowan, Liberal member of Parliament for York-Humber, asked in the Commons Tuesday why sellers of hockey lottery tickets are prosecuted while banks sell British government premium savings bonds. Mr. Cowan said the bonds bear no interest but drawings are held monthly and prizes awarded. Solicitor-General Pennell said he will look into the matter.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FRY—In loving memory of my dear Aunt Mary Ann Fry, who passed away Nov. 2, 1954.
—Always remembered by her niece, Mrs. R. Burton.

MULLEN—In loving memory of our dear mother, Sarah Ellen Mullen, who passed away Nov. 2, 1948.
Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest;
In memory's frame we shall keep it
Because she was one of the best.

PATERSON—In loving memory of Mrs. Armanella Paterson, who passed away Nov. 2, 1965.
Peaceful be Thy rest, dear mother;
It is sweet to breathe Thy name.
In life we loved you dearly;
In death we do the same.
—Always missed by Merle, Verna and families.

STUDLEY — In loving memory of our husband, dad and grampa, James George, who passed away suddenly Nov. 2, 1964.
Looking back with tenderness
Along the path you trod,
I bless the years I had with you
And leave the rest to God.
When evening shades are falling
And I sit here alone at home.
There always comes a longing—
I wish you could come home.
—Always loved, deeply missed by your wife, son and family.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

It will join NBC-TV's crew of Huntley-Brinkley, Frank McGee, Robert MacNeil and Sander Vanocur. Knowlton Nash and Warner Troyer will appear on this colorcast to cover election news of particular interest to Canadians.

Stephen

Nash and Troyer will also appear on Newsmagazine and The Public Eye with reaction and analyses of the U.S. troop to the polls. More coverage will follow the late National News from Toronto. The reason CBC is devoting so much important air-time to the election is, not only are they our strongest and nearest neighbors, the results will indicate the American acceptance or rejection of President Johnson's foreign and domestic policies, including Viet Nam.

Oh, yes, those 1,100 metred families sampled by Nielsen for the all-important ratings actually represent 55 million Americans. What they choose to accept or reject means nothing as compared to what the 1,100 watch. Great system, isn't it?

A non-stop Paris-to-New York trip will be the framework for NBC-TV's Nov. 7 documentary, "The Aviation Revolution," which deals in part with the introduction of supersonic transports and jumbojets . . . "Portrait of a Team," an hour documentary about the Baltimore Colts in the closing weeks of last year's National Football League season, airs on ABC-TV Nov. 26.

"The Amazing Randi," an escape artist, performed on Monday's "Today" show on the anniversary of the death of the famed Houdini. He showed how Houdini was able to get out of a strait-jacket while hanging upside down and nearly strangled in the process before the live cameras. Said Hugh Downs: "If this show had been taped you wouldn't have seen this part at all."

ABC-TV had "The Time Tunnel" on its list of new shows destined for the ashcan but changed its mind for some reason and ordered nine additional episodes. The pickup extends the program's total commitment to 26 hour-long segments, with the network holding further options up to 32 episodes. Really, the show is an interesting concept in the field of television adventure and deserves a longer breath of life.

NBC-TV has Lorne Greene booked as host-narrator of the Nov. 25 David Wolper production of "It's a Dog's World." The program will trace the role the canine has played as man's best friend . . . CBS-TV is reported thinking of a weekly one-hour anthology series for next season . . . New Orleans will provide the setting for a new Telephone Hour special to be colorcast on NBC-TV early in '67.

LANGFORD

Fifteen houses in this area, presently occupied by tenants, now being offered for sale. These are nearly all three-bedroom houses. Several are only a year or two old. None have basements, but most have Oil-o-Matic heating, plumbing for automatic washers and wiring for electric range and dryer, paved driveways, carports.
Taxes are low! (In most cases only $25-$30 a year to the owner.) Best of all, only $1,000 down and the balance like rent. No mortgages to raise or commissions to pay. All financing arranged for you. Only one payment to make. These are certainly not mansions, but good comfortable family homes, particularly suited to a young family starting out. Most prices range from $10,400-$12,400. Some older houses are even less.
We will be happy to arrange to show you these houses by appointment.
If you wish to drive past them first we will mail you a list showing the addresses and prices. (Please do not disturb the tenants.) Simply call 478-4446 or 478-6116 and leave your name and address. No one will call on you unless requested.

Land Deal Inquiry Date Set

A public inquiry into the activities of members of the Saanich assessment department is scheduled to start Wednesday, Nov. 16.

The inquiry will be conducted by James Baird, deputy inspector of municipalities in the department.

Mr. Brown said the form of the inquiry is similar to that of a court.

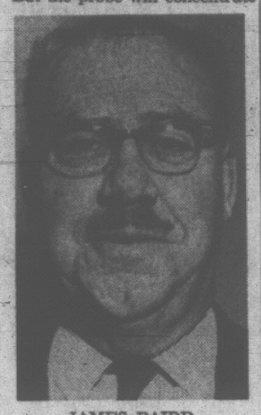

When it is completed, Mr. Baird will make a report and recommendations on what should be done.

If the cabinet approves, then the recommendations are binding.

Saanich formally requested the inquiry Oct. 24.

An order-in-council instructed Mr. Baird to determine whether any municipal employee has used his position "for private advantage with respect to any real estate transaction within the municipality."

But the probe will concentrate

JAMES BAIRD

on the municipal assessment department to find out whether any former or present employee has dealt privately in real estate or been connected with a company dealing in real estate.

Mr. Baird is to determine, also, whether any of them "has used information and knowledge gained in the pursuit of his official duties with respect to any real estate transaction of any company in which he holds or has held shares or is or has been a director or officer."

Saanich council earlier issued a statement which said members of the assessment department incorporated a company called Royal Oak Estates Limited which lists as its objects the purchase and sale of stocks and securities and of real and personal property.

Saanich also said the company bought and sold two lots in "non-strategic" parts of the municipality.

Council said it believes no wrongdoing was intended but an inquiry was advisable in the interests of Saanich residents and the employees concerned.

Forester Elected By Gardeners

He is an expert flower grower and excells in Michaelmas daisies—a difficult bloom to grow to perfection.

Fred Blakeney, well-known rose hybridizer, presented the society with a trophy to be awarded to the member who grows the best Miss Canada Rose. He developed the bloom for Canada's centennial year.

Other officers elected were: Harry Parker, vice-president, and P. C. Raven, secretary-treasurer.

Directors elected for a two-year term: Doris Page, Mrs. R. S. Bevan, Emily Sartain, W. T. Roper and William Shepley. One-year term: Frank Steggles.

Mrs. Ena McCabe and Maj. George A. Wiggan, who retired as president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, each were presented with a silver paper cutter for long and outstanding service.

Trollers Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Trollers' Association Tuesday criticized the federal fisheries department for allowing unselective seine herring fishing off-shore on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The trollers group said harm is being done to both the herring fishery and to young salmon by the use of deep seines and lights.

Lecture Planned

GANGES— Mountaineer, Mrs. Don Munday, will give an illustrated lecture on the Coast Range, Friday at 8 p.m. in the Fulford Community Hall, Salt Spring Island.

ARSENIC MURDER TRIAL

Nagging Doubt Disturbed Medic

VANCOUVER (CP) — Internal medicine specialist Dr. Bernard B. Moscovich Tuesday told an Assize Court jury how a nagging doubt caused him to explore the mysterious hospital death of Esther Castellani.

Testifying at the second day of the capital murder trial of former radio personality Rene Castellani, charged with the arsenic poisoning of his wife, Dr. Moscovich said he decided to investigate arsenic as a possible cause of death after intensive research.

He said he was dissatisfied with the apparent virus infection-heart failure cause of death revealed by an autopsy.

"I felt quite unhappy as to why this woman died. I was in the dark," he said. "I knew it was heart failure, but I wanted to know what led up to that."

"The night she died I went home and studied in detail the history of her case, then summarized all the various findings we made while she was in the hospital," said the man who had lead a team of doctors in a six-week battle to keep her alive.

"There were many organs involved. I wanted to know what could have caused the gross insult that caused her death."

He said he embarked on a program involving the process of elimination after he had completed his initial detailed survey.

He ruled out, one by one, the various rare diseases and "came to the conclusion that some toxic (poisonous) factor had been at work."

"I came down (by process of elimination) to arsenic," Dr. Moscovich told the court.

He said he then arranged to have some of the woman's tissue sent to the city analyst to have it tested for arsenic.

Mrs. Castellani's body was exhumed several weeks after burial on the orders of the Vancouver coroner.

Mrs. Castellani died July 11 from heart failure and an overwhelming infection.

The trial continues.

HOME GARDEN

Green, Colorful Screen

By JACK BEASTALL

Many home gardeners are looking for an evergreen shrub which will make a screen for the garbage can or compost heap, be attractive all the year, with a bonus of flowers if possible.

Jack

No doubt, such a plant would be welcomed, and strange as it may seem, such a plant is readily available for local gardens.

It is well known to most gardeners, frequently seen, and possibly ignored because it could almost be termed commonplace.

On the other hand, the older English gardening books may have stressed too greatly its value as a greenhouse plant, and American gardening books have not helped its cause by listing it as hardy outdoors in only the southern portion of the United States.

As far as hardiness in our winters is concerned, it must be noted that several horticultural forms are in circulation, some of which appeared on the local market a few years ago and succumbed (or were severely damaged) in the seven-degree temperature of December, 1964.

The type plant seems to be the form grown here for the past 30 years or more. The growth habit is compact, to some 10 feet or more if not used freely in the home for winter decoration.

The dark green leaves are considerably smaller than the tender forms which have a more open, loose habit, and the coral-colored buds are present now, and will open to heads of pinkish-white flowers during winter mild spells with the full flush of blossom in March and April.

Yes, you are right in your guess. It is the Laurustinus or Viburnum tinus, a plant we should all want to have if it had just been discovered and was being offered at an exhorbitant price coupled with high pressured advertising.

Even without these sales promotions, it is still the best screen, a good hedge plant, and a wonder specimen shrub for a difficult-to-fill corner or the centre of a lawn

Gas Light For Mayor's Residence?

"I think it would be wonderful if we did it here," he said. "A gas lamp similar to the one we have on the Causeway placed outside the mayor's residence, whoever the mayor may be, would be a wonderful tourist attraction."

Parks administrator Herbert Warren said he hadn't noticed any special lamps during his trip to Britain.

"But I did see a Rolls Royce parked in front of the mayor's house in one city I visited," he said.

"Much more practical," quipped Ald. Hugh Stephen.

Mayor Toone asked Ald. Baird to bring in a full report on costs and maintenance.

Money Raised To Assist Welsh Village

DUNCAN—The hat was passed around at a recent meeting of Duncan United Church's AOTS Club and $41 was raised for the Aberfan relief fund.

Inquiry showed no local agency had been set up for collecting funds.

Now Duncan AOTS has taken on the job of gathering Cowichan contributions for relief work among survivors of the Welsh mining disaster.

DISCUSS HOSPITALS

All Area Councils Invited to Meeting

A mass meeting of all Greater Victoria municipal councils will be held Nov. 14 to discuss Reeve Alan Cox's stop-gap solution to hospital financing.

The meeting, planned without fanfare almost two weeks ago, is scheduled to be held in Holyrood House at 6 p.m. will be preceded by a dinner for all elected officials.

Reeve Cox revealed his plan to earmark an anticipated rate increase in provincial per capita grants in 1967 for hospital purposes Tuesday afternoon to the Intermunicipal Committee.

This year the per capita grant rate increased $4, a similar increase to the 1965 boost. When announcing the per capita increase in the legislature this year Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated that the municipalities could expect another increase next year.

He did not, however, state whether the increase would be in the rate or the normal increase derived from population growth.

"The grant increase announced last spring brought an additional $220,000 to city coffers. A similar increase next year would net the city approximately a quarter of a million dollars. The Saanich increase this year amounted to $200,000; Oak Bay $67,000 and Esquimalt $48,000.

Reeve Cox's proposal is that any rate increase in 1967 be set aside by all municipalities for hospital purposes and that the same amount be set aside for the next five years.

"By that time the provincial government should be in a position to accept its responsibilities," he said.

"We have to do something," he said. "If five years from now the situation has not changed we can simply tell the provincial government we are finished."

In making his proposal Reeve Cox said his council did "not consider the per capita grant to be largess distributed by the provincial government, but a poor substitute for the share of the revenues which we as municipalites enjoyed as our right prior to 1954."

He added that if accepted his proposal would "tie our local responsibility for hospitals to the provincial government's responsibility to share equitably its burgeoning revenues with our level of government."

The committee, in addition to giving tentative blessings to the Cox formula, also agreed to share the costs of an independent survey on hospital construction needs.

The firm of Agnew, Peckham and Company of Toronto has been suggested as the from most logical to do the job.

No price has yet been fixed for the survey but it is estimated that $50,000 will be a reasonable figure. The bill would be shared on an intermunicipal basis.

Erhard Offers to Quit If New Gov't Formed

BONN (AP) — West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard told his party today that he will resign if necessary. Some leaders of the party, the Christian Democrats, were understood to be urging him to quit.

Erhard, 69, told a closed-door meeting of party leaders that he would not stand in the way of formation of a new government. His statement was given to reporters by Will Rasner, the party's floor manager in the Bundestag (lower house of parliament).

Earlier today, an informed source said Erhard had agreed to resign if he could participate fully in selection of his successor.

Saanich Employees To Work Dec. 27

Saanich civic employees may be the only government workers on duty December 27 and January 2.

The Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday tried to establish uniform holiday periods over the Christmas season. But Reeve Hugh Curtis shuddered at the thought of a four-day shutdown at Christmas.

The provincial government has already announced that the two days in question will be regarded as holidays.

"I think it is going too far to turn the government buildings into a graveyard for four or five days," he said. "I am opposed to handing out extra days off just because Christmas Day falls on a Sunday."

Reeve Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, pointed out the municipalities didn't have much choice in the matter. "It's a holiday and that's it," he said.

"But we don't have to pay them for it," answered John Tribe, Saanich comptroller. "If they take the time off they lose their pay."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Frank E. Priegel, Jr., age 8, of Okmulgee, Okla., for his question:

Are the tail of animals useful?

Almost every sizable animal has a tail. It may be a stubby bear tail or a handsome spread of peacock feathers. It may be a waspy tail or a stringy rat tail, a finny fish tail or a handy monkey tail. There are more tails than you can count and almost all of them are useful.

Mother Nature gives an animal the kind of tail that suits him best. He makes very good use of it. He knows that it is there and treasures it with pride and joy. Watch a puppy wag his merry tail or watch Miss Puss wash her fluffy tail with loving care. The proudest tail owner is the peacock. He is always ready to spread his gaudy feathers for the whole world to admire.

The bird-of-paradise spreads his gaudy tail to catch the eye of his sweetheart, and she chooses the bird with the tail she likes best. But other animals have tails that are useful in more everyday ways. The monkeys of the New World have long grasping tails. Their tails can hold on like grasping hands and they use them to swing from bough to bough. The Old World monkeys do not have grasping tails, but their tails help the little acrobats to balance themselves as they swing through the trees.

Bushy Tail Used as Scarf

The squirrel uses his tail as a rudder to steer him when he leaps from twig to twig or takes a tight-rope trip along a telephone wire. But he often fails. Then he uses his thick, bushy tail as a soft cushion and lands without breaking his bones. A flying squirrel needs his fluffy tail to steer him on his parachute leaps through the air.

A fox uses his bushy tail as a warm scarf. On a cold winter's night he curls into a ball and wraps it around his chilly nose. His tail also may save him from snake-bite. The snake strikes at what looks like a foxy dinner and gets only a mouthful of fur. The beaver uses his tail to thump a warning to his family. It also makes a neat stool to sit upon and a handy paddle to steer him through the water. The kangaroo uses his sturdy tail as a stool and also to help keep his balance as he leaps through the air.

A fish uses his finny tail to steer him through the water, and birds use their tails to land and take off and steer through the air. A woodpecker's tail is fitted with little spikes to help him cling to the side of a tree. Almost every animal has an everyday use for his tail, but he is happy to have even a useless tail.

There are many strange tails in the world of smaller animals. A little lizard has a very useful detachable tail. If a hungry enemy grabs him by the tail, it breaks off. The lizard scuttles safely away and after a while he grows another tail. The tail of a scorpion is fitted with an angry sting. The bees and wasps of the insect world have stingers in their tails, and the earwig's tail is fitted with a useful pair of pincers.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Arthur Pringle, age 13, of Cross Creek, Y.C., New Brunswick, Canada, for his question:

Why do the planets not twinkle like the stars?

The brightest star is no more than a pinpoint of light when seen through a telescope. A planet is seen as a round disk, big enough to show the markings on its surface. A star is a huge nuclear powerhouse that creates its own blazing light. A planet shines only the reflected light from the sun, but a planet is much closer than a star. The light from its wide face has only a short way to travel. Distance shrinks a star to the size of a pinpoint and shrinks its light to a thin narrow beam.

The light from heavenly bodies must pierce through our atmosphere to reach us. And the gaseous molecules of the air play tricks upon it. They scatter the blue rays of sunlight over our skies. They get in the path of a thin shaft of starlight and make it blink on and off. The starlight twinkles. But air molecules do little to obstruct the broad beams coming from the wide disk of a planet. And a planet stares down at us with a steady, unblinking light.

Exercises Won't Replace Glasses

By WALTER C. ALVAREZ

A few people write asking about the value of eye exercises For children with a squint, exercises can help. For people who hope with exercises to get rid of their glasses, I have no word of encouragement. The men who popularized that idea were Bates and also Peppard. By 1948, 350,000 copies of Peppard's book had been sold. I read Bates' book and found it silly; he could never have written as he did if he had known even a little about how our eyes are built and how they work.

Alvarez

Expert eye men have never been able to see how exercising the external muscles that move the eyes and the arms could change the size and efficiency of those parts of the eyes which have to do with giving us good sight. Actually, I think Bates' fad has largely gone the way of all quackish fads — it has tetered out and been forgotten.

★ ★ ★

If I had a grandchild with an eye that turned either in or out, I would take him first to a fine ophthalmologist, and get his opinion as to whether exercises could help. Sometimes glasses help much, and expecially glasses with prisms ground into the lenses so as to bend the rays of light, and thereby to lessen the strain on the muscles that keep the two eyes looking in the same direction, and working together to give a binocular and range-finding type of vision. In the worst cases of squint, a small operation must be performed to straighten the eye that looks in or out.

Commonly, a squint is nature's method of stopping the use of an eye, the image of which is so poor that it cannot be fused together with the image that is sent to the brain from the good eye. If the child is not helped with glasses, the eye that turns either in or out soon loses what little sight it has.

Then, although an ophthalmologist can operate and straighten the eye, the person will never have normal stereoscopic vision. Unfortunately, lack of such vision is a handicap. I learned this first from a fine young blacksmith who, when he lost one eye from an accident, could no longer be a blacksmith. He could no longer measure inches as he glanced at a glowing red hot bar of steel.

Japan Launches Test Rocket For Satellite

UCHINOURA, Japan (AP) — The first Mu rocket-designed to orbit Japan's first scientific satellite by 1968—was launched here Monday.

Officials of the Tokyo University space research team which conducted the test said the launch was a "success." They said the four-stage solid-fuel missile was fired at a 69-degree angle into the Pacific. The flight lasted three minutes, 20 seconds.

The 70-foot rocket was tested for its first-stage fuel combustion and the booster propulsion.

Six U.S. Soldiers Killed In Korea Zone Ambush

Johnsons Asleep 30 Miles Away

SEOUL (CP) — North Korean troops ambushed and killed six American soldiers and one South Korean below the armistice line before dawn today while President and Mrs. Johnson slept 30 miles away.

The accident was the gravest involving Americans since the Korean War ended in 1953. It occurred eight hours before Johnson left South Korea for the United States.

There was one survivor, an American, from the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division patrol. Wounded by a grenade but reported in good condition, he said the attackers wore North Korean army uniforms.

The Communists escaped and there was no indication that any were wounded.

The United Nations Command announced that the eight-man patrol was jumped by the Communists about 800 yards south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

Since the armistice there have been sporadic clashes between United Nations and North Korean patrols—each side blaming the other for intruding into their territory. South Korean security forces also report gun battles with North Korean agents trying to slip across the lines into the south.

GUARD HEAVY

Under the armistice terms the two sides are separated by a 4,000 - metre-wide buffer zone, down the centre of which runs the demarcation line. Neither side is permitted to cross this.

The ambush occurred east of Libby bridge, one of two spanning the Imjin River in the American sector of the front and close to Panmunjom where the military armistice commission meets in the demilitarized zone.

The UN command said the attack occurred at 3:15 a.m. President Johnson gave no indication that he was aware of it when he left Kimpo airfield 15 miles away. The ambush was not announced until five hours after the president took off.

FIND CASINGS

The UN Command announcement said:

"Expended shell casing in the area from which the ambush was launched were Communist-made.

"Search patrols discovered the wounded man and slain soldiers."

The UN command demanded an immediate meeting of the military armistice commission to take up the ambush and "other serious violations of the armistice agreement."

The armistice commission has its headquarters at Panmunjom, where the original armistice was negotiated. There UN and Communist buildings stand side by side and armed guards from both sides march up and down past each other — occasionally muttering insults.

U.S. troops are responsible for 12½ miles of the 151-mide long frontier. Their zone of responsibility is north of the wide Imjin River—a strange silent land where the atmosphere of combat readiness is intensified by the absence of civilian communities.

President Johnson visited the area Monday.

A recent increase in North Korean attacks along the armistice line led some observers in Seoul to think the Communists were trying to apply pressure on the South Koreans to resist American requests for more troops in South Viet Nam. South Korea now has approximately 45,000 troops fighting alongside U.S. forces there.

Just What's Behind The Big Cover-Up?

By GLEN ALLEN

The Loch Ness Monster?

A gift from Jayne Mansfield?

Whatever it is, the thing at the Johnson Street entrance of the new federal building at Johnson and Vancouver is perplexing to everyone but the federal department of public works.

Covered up like original sin itself with black plastic sheeting and wire binding, the thing is identified only by a tag with a Vancouver address.

When it was inadvertently unveiled some time ago another tag saying "send to Capital Iron and Metals" was found on the thing's reverse face. It was thought to be a joke.

"I'm sorry, you aren't allowed to see it," said a construction foreman Tuesday.

"No, I'm afraid not," said the job superintendent, when asked if a photograph could be taken.

Said a spokesman for the department's district architect's office in Vancouver: "I know you must be getting curious over there but we can't let you see it without permission from Ottawa."

Ottawa remains regally silent.

But local intelligence has learned this much:

It is made of ¼-inch steel plate.

It is heavy.

Its finish will be a rusted black.

It will be floodlit.

It is thought to be expensive.

Those who have seen it have variously thought it to be beautiful, ugly, or something in between.

"I talked to the sculptor when we were putting it in," said one workman on the job.

"He didn't even seem to know what it was."

Another workman who was party to the monument's installation said it looked to him like "a bent-over taxpayer."

Labor Protest Orderly

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 400 delegates to the British Columbia Federation of Labor convention here paraded for an hour at the court house today, protesting the use of injunctions in labor disputes and the jailing of four labor leaders.

John McNevin, assistant secretary of the federation, said the demonstration was orderly, but feelings were running high.

"Four of our colleagues are in jail," he said. "You can understand why some of the delegates are emotional."

The four—Paddy Neale, secretary of the Vancouver and District Labor Council, Tom Clarke, vice-president of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, Jeffrey Power, president of the Marine Workers Union and Art O'Keeffe, former business agent for the Electrical Workers — were jailed for terms ranging from three to six months for contempt of court arising from demonstrations last spring at the suburban Burnaby plant of the Lenkurt Electric Co.

Further demonstrations have been planned for Thursday by the Marine Workers. Most convention delegates voted not to demonstrate Thursday, the day of the four labor leaders' appeal, because it could be construed as an attempt to pressure appeal court judges.

Federation officers and the convention's resolutions committee opposed the move, and charges and counter - charges followed.

Bill Stewart, secretary of the Marine Workers, said no matter what decision the convention reached, his union will march on the courthouse Thursday.

FIVE PEOPLE INJURED IN RALEIGH TORNADO

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A tornado with winds so strong it bent a flagpole, smashed a suburban trailer court today and skipped across the eastern fringes of Raleigh, ripping down trees and power lines.

At least five persons in the trailer court were injured, including an infant who suffered a severe cut on the forehead.

The storm struck the Foresf Hills shopping centre in Garner, the Weston Trailer Court in Garner, the Wake Memorial Hospital and the Raleigh Country Club. Garner is a suburb just southeast of Raleigh. The hospital and country club are on the eastern outskirts.

Wall of Fire Kills 10 Firefighters

SYLMAR, Calif. (AP)—A blast of flames sweeping up a steep hillside took the lives of 10 firefighters in a crew of 25 battling one of four brush fires in Angeles National Forest.

The men were veterans who had specialized in fighting the hottest of forest fires in Montana, Idaho, California and Oregon.

But the wind behind them kicked up before they could escape.

"It's something every firefighter thinks about—a sudden gust of wind," said Don Porter, U.S. forest service spokesman, in reporting the death toll of a blaze that swept 2,100 acres.

Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin. Nine of the 15 survivors in the crew were in critical condition at hospital.

Fire officials said the fire was 90 per cent contained early today.

The death toll was one of the worst. In 1956, a fire in the Inaja Forest above San Diego took a similar number of lives. In 1933, 29 died in a brush fire in Griffith Park, Los Angeles.

POWER LINE BLAMED

The inferno of flame coursing through Pacoima Canyon in the Angeles Crest fire was touched off by a downed power line. Hot blasts of dry desert air—a storm known locally as the Santa Ana—poured over the mountains, driving temperatures as high as 101 degrees, a record for November. Gusts reached 60 miles an hour.

No structures were damaged, but early in the day a wall of flames was halted at Olive View Hospital, where most of 600 tubercular patients were

Union Chiefs' Feud Goes To Top Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—A feud between two top labor leaders in British Columbia is headed for the B.C. Supreme Court.

DEEP SORES

Mr. Thompson said he would be "delighted" to appear in court and repeat the remarks which are the subject of the action.

Mr. Lawson's writ claims damages from Mr. Thompson over statements alleged to have been made at a labor council meeting Sept. 20.

Mr. Thompson said: "It is regrettable in my opinion in the labor movement that we should get involved in these affairs. However, there is no use denying that in the labor movement there are deep sores that at times fester and run like a rotten sewer."

The Teamsters are not affiliated with organized labor groups in B.C., and there has been a running feud between Mr. Lawson and other labor leaders.

Turkish Ferry Sinks In Dardanelles Crash

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Rescuers searched the Dardanelles straits today after a Turkish ferryboat with about 100 passengers sank in a collision in a rain storm with a Soviet cargo ship. So far three bodies have been found and another two persons were feared dead, but officials said the crew of the 3,406-ton Soviet cargo ship Taifun rescued nearly all the passengers.

Pope Seeking Truce For Viet Christmas

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul is working for a new Christmas truce in Viet Nam with a halting of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam as a first major step, a high Vatican source said today.

The disclosure was made after the pontiff received a special briefing on the Manila conference from U.S. presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman and issued an impassoned plea for an end to wars. He begged world statesmen to "quench pride and hatred, lower their weapons and put an end to oppression and snares."

The sources said Pope Paul hoped both the suspension of bombings and the holiday truce could begin well before Christmas.

He was instrumental in arranging last year's brief Christmas truce in Viet Nam and has dwelt repeatedly in recent addresses on the need for negotiations to end the conflict.

Gov't Resigns

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Premier Jens Otto Krag of Denmark tonight offered his government's resignation and said he intends to ask for an election Nov. 22.

Tory MP in Left Field On 'Defence Policy' Paper

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — In the midst of a Commons attack on government defence policy, the Conservatives Tuesday became embroiled in an intramural argument about their own defence policy.

Michael Forrestall, 34-year-old Conservative MP for Halifax, distributed to reporters in mimeographed form of what he said was a draft of a party defence policy.

He said the original paper had been prepared more than a year ago at the request of some Conservatives by retired Rear-Admiral Jeffry Brock.

He added that it had been redrafted by a committee including Douglas Harkness and Gordon Churchill, both former Conservative defence ministers, Terry Nugent, Conservative MP for Edmonton Strathcona, and himself.

Mr. Harkness, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Nugent in separate interviews all disclaimed any part in redrafting the paper.

SAYS CAUCUS NEXT

Mr. Forrestall said the paper isn't Conservative party policy and the next move would be to bring it before the Conservatives' parliamentary caucus.

Mr. Churchill said policy resolutions aren't dealt with in the caucus.

The draft policy paper said, among other things, that Canada's armed forces don't need nuclear arms now or in the foreseeable future.

"Naturally, I disagree with that," Mr. Harkness said.

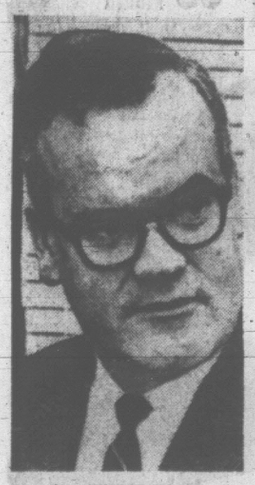

He resigned from the Diefenbaker cabinet Feb. 3, 1963, because the then government wouldn't accept nuclear weapons from the United States.

All this appeared to leave John Michael William Cuphey Forrestall out in left field with

Nuclear Appeal Backed at UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly's main political committee gave overwhelming approval today to a U.S.-Soviet appeal to all countries to refrain from any action that might help the spread of nuclear weapons.

Climaxing nearly two weeks of debate, the 121-country committee passed the East-West resolution by a vote of 100 to 1 with Cuba abstaining. Only Albania voted against the resolution.

The resolution, initiated by the Soviet Union with U.S. support, was introduced as a stop-gap measure until an accord can be reached on a treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons.

'Most Historic Journey Of My Life,' Says Johnson

By JACK BROOKS
Special to the Times

"Alaska's future lies between the mainland in the east and Asia in the west," he said.

In another speech he said: "You are on the bridge of a new partnership; you on the coast are on the rim of a new era as the Pacific prospers and grows, Alaska—and Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles and scores of other American cities will prosper too."

"It has been the most rewarding, the most thrilling, the most encouraging journey of my life. I believe it may also have been the most important and the most historic."

Johnson flew to Anchorage non-stop from Seoul, the South Korean capital. After his speech-making in Alaska, he took off on another non-stop flight to Washington, where his arrival at Dulles International Airport at 8 p.m. EST (5 p.m. PST) will be televised live.

PROBE OF RING SHIFTS TO BRITAIN

Real Estate Agent Charged as Spy

LONDON (CP) — A real estate agent was arrested today in the continuing investigation of a trans-atlantic spy ring and charged with violation of Britain's Official Secrets Act.

The arrests followed by three days the seizure of a U.S. Air Force sergeant who was picked up by FBI agents in Los Angeles and accused of conspiring to pass defence secrets to the Russians.

William Cevil Nulvena, 47, was arrested in an early morning raid on a house at Westcliff-on-Sea, a resort town 40 miles east of London.

Mulvena was charged with offences under two separate sections of the Official Secrets Act and also faced a criminal charge, not yet specified.

The two charges against Mulvena were brought under the Official Secrets Acts of 1911 and 1920.

They relate to the collection, recording, or communications of codes, plans, or document which could be of use to an enemy, and allowing other persons to have official codes or documents issued for the person himself.

Westcliff, near the point where the Thames Estuary meets the North Sea, is the fashionable residential area of Southend, nearest major holiday resort to the capital.

Mulvena, charged at the Southend magistrates' court, was denied bail because he has dual British and French nationality.

He was charged with obtaining for a purpose endangering the national safety, a British passport issued for the use of John Henry de Lancy Forman; having a British passport without lawful authority; and making a statement which he knew to be untrue to procure a British passport for himself or somebody else.

Conviction could bring a jail sentence of up to 18 years.

COUN. LUM:

Mayor Scuttled Elk-Beaver Plan

Saanich Coun. Edward Lum today blamed Victoria Mayor A. W. Toone for scuttling a plan to spend $580,000 to improve Elk-Beaver Lake over a 10-year period.

He also said if former mayor R. B. Wilson had remained in office the plan would have been ratified.

Under the plan, the city was to dedicate the land it owns as a park and Saanich would provide the maintenance money.

Coun. Lum, chairman of the Saanich parks and recreation committee, said he is "very surprised" at Mayor Toone's reply to his comments last Friday criticizing city maintenance of the park.

He noted that Mayor Toone, when he was an alderman last year, was on the committee when negotiations were taking place on the future of Elk-Beaver Lake.

MONTH MORE

At that time, Mr. Wilson was the mayor.

"And my only regret is that ex-mayor Wilson's term was not a month longer at which time the agreements would have been ratified," said Coun. Lum.

This would have ensured the area remained a recreational use at all times "and not live under constant fear of losing it at the whim of succeeding city councils."

In an interview, Coun. Lum said the committee was at the stage when solicitors were to be instructed to draw up agreements.

Mayor Toone then "just dropped the subject" and "we don't know why there was the change."

'CLOUD THE ISSUE'

He accused the city of using the water rights question as an excuse to try and "cloud the issue."

"The provincial government stripping the city of its water rights, I feel, has no bearing on the issue whatsoever as far as the land use is concerned."

Referring to Mayor Toone's comment that he should have consulted Reeve Hugh Curtis before his blast last Friday, Coun. Lum replied:

"I can only say the reeve is not responsible for my actions and could not have given me any more information than what I already know.

"However this matter was discussed with him before any statements were made to the press."

He also said both Mayor Toone and city alderman Robert Baird would better understand his criticism if they "spent as much time as I have over the past two years watching the work done in the Elk-Beaver Lake area instead of just reading reports by their parks administrator.

"I would suggest that if city council asks those people using the area for recreation their views they will say that my criticism is well founded."

If the city was sincere in recognizing the area as one for recreation, then it could dedicate it as a park and protect it for all times.

'I'll Kill You, I'll Kill You'

"Home."

"Have you got a wallet?"

"No."

A 64-year-old caretaker with a heart condition recalled this conversation in central court Tuesday when a man broke his arm with a tire iron 10 days ago in an early morning robbery attempt.

David Barr, 2424 Wark, said he was walking home shortly after 2 a.m. from his caretaking job at the Begg Building when his assailant challenged him at the corner of Quadra and Cormorant.

JUDGMENT FRIDAY

Charged with assault with intent to rob is James Griffiths, 20 of 422B Craigflower. Magistrate Ostler adjourned the case for judgment Friday.

Barr testified the man who attacked him kept yelling, "I'll kill you, I'll kill you," as Barr stumbled up some steps and sought refuge in an apartment at the corner.

"I was hoping with all my heart that door wasn't locked. I turned the handle and the door opened," the janitor said of his apartment refuge.

WORE PACEMAKER

The first blow with the tire wrench was aimed at his ribs, he said. He dropped his arm to protect a "pacemaker," an electronic device "to keep my heart moving."

It was while he was retreating up the steps another blow broke his wrist.

The electric heart device reduced his agility, he said.

"If I hadn't the pacemaker, he wouldn't have hit me. I got a pair of damn good Irish mitts and I know how to use them."

CONTEMPT WARNING

Another "outrageous" remark of that sort and he would be cited for contempt of court, Magistrate Ostler warned him.

More Cong Deserters

SAIGON (AP) — Government officials Monday announced a sharp rise in Viet Cong desertions to the South Vietnamese side. They reported 2,062 defectors from the Communist cause in October, the third highest month this year.

Shops Protest Tax

JERUSALEM (AP) — Most of Israel's shops closed Tuesday for 24 hours in a "warning strike" protesting increased business taxes levied by municipalities. Movie houses stayed open but turned off their outside lights to show sympathy with the businessmen.

CEMETERY 'TRAPS' TO HALT VANDALISM

The alderman made the comment Tuesday during a discussion on ways and means of curbing young vandals who smash grave-stones for kicks.

Ald. Baird did not elaborate on what type of traps he had in mind.

A letter from Cannon Jack Rogers touched off the discussion.

Parks administrator Herbert Warren said he felt the gates would eliminate automobile traffic but would not cut down vandalism.

Arthur Mayse

Among the outgrown institutions which our culture has perversely chosen to enshrine, there is none more likely to fetch a sentimental sigh than the Little Red Schoolhouse. It was, we are assured, the fountainhead of all true learning, which was imparted by a dedicated teacher for a stipend of $400, a hindquarter of beef and a sack of turnips each year.

Well, it's an amiable folk-myth, and I really hate to shoot holes in it. But as a

There was, for instance, the frozen ink bottle that exploded when the rusty old pot-bellied stove dispensed heat enough to melt the frost on the windows. To these you can add the slates that squealed like tail-twisted pigs, the confusion of three or more grades jammed in a room, the summer heat and the autumn mud, and the primitive lighting that could never quite cope with November's lowering days.

I will not fault the teachers. They were of their generation, which held firm beliefs about spared rods and spoiled children. Then as now, they did their best with the materials to hand, and no doubt the forward-thinking looked ahead to a time when the teacher's lot would be a great deal easier.

★

That it is today in some respects, no one can honestly deny. Except in the outpost schools, of which Canada still has her share, no board would dream of asking its teachers to double as janitors.

Teachers get paid a lot more, too; but despite all changes, the job remains both hard and demanding.

For a start, we might note that living costs have climbed at a rate rarely matched by teachers' salary raises.

Consider, also, that a permanent teaching certificate comes much harder than it used to. As a matter of fact, the teacher who hopes to advance in his profession must train indefinitely — a point overlooked by critics who point to those long summer vacations with pay.

Very many teachers sweat out their 'free' months at university summer school. Since they are paid on a 10-month basis, they must finance July and August from their savings, a necessity which in the case of a family head, requires a stern juggling of funds.

Add to these demands a sloughing off upon the schools of various responsibilities once assumed by the parent; top the load with a work-day that consumes part or all of the evening plus a bite out of the weekend; and the teacher emerges as a man or woman whose load is heavier than most.

The points I've listed are part of the total of a modern teacher, and — except for this matter of lagging salaries — are taken in stride.

However, if you care to enquire, I think you will find a deeper grievance among teachers than pay scales by no means commensurate with the vital service performed.

The over-crowded classroom is one. No teacher can get the best out of a class of 40 or more children. The too-large class puts a very severe limit on badly-needed individual instruction.

Nor are we spending enough on a per-child basis for teaching materials and aids. I could name you teachers who have put hundreds of dollars into such equipment as tape recorders and duplicators in order that their pupils may be adequately served.

What I've been telling you here adds up to a bleak fact which isn't going to be altered by a refusal to face it. We are going to have to spend much more than our already considerable outlay if we wish our children to receive the best in education.

In the complex world that awaits them, only the best will serve . . . and if we hope to provide it, we'd better get rid, once and for all, of the Little Red Schoolhouse mentality.

LORD LOUIS MAY BE SENT TO STANLEY PARK ZOO

The 101-year-old bird's guardian—a city lawyer who wants to remain anonymous—said Tuesday "suitable alternatives to his present abode are being studied.

He said the last of the important parrots in the house (thought to be Louis' companion Maudie) died a short time ago.

"Except for a pheasant or two he's alone there," the lawyer said. "And the cost of keeping him is mounting."

A move to Stanley Park is being discussed, he said.

Louis is the sole obstruction between bequests to the Royal Jubilee Hospital and the Red Cross Society. He reigns supreme in a big white house on Courtney Street, considered one of the most valuable pieces of property in the city.

He was owned by Miss Victoria Wilson, a spinster who died in 1949 and stipulated in her will that Louis live out his days on the estate.

She also willed the macaw must receive his daily tot of brandy. Her manservant Wah Wong, was to care for Louis.

He says the hospital could use the money and it irks him to see the estate being depleted.

(The hospital and Red Cross already have received $100,000 from the estate, says hospital administrator George Masters.)

Mr. Wurtele wonders which is more important—parrots or people?

He said the whole Louis episode is embarrassing to Victoria.

"It makes us look like a backwater," he said.

He said money is being wasted.

"The estate is being eroded and I am afraid there will be nothing left for the hospital."

The estate was about $60,000 but has been reduced to about $20,000. It takes $4,000 annually to maintain Louis.

The Courtney Street property, it is reported, could easily be sold but the main mansion is under lease to Louis.

Nothing can be done as long as he lives—and parrots have been known to live until 200.

Meanwhile, while the dark gathers at the top of his stairs, Louis perches pretty.

He has yet to be heard from.

Mock Trial Story Called 'Substantially Correct'

'Never Said a Word'–Jayne Off-Color Goings-On Denied

A senior city official said today Tuesday's story on the Sunday visit of Jayne Mansfield to the Greater Victoria criminal court was "substantially correct".

The statement was made in the face of an outright denial in Vancouver by Miss Mansfield that she had staged a "trial" of one of her pet chihuahuas during a brief visit to the courtroom.

Miss Mansfield said she "only sat in the magistrate's chair for a few minutes, and then only because the deputy chief of police invited me to. I never said a word."

NOTHING IMPROPER

Deputy Police Chief Ray Maitland also denied that anything improper took place during the brief visit to the court.

"I'm a senior officer and I was there. Nothing of impropriety went on in my presence," he said.

While refusing to comment on the latest developments acting city manager William Hooson confirmed that a verbal report on the incident was given to him with considerable concern Monday morning by building superintendent John Marshall.

Mr. Hooson also confirmed that he had passed on the report to elected officials.

Asked this morning to confirm or deny Tuesday's Times story, Mr. Hooson declined to give a definite answer.

"I don't think a trial took place per se," he said.

Asked if one of Miss Mansfield's dogs was charged with sexual impropriety, Mr. Hooson answered: "I have no comment on that at present."

SHOCKED

Interviewed Monday by two Times' reporters Mr. Marshall said he was shocked by Miss Mansfield's actions during her courtroom visit.

He thought it proper to report the entire matter verbally to Mr. Hooson.

At the time of the incident Mr. Marshall said he was too shocked to protest although he did recover sufficiently to suggest that the party move on to other parts of the building.

In the first interview Mr. Marshall said he was "thoroughly disillusioned" by the entire incident.

"If they want to have a monkey court down there, (in the United States) all well and good," he said. "But we Canadians look on our courts as being a little above others."

Mr. Marshall said he regarded the entire event as a publicity gimmick in bad taste.

"Anyone seriously interested in the courts doesn't ridicule them," he said.

Miss Mansfield has professed a serious interest in penology and court procedures.

Senior Magistrate William Ostler has called for a full investigation of the affair and has promised that it will be pressed to the full.

Snow Tire, Chain Signs Due on V.I.

Vancouver Islanders may see highway signs requiring chains or snow tires for the first time this winter.

Highways Minister P.A. Gaglardi, in an annual pre-winter warning, today said that section 198 of the Motor-Vehicle Act will be used again this year "with added emphasis . . . on Vancouver Island in the event of sudden and severe winter snow storms or ice conditions."

The section enables his department to make snow tires or chains mandatory equipment for cars along posted sections of highways.

BAD YEARS

The signs are common place in the Fraser Canyon, Rogers Pass and other mountainous areas but will be used, when necessary, on the Island "because we have had a couple of bad years of snowfall which has caused quite a bit of trouble," a department offical explained.

Mr. Gaglardi's press release said the regulation will not be put into effect unless hazards exist and will be rescinded as soon as conditions permit. It will be publicized in advance of imposition.

The Malahat and some sections of road up-Island are the most likely areas that will be affected.

FINE, JAIL

The regulation will be enforced by RCMP and violations can bring penalties up to a maximum of $500 fine and three months in jail.

Mr. Gaglardi said his department will issue daily road reports again this winter and he urged all drivers to have their vehicles winterized and equipped with a shovel, sand or old blanket to help give traction when stuck.

THE WEATHER

It Really Wasn't Much Of a Month

And a cool, dull, wet, windy time was had by all.

Victoria's weather statistics for the month of October were down for temperatures and hours of sunshine and up for rainfall.

Weatherman Alan McQuarrie's office reports the month's 3.08 inches of rain was .23 inches above the normal. Measurable rain fell 15 days, or one day more than it usually does in October here.

The mean temperature of 50.8 degrees was 1.3 degrees below the normal of 51.8 degrees.

68.1 WARMEST

The hottest it got was 68.1 degrees, on the 14th. The coldest, taken near the grass, was 33.4 degrees on the 13th.

Total hours of bright sunshine were 118.6, or 22.1 hours under sunny Victoria's standard.

It was a little windier than normal, the average being 9.5 miles per hour as compared to 9.2 mph.

There was for a brief and blustering moment on the 20th, a wind of 57 miles per hour.

Firm Hopes To Stimulate Broad Mall

Investment House Begins Expansion

A national investment firm is doing a major renovation of its Victoria branch as a stimulus to Broad Street mall urban renewal.

Pitfield Mackay Co. Ltd. in an expansion and face-lifting operation expresses confidence in the investment business potential and in the future of downtown Victoria as the financial and business core of the city.

"This expansion is in line with the belief of our firm's executive that Vancouver Island has the greatest investment business potential of any area in Canada," said Pitfield's Victoria manager, William A. Du Moulin.

"The move shows our confidence that the downtown core will remain the business and financial heart of the urban area.

Follow Suit

"In this way it falls in with civic plans for urban renewal via Broad Street mall development, and we hope our action will stimulate others to follow suit," he said.

Broad Street is designated as a pedestrian mall between Pandora and Broughton, with businesses oriented to the walk-in trade, making it suitable for commercial and financial houses, boutiques and associated firms.

Plan Delayed

Civic development of the street has been delayed in favor of prority to arterial traffic and Johnson Street parking projects.

General contractor G. H. Wheaton Ltd. is renovating the interior of Pitfield's offices at 1220 Broad, adding about 1,000 square feet of adjoining property for 2,500 square feet of office space, and rebuilding the facade.

Architects Wade, Stockdill and Armour have designed an attractive red cedar and old brick exterior using black anodized aluminum door and window frames.

Just inside will be carpeted executive and sales offices and remaining in the rear will be the board room where stock market quotations are received and posted.

Dec. 15 Completion

Pitfield's which established in Victoria in 1954 with purchase of the local firm of H. A. Humber Ltd., offers complete investment service including direct wire connection with New York and all major Canadian financial centres.

It provides quotation service at all major Canadian stock exchanges and has become one of Canada's leading underwriters and stockbrokers.

Fast Start Made On Family Club

Sod Turned To Roar Of Bulldozer

The sod was turned this morning for a new home for the Racquet Club of Victoria, near the university.

Construction will start almost immediately on the first phase, which must be completed in 185 days with the "family" club planning to start operations May 1.

This will cost about $750,000 and will provide a regulation-size skating rink, which will also be used for curling until the curling rink is completed; a five-court badminton hall which will be large enough for indoor tennis; three squash courts and nine tennis courts as well as dining area, lounge, locker rooms and offices.

SWIM POOL

As the membership of the club grows, an enclosed Olympic-size swimming pool will be added.

Further plans include a six-sheet curling rink, grass tennis courts and such other items as a sauna bath.

The club was formerly located at Fort Street and Foul Bay Road but sold this property to purchase the new five-acre site in Saanich.

COMPLIMENTED

Reeve Curtis complimented the club on locating in Saanich and said the area is due for a "major transformation" with the Centennial Stadium, the expansion of the university and road improvements.

The Racquet Club of Victoria has about 450 members and anticipates an increase with the start of construction of new quarters.

Family memberships cost $500 but this will go up shortly to $600.

Major Tax Battle To Supreme Court

A multi-million-dollar tax battle between the provincial government and Macmillan-Bloedel Ltd. will be decided by the Supreme Court of Canada in a round-robin match.

The nation's Supreme Court has given the government leave to appeal a decision by the B.C. Appeal Court, provincial surveyor of taxes J. O. Moore said today.

Lloyd Mackenzie, QC, representing the attorney-general's Department, said he will file the appeal documents this week but does not expect the hearing will be held before June because of the Ottawa court's commitments.

ONE EACH

Both sides have won one round each in the courts since Mr. Moore assessed a 39,000-acre parcel of timber land bought by the company from the E and N Railway at a bonus tax of $8.5 million.

The case is considered a test of the amount of bonus taxes — under the special E and N Land Tax Act which levies a flat 5 per cent tax on the actual value of any purchases within the land belt — which the government may obtain from a huge deal between the CPR and two forestry firms in 1964.

SOUGHT RULING

Macmillan-Bloedel started the legal battle when it sought a court ruling declaring illegal a government plan of assessing each parcel in the transaction separately because the timber had to be cruised for the first time on the previously tax-exempt properties.

However, it lost the first round when Mr. Justice Victor Dryer validated the government procedure. An appeal to the B.C. Appeal Court reversed the decision and the court also declined to give its leave for further appeals by the government.

Mr. Mackenzie and Ottawa lawyer William Burke-Robertson, QC, were successful this week in obtaining the federal court's permission to make a final appeal.

ROLLING UP RESULTS is Greater Victoria's United Appeal with 66 per cent of this year's objective received to date. Campaign is running slightly behind last year's which brought in 66.4 per cent by this point in the Appeal. Only two cities, Ottawa and Edmonton, have gone over the top and Vancouver lags behind Victoria with 64.8 per cent donated by last night.

He was the driver of a truck which struck a car stopped on the Trans-Canada Highway. The car caught fire and burned.

Ask The Times

Q. Is the French Foreign Legion still operational? If so, how can I join? G. R. L.

A. The French Foreign Legion still exists, but in greatly reduced strength since the Algerian war, the nearest thing to a battlefield being a training camp in Corsica. Volunteers aged 18 to 40 years serve for five year terms. All criminals other than murderers are safe from prosecution while serving.

While a search for a Legion headquarters address proved unavailing, a safe bet would be to write to: Regiments Etrangers, Ministere de l'Armee, Paris, France.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

ELZA MAYHEW

City Sculptress Off to Oregon To Cast Bronze Figure for Expo

Elza Mayhew, the Victoria sculptress, leaves here today for Eugene, Ore., to cast the bronze figure that will be the centrepiece in the Sanctuary at Expo '67.

Mrs. Mayhew was given the commission for the work by the Canadian government.

It will be housed at next year's World Exhibition in Montreal inside the Sanctuary, a place for meditation.

The Sanctuary is not an overtly religious place: it will have no cross, no Star of David.

But both the Sanctuary, and Mrs. Mayhew's sculpture, are designed to create an atmosphere where visitors will meditate — and pray if they feel like it.

The styrofoam model of the sculpture is now completed at Mrs. Mayhew's studio in an old warehouse at 1119 Wharf. She was asked to take on the job 18 months ago.

At first she declined the commission because her ideas did not agree with those of the Expo architects. But they compromised and almost a year ago she began "the period of gestation" to create the sculpture.

Although it is now carved, the most technically difficult stage is still ahead. Mrs. Mayhew is one of the few sculptors who actually casts her own work, assisted when necessary by a few strong men.

She is a small woman and the men who work in the Eugene casting foundry are amazed that she can do their work.

It will take her a month to do the casting. And then she will hire a truck and drive it to bring the bronze back to Victoria for finishing.

Only then will pictures be released showing what the figure looks like.

DIEFENBAKER
. . . here after convention

BIG JOHN TO FISH AND TALK

Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker will come here for a week's fishing, after the party's national convention in Ottawa Nov. 14-16 decides his fate.

He also will make at least one speech, at noon Nov. 28 at the University of Victoria, sponsored by the students' political science forum.

Mr. Diefenbaker will fish for salmon here and steelhead trout up-Island said Russell Simpson, vice-president of the B.C. Conservative party. Mr. Simpson and former Tory candidate Eric Charman will be Mr. Diefenbaker's hosts.

Admiral Brock with an unwanted defence policy.

Conservative party sources said Admiral Brock was asked to prepare the paper more than a year ago with the idea that it might contain some useful ammunition for the 1965 election campaign.

DITCHED IT

They added that nothing useful could be found in it and that the paper was ditched until Mr. Forrestall revived it.

The paper, which Mr. Forrestall said had gone through three drafts, is an anathema to the Conservative party on at least one ground.

It says Canada too frequently proffers military aid to the United Nations and repeatedly urges establishment of a UN police force. It describes this as "singularly inept."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker when in office supported UN peacekeeping operations as strongly as the Liberals have. He obtained specific and unanimous parliamentary approval for sending a Canadian contingent to the Congo for UN duty in 1960.

Admiral Brock commanded the Canadian naval flotilla which was part of Canada's contribution to the UN effort in Korea in 1950-53.

Spy Probe Press Leak - Under Study

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — A government inquiry is now underway to determine how word of the security probe in the latest espionage case was "leaked" to the press, it was learned today.

The investigation by the RCMP was being carried out in secrecy to learn how government maps had been made available to foreign agents. The fact that the RCMP were making the inquiry was reported in the press Tuesday.

Now the government has launched another investigation, this time to try and find out how the press got wind of the secret RCMP probe.

ADMINISTRATIVE

"We hope to discover how it was the information got out to the press and public before we (privy council office) were made aware of it," said one official.

Meantime there is some concern that the latest espionage inquiry may be a bit embarrassing at this time when External Affairs Minister Paul Martin is leaving Friday for Poland and Russia.

While Russia has not been officially identified as the country involved, it is taken for granted here, that it is the "foreign power" that was obtaining maps and charts.

While government officials are not angry over the press leak they are annoyed. They point out that in more serious circumstances such "leaks" to the press of security probes could be dangerous.

INFORMATION PROGRAM LAUNCHED

Teachers Tell 'Crisis' Story

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association is launching a public information program on the "Crisis in the Schools."

The teachers, currently involved in contract bargaining with the school board, plan a varied approach to parents and ratepayers.

They will issue brochures, provide luncheon speakers and speakers to PTAs and other community groups. A series of newspaper advertisements is planned.

In addition, the teachers hope to establish a liaison committee with the school board to explore differences between teachers and trustees and look for areas of co-operation.

PARTNERS

"There is no point in teachers and trustees arguing with one another. We are partners in education and we should be acting as partners," said Bob Travis, chairman of the association's public relations committee.

Mr. Travis said teachers are particularly concerned about the criticism levelled at the Victoria education system in the Hartrick-Downey report.

NOT ALL BAD

He said one of the unfortunate outcomes of the report is that it has left the impression there is nothing good about the system when, in actual fact, some areas of the system are excellent.

"Under the terms of reference of the report the authors were obliged to dwell on the shortcomings in the system and not talk about the good things," he said.

Nevertheless, Mr. Travis added, the report pointed out some serious shortcomings and the teachers believe they should comment on some of these.

"Greater Victoria teachers are a responsible group who are greatly concerned about the educational standards in the community," he said.

"Like any other group we are also concerned about the advancement of our own salaries in relation to advances that others are receiving.

"We firmly believe that only by upgrading the economic conditions in the profession can we attract people who can maintain educational standards that all parents desire for their children."

Mr. Travis said teachers are continually engaged in in-service training, in their own time, to upgrade their own educational qualifications and keep abreast of new developments in education.

"We are just as concerned about class size, about classroom facilities and many other aspects of education as we are about salaries," he said.

"These are the matters that we hope to speak out on in the months to come."

WIRE BRIEFS

Saigon Again Hit

SAIGON (UPI) — Viet Cong terrorists followed up mortar and artillery attacks on the heart of Saigon with a grenade bombing today that killed two Vietnamese civilians and wounded five others.

Ghana Won't Budge

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI)—Ghana continued to resist pressure from her African neighbors today to free 19 Guinean hostages held since Saturday, despite fears her action would split the scheduled Organization of African Unity (OAU) summit wide open.

Riot Toll at 17

NEW DELHI (UPI)— Police opened fire in four towns of southeastern India today to quell left-wing rioting. At least two people were killed, boosting the death toll in three days of outbreaks to 17.

Ethiopia Boosts Arms

ADDIS ABABA (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie today announced that he plans to enlarge Ethiopia's military forces, already among Africa's most powerful, but pledged they would be used only for defence. The 74-year-old emperor opened Parliament on the 36th anniversary of his coronation.

Syrians Demand 'Liberation War'

DAMASCUS, SYRIA (UPI) — Thousands of chanting, sign-carrying Syrians marched through the ancient streets of Damascus today demanding "liberation" of Palestine from Jewish rule.

Described by Damascus radio as the largest in the city's history, the demonstration was sponsored by Syria's ruling Arab Socialist Baath party marking the 49th anniversary of the Balfour declaration promising to make Palestine a Jewish national homeland.

Eyewitnesses said about 500,000 people took part in what Damascus radio termed "a chain of people with no beginning and no end."

The demonstrators, including workers, peasants, teachers and students, carried posters calling for a "popular war of liberation" against Israel. They chanted slogans condemning the United States, Britain, Saudi Arabia and Jordan.

Addressing the marchers from the balcony of the government guest house, President Dr. Noureddin Atassi warned the United States that if it attempted to use the U.S. Sixth Fleet against Arab interests, "the fish in our seas will feed on rotting imperialist corpses."

The Sixth Fleet is currently visiting Beirut, Lebanon.

evacuated. Also evacuated were 450 patients of a veterans administration hospital in the same area.

The men who died were backed up against a rocky cliff, in the process of cutting a line around a hot spot. One of the survivors said the flames "made a flash run up the hill."

The other men were literally covered by a sheet or flame. Some were suffocated as they sought to rescue their buddies, the forest service said.

'Tax U.S. Firms'

Murder Jury Split

VANCOUVER (CP)—The non-capital murder trial of Edward Dowe and Arlie Durling ended Tuesday after the jury failed to reach agreement after eight hours deliberation. The two men were remanded in custody for a retrial. They were charged with the March 17 beating death of William Bohart, whose body was found in Stanley Park.

Several Thousand Switch To B.C. Medical Plan

Several thousand British Columbians insured under Medical Services Incorporated's open medical plans have apparently taken the advice of MSI officials and switched to the lower cost B.C. Medical Plan.

Affected are 7,000 of MSI's nearly 90,000 clients. Of these 4,000 are subscribers to the open plans which provide coverage to anyone who applies, regardless of age or medical condition. The remaining 3,000 are provided free coverage.

MSI officials Oct. 14 informed its open plan clients that although the plan had been operated at loss since its inception the cost of such unselective coverage had forced the subscription fee about the fee level of similar coverage under the government-subsidized B.C. Medical Plan. A scheduled 10 per cent increase in doctors fees effective Jan. 1 was cited as a major factor in the cost push.

ENDS NOV. 30

The open plans are to be discontinued Nov. 30. Open plan clients were urged to transfer to the B.C. Medical Plan before Oct. 30 in order to obtain coverage under the B.C.M.P. beginning Dec. 1.

B.C. Medical Plan manager Alan Brown reported today that applications from new subscribers "are up substantially, by several thousand" for the month of October.

He added the increase is well under 7,000 indicating some MSI clients are late in switching.

Ordinarily these persons would be without medical coverage when the MSI plans a shut down since applications must have been received before Nov. 1 for coverage beginning in December.

Special arrangements have however been made to permit those who transfer late to receive B.C. Medical Plan coverage as soon as the MSI plans lapse.

The B.C. Medical Plan at present offers coverage to 316,000 of whom about 145,000 are subscribers.

Judge Rules Man Drunk, Goes Free

VANCOUVER (CP)—A charge of bank robbery against a Vancouver man was dismissed Tuesday when the judge ruled the man was too drunk to know what he was doing.

Eric Eugene Spicer, 27, was charged with robbing a bank of Montreal branch of $3,050.

James Anderson, a customer in the bank at the time of the robbery, said he realized something was wrong when he saw Spicer reaching for a bundle of bills from a teller. He grabbed Spicer and employees locked him in the bank vault until police arrived.

Spicer admitted drinking for seven hours before enering the bank and city analyst Edwin Fennell testified the amount of alcohol in Spicer's blood was enough to knock a normal person off his feet.

'Someone Else Killed Wife Of Doctor'

CLEVELAND (UPI)—The defence in the Sheppard murder retrial said Tuesday it would prove Dr. Samuel Sheppard innocent of murdering his wife and would give the jury a "pretty good idea who killed her"—someone "who had a key to the house and had had one for some time."

Chief defence counsel F. Lee Bailey, in an opening statement, told a jury of seven men and five women that it was "no strange intruder" who killed Marilyn Sheppard 12 years ago.

"Someone else was in that house with Sam Sheppard, some adult human being who killed Marilyn Sheppard for a reason which may not be apparent to you now," Bailey said.

He said the defence would prove that the murder weapon was wielded by someone using the left hand — a person whose "physical strength was compatible with that of a woman."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Low cloud and fog was reported in parts of the south coast this morning and there are patches of higher cloud in the interior. However, a ridge of high pressure covers the lower half of the province and southern regions were generally sunny today. The next Pacific disturbance will bring rain and gales to the north coast this afternoon, and will spread cloud into the central interior tonight and Thursday. The south coast and the southern interior will not be affected by this system on Thursday and will retain mostly sunny skies.

"The Youngest Dealership You Ever Saw With 30 Years Experience"

U.S. Men World's Worse-Dressed

In a book — "It's a Small, Medium and Out-sized World" which will be published here Nov. 10 — the author says:

"With the U.S. assumption of the mantle of international leadership of the West, the basis of their new look in the '50s and '60 became a kind of exaggerated understatement."

He cites black ties, the natural unpadded shoulders of the Ivy League suit, narrow-brimmed hats and black gaberdine coats "hitherto sported only by rabbis."

"With the acceptance of cosmic responsibility, Uncle Sam eschewed his star-spangled manner and began to adopt the dullness of Victorian England. The psychology is clear enough — if you wish to be taken seriously, you must first take yourself seriously."

Taylor, editor of the weekly magazine Tailor and Cutter, says that in only one facet does the American male of today differ from the Victorian Englishman.

"The imperial Briton had no guilt complex," says Taylor. "Therefore he had no basic need to be loved. The Englishman honestly regarded as the world's God-given leader and saw only a reflection of providential approval of his relative riches."

Not so the American male.

"Americans came to power parallel with the universal acknowldegment of the tenets of democracy and their relative riches were a perennial source of embarrassment," claims Taylor. "Perforce, they tried to avoid any vulgar indication of it in front of a penurious world, or, alternatively, to convince themselves and the world that the trappings of success did not really matter."

He sums up:

"Thus they finally emerged from the simple Victorian leadership principle of the father figure, and embarked upon an extension of deliberate deshabile. A kind of 'penance for my privileges' uniform during the 1960s established the Americans as the worst-dressed men in the world."

In this connection Taylor cites:

He says the American "it-doesn't-matter" attitude reveals itself in suits of cotton trousers and jacket in which they travel the world "as the most screwed-up citizens of any paramount power."

A final shot:

"Their disregard of protocol, their accelerated tendency to embrace country sport clothes, and the final banality of their buttoned-down shirts — with the buttons deliberately positioned to buckle the collar into simulated negligence — were all an immense apology for the good fortune of being born in God's own country."

PRODUCER of several wildlife films, Robert W. Davison, will give the second Audubon lecture in the current series at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in Oak Bay High School. His film entitled "The Vanishing Sea" deals with survival of animal life in and around Salt Lake, Utah.

BUS MISHAPS KILL 28 IN TURKEY

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI)— Two bus accidents in eastern Turkey Monday killed 28 persons and injured 32, police reported.

Nineteen were killed and 15 injured when a bus overturned on a mountain road in the Sivas province. Police said the bus apparently was travelling too fast.

In the other accident nine high school students were killed and 17 injured when two buses collided in the Kayseri province.

Divorce Law Change Urged In Bar Brief

OTTAWA (CP)—A brief proposing extensive changes in Canada's divorce laws was presented by Canadian Bar Association executive at a meeting of the Parliamentary divorce committee Tuesday.

A. Gordon Cooper of Halifax, CBA national vice-president, said in presenting the brief that the group had been working towards divorce law reform since 1914.

The brief, based on resolutions approved at the association's annual meeting, recommended that grounds for divorce include sodomy, bestiality, conviction on a charge of rape or wilful refusal to consumate the marriage.

Incurable unsoundness of mind would be considered grounds for divorce, "where the afflicted spouse has been continuously under care and treatement for a period of five years."

Desertion for three years or cruelty—"conduct that creates a danger to life, limb or health or . . . is grossly insulting or intolerable" — also were included as grounds in the two-page brief.

A three-year voluntary separation of a couple immediately prior to their filing for divorce would be satisfactory grounds provided there was "no reasonable likelihood" that the pair would live together again and that a divorce decree "will not prove unduly harsh or oppressive to the defendant spouse."

FLAG MAN WALKS OUT

Mr. Burnham, who recently moved here from Abbotsford, has called an organization meeting for 7:30 p.m., Thursday, in Norway House, 1110 Hillside.

Children Healed Through Card Sales

UNICEF stands for United Nations International Children's Fund. It was once just for emergency relief but now helps feed, clothe and teach children the world over at all times.

A chief source of income for the fund is the sale of UNICEF Christmas cards with pictures done by an international group of artists, — Japanese, Haitian, Lebanese, Swedish, French and others.

A five-card series in this year's UNICEF collection has been done by Eskimo artists on Baffin Island.

The drawings, of caribou, geese, huskies and Eskimo village life, are from stencils which were cut into sealskin by the artists.

Another Canadian painting, entitled Village in the Snow by Group of Seven artist A. Y. Jackson, is featured on another greeting card.

The cards are being sold by the Victoria Committee for UNICEF, at 749 Broughton St., room seven, and are also available through several local high shcool groups.

Red Athletes Here Dec. 8

The team's visit is sponsored by the local branch of the Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

It will join NBC-TV's crew of Huntley-Brinkley, Frank McGee, Robert MacNeil and Sander Vanocur. Knowlton Nash and Warner Troyer will appear on this colorcast to cover election news of particular interest to Canadians.

Stephen

Nash and Troyer will also appear on Newsmagazine and The Public Eye with reaction and analyses of the U.S. troop to the polls. More coverage will follow the late National News from Toronto. The reason CBC is devoting so much important air-time to the election is, not only are they our strongest and nearest neighbors, the results will indicate the American acceptance or rejection of President Johnson's foreign and domestic policies, including Viet Nam.

Oh, yes, those 1,100 metred families sampled by Nielsen for the all-important ratings actually represent 55 million Americans. What they choose to accept or reject means nothing as compared to what the 1,100 watch. Great system, isn't it?

A non-stop Paris-to-New York trip will be the framework for NBC-TV's Nov. 7 documentary, "The Aviation Revolution," which deals in part with the introduction of supersonic transports and jumbojets . . . "Portrait of a Team," an hour documentary about the Baltimore Colts in the closing weeks of last year's National Football League season, airs on ABC-TV Nov. 26.

"The Amazing Randi," an escape artist, performed on Monday's "Today" show on the anniversary of the death of the famed Houdini. He showed how Houdini was able to get out of a strait-jacket while hanging upside down and nearly strangled in the process before the live cameras. Said Hugh Downs: "If this show had been taped you wouldn't have seen this part at all."

ABC-TV had "The Time Tunnel" on its list of new shows destined for the ashcan but changed its mind for some reason and ordered nine additional episodes. The pickup extends the program's total commitment to 26 hour-long segments, with the network holding further options up to 32 episodes. Really, the show is an interesting concept in the field of television adventure and deserves a longer breath of life.

NBC-TV has Lorne Greene booked as host-narrator of the Nov. 25 David Wolper production of "It's a Dog's World." The program will trace the role the canine has played as man's best friend . . . CBS-TV is reported thinking of a weekly one-hour anthology series for next season . . . New Orleans will provide the setting for a new Telephone Hour special to be colorcast on NBC-TV early in '67.

LANGFORD

Fifteen houses in this area, presently occupied by tenants, now being offered for sale. These are nearly all three-bedroom houses. Several are only a year or two old. None have basements, but most have Oil-o-Matic heating, plumbing for automatic washers and wiring for electric range and dryer, payed driveways, carports.
Taxes are low! (In most cases only $25-$60 a year to the owner.) Best of all, only $1,000 down and the balance like rent. No mortgages to raise or commissions to pay. All financing arranged for you. Only one payment to make. These are certainly not mansions, but good comfortable family homes, particularly suited to a young family starting out. Most prices range from $10,400-$12,400. Some older houses are even less.
We will be happy to arrange to show you these houses by appointment.
If you wish to drive past them first we will mail you a list showing the addresses and prices. (Please do not disturb the tenants.) Simply call 478-4446 or 478-4116 and leave your name and address. No one will call on you unless requested.

Labor Delegates Parade To Protest Injunctions

BOMB SCARE AT ESQUIMALT HIGH SCHOOL

Principal Clive Kelly said a "youthful caller" phoned the school office at 12:45 to say a bomb was planted in a locker and would explode during the afternoon.

10 Die In Wall Of Fire

SYLMAR, Calif. (AP)—A blast of flames sweeping up a steep hillside took the lives of 10 firefighters in a crew of 25 battling one of four brush fires in Angeles National Forest.

The men were veterans who had specialized in fighting the hottest of forest fires in Montana, Idaho, California and Oregon.

But the wind behind them kicked up before they could escape.

"It's something every firefighter thinks about—a sudden gust of wind," said Don Porter, U.S. forest service spokesman, in reporting the death toll of a blaze that swept 2,100 acres.

Names of the dead were withheld pending notification of next of kin. Nine of the 15 survivors in the crew were in critical condition at hospital.

Fire officials said the fire was 90 per cent contained early today.

The death toll was one of the worst. In 1956, a fire in the Inaja Forest above San Diego took a similar number of lives. In 1933, 29 died in a brush fire in Griffith Park, Los Angeles.

POWER LINE BLAMED

The inferno of flame coursing through Pacoima Canyon in the Angeles Crest fire was touched off by a downed power line. Hot blasts of dry desert air—a storm known locally as the Santa Ana—poured over the mountains, driving temperatures as high as 101 degrees, a record for November. Gusts reached 60 miles an hour.

No structures were damaged, but early in the day a wall of flames was halted at Olive View Hospital, where most of 600 tubercular patients were

Pope Seeks Viet Truce For Yule

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul is working for a new Christmas truce in Viet Nam with a halting of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam as a first major step, a high Vatican source said today.

The disclosure was made after the pontiff received a special briefing on the Manila conference from U.S. presidential envoy W. Averell Harriman and issued an impassioned plea for an end to wars. He begged world statesmen to "quench pride and hatred, lower their weapons and put an end to oppression and snares."

The sources said Pope Paul hoped both the suspension of bombings and the holiday truce could begin well before Christmas.

He was instrumental in arranging last year's brief Christmas truce in Viet Nam and has dwelt repeatedly in recent addresses on the need for negotiations to end the conflict.

Man Killed by 'Copter Tail Rotor

HIGH LEVEL, Alta. (CP) — A man who had just stepped from a helicopter at the High Level, Alta., airport, was killed today when he walked into the spinning tail rotor.

RCMP said he was a passenger on board a Hughes 204 turbo helicopter owned by Bullock Wing & Rotors, of Calgary.

Bank Bandit Jailed for 5 Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bank bandit Chat John Wood was sentenced today to five years in prison.

Wood, 25, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty before Magistrate Lorne Jackson last week to robbing a Bank of Nova Scotia branch of $1,250 on August 26.

Mother Kills 5 Children With Axe

MILLINGEN, Netherlands (AP) — Police reported a 35-year-old mother killed her five children with an axe today and an hour later called a doctor and police.

Police said that they assumed Mrs. W. D. Kersten, whose husband is working in South Africa, had financial worries about the future of her children. Neighbors said Mrs. Kersten was depressed because no money was coming from her husband.

U.S. Powdered Milk Contaminated

WASHINGTON (UPI)—One of the leading United States powdered milk products is being pulled off grocery shelves because of discovery of an infectious salmonella bacteria in samples of the product, the government announced today.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said Borden Food Co. agreed to recall all packages of Starlac instant non-fat dry milk. (The Canadian product is not affected.)

Brush Fire Kills Three Marines

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Three marines died and another was burned critically today while fighting a stubborn brush fire on the big Camp Pendleton marine base.

Marine spokesmen said the marines were trapped at the top of a ridge when fire flashed back over them.

'Most Historic Journey of Life'

By JACK BROOKS
Special to the Times

"Alaska's future lies between the mainland in the east and Asia in the west," he said.

In another speech he said: "You are on the bridge of a new partnership; you on the coast are on the rim of a new era as the Pacific prospers and grows, Alaska—and Portland, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles and scores of other American cities will prosper too."

"It has been the most rewarding, the most thrilling, the most encouraging journey of my life. I believe it may also have been the most important and the most historic."

Johnson flew to Anchorage non-stop from Seoul, the South Korean capital. After his speech-making in Alaska, he took off on another non-stop flight to Washington, where his arrival at Dulles International Airport at 8 p.m. EST (5 p.m. PST) will be televised live.

Nuclear Appeal Backed at UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations General Assembly's main political committee gave overwhelming approval today to a U.S.-Soviet appeal to all countries to refrain from any action that might help the spread of nuclear weapons.

Climaxing nearly two weeks of debate, the 121-country committee passed the East-West resolution by a vote of 100 to 1 with Cuba abstaining. Only Albania voted against the resolution.

The resolution, initiated by the Soviet Union with U.S. support, was introduced as a stop-gap measure until an accord can be reached on a treaty banning the spread of nuclear weapons.

Just What's Behind The Big Cover-Up?

By GLEN ALLEN

The Loch Ness Monster?

A gift from Jayne Mansfield?

Whatever it is, the thing at the Johnson Street entrance of the new federal building at Johnson and Vancouver is perplexing to everyone but the federal department of public works.

Covered up like original sin itself with black plastic sheeting and wire binding, the thing is identified only by a tag with a Vancouver address.

When it was inadvertently unveiled some time ago another tag saying "send to Capital Iron and Metals" was found on the thing's reverse face. It was thought to be a joke.

"I'm sorry, you aren't allowed to see it," said a construction foreman Tuesday.

"No, I'm afraid not," said the job superintendent, when asked if a photograph could be taken.

Said a spokesman for the department's district architect's office in Vancouver: "I know you must be getting curious over there but we can't let you see it without permission from Ottawa."

Ottawa remains regally silent.

But local intelligence has learned this much:

It is made of ¼-inch steel plate.

It is heavy.

Its finish will be a rusted black.

It will be floodlit.

It is thought to be expensive.

Those who have seen it have variously thought it to be beautiful, ugly, or something in between.

"I talked to the sculptor when we were putting it in," said one workman on the job.

"He didn't even seem to know what it was."

Another workman who was party to the monument's installation said it looked to him like "a bent-over taxpayer."

Tory MP in Left Field On 'Defence Policy' Paper

OTTAWA (CP)—In the midst of a Commons attack on government defence policy, the Conservatives Tuesday became embroiled in an intramural argument about their own defence policy.

Michael Forrestall, 34-year-old Conservative MP for Halifax, distributed to reporters in mimeographed form of what he said was a draft of a party defence policy.

He said the original paper had been prepared more than a year ago at the request of some Conservatives by retired Rear-Admiral Jeffry Brock.

He added that it had been redrafted by a committee including Douglas Harkness and Gordon Churchill, both former Conservative defence ministers, Terry Nugent, Conservative MP for Edmonton Strathcona, and himself.

Mr. Harkness, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Nugent in separate interviews all disclaimed any part in redrafting the paper.

Mr. Forrestall said the paper isn't Conservative party policy and the next move would be to bring it before the Conservatives' parliamentary caucus.

Mr. Churchill said policy resolutions aren't dealt with in the caucus.

Gather for Hour Outside Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—About 400 delegates to the British Columbia Federation of Labor convention here paraded for an hour at the court house today, protesting the use of injunctions in labor disputes and the jailing of four labor leaders.

John McNevin, assistant secretary of the federation, said the demonstration was orderly, but feelings were running high.

"Four of our colleagues are in jail," he said. "You can understand why some of the delegates are emotional."

The four—Paddy Neale, secretary of the Vancouver and District Labor Council, Tom Clarke, vice-president of the Vancouver local of the International Woodworkers of America, Jeffrey Power, president of the Marine Workers Union and Art O'Keeffe, former business agent for the Electrical Workers — were jailed for terms ranging from three to six months for contempt of court arising from demonstrations last spring at the suburban Burnaby plant of the Lenkurt Electric Co.

Further demonstrations have been planned for Thursday by the Marine Workers. Most convention delegates voted not to demonstrate Thursday, the day of the four labor leaders' appeal, because it could be construed as an attempt to pressure appeal court judges.

Federation officers and the convention's resolutions committee opposed the move, and charges and counter-charges followed.

Bill Stewart, secretary of the Marine Workers, said no matter what decision the convention reached, his union will march on the courthouse Thursday.

Union Chiefs' Feud Goes To Top Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—A feud between two top labor leaders in British Columbia is headed for the B.C. Supreme Court.

DEEP SORES

Mr. Thompson said he would be "delighted" to appear in court and repeat the remarks which are the subject of the action.

Mr. Lawson's writ claims damages from Mr. Thompson over statements alleged to have been made at a labor council meeting Sept. 20.

Mr. Thompson said: "It is regrettable in my opinion in the labor movement that we should get involved in these affairs. However, there is no use denying that in the labor movement there are deep sores that at times fester and run like a rotten sewer."

The Teamsters are not affiliated with organized labor groups in B.C., and there has been a running feud between Mr. Lawson and other labor leaders.

KOREA ZONE

Six U.S. Troops Die in Ambush

SEOUL (CP) — North Korean troops ambushed and killed six American soldiers and one South Korean below the armistice line before dawn today while President and Mrs. Johnson slept 30 miles away.

The incident was the gravest involving Americans since the Korean War ended in 1953. It occurred eight hours before Johnson left South Korea for the United States.

There was one survivor, an American, from the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division patrol. Wounded by a grenade but reported in good condition, he said the attackers wore North Korean army uniforms.

The Communists escaped and there was no indication that any were wounded.

The United Nations Command announced that the eight-man patrol was jumped by the Communists about 800 yards south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

Since the armistice there have been sporadic clashes between United Nations and North Korean patrols—each side blaming the other for intruding into their territory. South Korean security forces also report gun battles with North Korean agents trying to slip across the lines into the south.

GUARD HEAVY

Under the armistice terms the two sides are separated by a 4,000-metre-wide buffer zone, down the centre of which runs the demarcation line. Neither side is permitted to cross this.

The ambush occurred east of Libby bridge, one of two spanning the Imjin River in the American sector of the front and close to Panmunjom where the military armistice commission meets in the demilitarized zone.

The UN command said the attack occurred at 3:15 a.m. President Johnson gave no indication that he was aware of it when he left Kimpo airfield 15 miles away. The ambush was not announced until five hours after the president took off.

FIND CASINGS

The UN Command announcement said:

"Expended shell casings in the area from which the ambush was launched were Communist-made.

The UN command demanded an immediate meeting of the military armistice commission to take up the ambush and "other serious violations of the armistice agreement."

The armistice commission has its headquarters at Panmunjom where the original armistice was negotiated. There UN and Communist buildings stand side by side and armed guards from both sides march up and down past each other — occasionally muttering insults.

U.S. troops are responsible for 12½ miles of the 151-mile long frontier. Their zone of responsibility is north of the wide Imjin River—a strange silent land where the atmosphere of combat readiness is intensified by the absence of civilian communities.

President Johnson visited the area Monday.

A recent increase in North Korean attacks along the armistice line led some observers in Seoul to think the Communists were trying to apply pressure on the South Koreans to resist American requests for more troops in South Viet Nam. South Korea now has approximately 45,000 troops fighting alongside U.S. forces there.

PROBE OF RING SHIFTS TO BRITAIN

Real Estate Agent Charged as Spy

LONDON (CP) — A real estate agent was arrested today in the continuing investigation of a trans-Atlantic spy ring and charged with violation of Britain's Official Secrets Act.

The arrests followed by three days the seizure of a U.S. Air Force sergeant who was picked up by FBI agents in Los Angeles and accused of conspiring to pass defence secrets to the Russians.

William Cevil Nulvena, 47, was arrested in an early morning raid on a house at Westcliff-on-Sea, a resort town 40 miles east of London.

Mulvena was charged with offences under two separate sections of the Official Secrets Act and also faced a criminal charge, not yet specified.

The two charges against Mulvena were brought under the Official Secrets Acts of 1911 and 1920.

They relate to the collection, recording, or communications of codes, plans, or document which could be of use to an enemy, and allowing other persons to have official codes or documents issued for the person himself.

Westcliff, near the point where the Thames Estuary meets the North Sea, is the fashionable residential area of Southend, nearest major holiday resort to the capital.

Mulvena, charged at the Southend magistrates' court, was denied bail because he has dual British and French nationality.

He was charged with obtaining for a purpose endangering the national safety, a British passport issued for the use of John Henry de Lancy Forman; having a British passport without lawful authority; and making a statement which he knew to be untrue to procure a British passport for himself or somebody else.

Conviction could bring a jail sentence of up to 18 years.

DIEFENBAKER
. . . here after convention

BIG JOHN TO FISH AND TALK

Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker will come here for a week's fishing, after the party's national convention in Ottawa Nov. 14-16 decides his fate.

He also will make at least one speech, at noon Nov. 28 at the University of Victoria, sponsored by the students' political science forum.

Mr. Diefenbaker will fish for salmon here and steelhead trout up-Island said Russell Simpson, vice-president of the B.C. Conservative party. Mr. Simpson and former Tory candidate Eric Charman will be Mr. Diefenbaker's hosts.

Syrians Demand 'Liberation War'

DAMASCUS, SYRIA (UPI) — Thousands of chanting, sign-carrying Syrians marched through the ancient streets of Damascus today demanding "liberation" of Palestine from Jewish rule.

Described by Damascus radio as the largest in the city's history, the demonstration was sponsored by Syria's ruling Arab Socialist Baath party marking the 49th anniversary of the Balfour declaration promising to make Palestine a Jewish national homeland.

Eyewitnesses said about 500,000 people took part in what Damascus radio termed "a chain of people with no beginning and no end."

The demonstrators, including workers, peasants, teachers and students, carried posters calling for a "popular war of liberation" against Israel. They chanted slogans condemning the United States, Britain, Saudi Arabia and Jordan.

Addressing the marchers from the balcony of the government guest house, President Dr. Noureddin Atassi warned the United States that if it attempted to use the U.S. Sixth Fleet against Arab interests, "the fish in our seas will feed on rotting imperialist corpses."

The Sixth Fleet is currently visiting Beirut, Lebanon.

evacuated. Also evacuated were 450 patients of a veterans administration hospital in the same area.

The men who died were backed up against a rocky cliff, in the process of cutting a line around a hot spot. One of the survivors said the flames "made a flash run up the hill."

The other men were literally covered by a sheet or flame. Some were suffocated as they sought to rescue their buddies, the forest service said.

'Tax U.S. Firms'

Murder Jury Split

VANCOUVER (CP)—The non-capital murder trial of Edward Dowe and Arlie Durling ended Tuesday after the jury failed to reach agreement after eight hours deliberation. The two men were remanded in custody for a retrial. They were charged with the March 17 beating death of William Bohart, whose body was found in Stanley Park.

The draft policy paper said, among other things, that Canada's armed forces don't need nuclear arms now or in the foreseeable future.

"Naturally, I disagree with that," Mr. Harkness said.

He resigned from the Diefenbaker cabinet Feb. 3, 1963, because the then government wouldn't accept nuclear weapons from the United States.

Conservative party sources said Admiral Brock was asked to prepare the paper more than a year ago with the idea that it might contain some useful ammunition for the 1965 election campaign.

They added that nothing useful could be found in it and that the paper was ditched until Mr. Forrestall revived it.

The paper, which Mr. Forrestall said had gone through three drafts, is an anathema to the Conservative party on at least one ground.

It says Canada too frequently proffers military aid to the United Nations and repeatedly urges establishment of a UN police force. It describes this as "singularly inept."

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker when in office supported UN peacekeeping operations as strongly as the Liberals have. He obtained specific and unanimous parliamentary approval for sending a Canadian contingent to the Congo for UN duty in 1960.

Admiral Brock commanded the Canadian naval flotilla which was part of Canada's contribution to the UN effort in Korea in 1950-53.

Spy Probe Press Leak Under Study

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — A government inquiry is now underway to determine how word of the security probe in the latest espionage case was "leaked" to the press, it was learned today.

The investigation by the RCMP was being carried out in secrecy to learn how government maps had been made available to foreign agents. The fact that the RCMP were making the inquiry was reported in the press Tuesday.

Now the government has launched another investigation, this time to try and find out how the press got wind of the secret RCMP probe.

ADMINISTRATIVE

"We hope to discover how it was the information got out to the press and public before we (privy council office) were made aware of it," said one official.

Meantime there is some concern that the latest espionage inquiry may be a bit embarrassing at this time when External Affairs Minister Paul Martin is leaving Friday for Poland and Russia.

While Russia has not been officially identified as the country involved, it is taken for granted here, that it is the "foreign power" that was obtaining maps and charts.

While government officials are not angry over the press leak they are annoyed. They point out that in more serious circumstances such "leaks" to the press of security probes could be dangerous.

'Someone Else Killed Wife Of Doctor'

CLEVELAND (UPI)—The defence in the Sheppard murder retrial said Tuesday it would prove Dr. Samuel Sheppard innocent of murdering his wife and would give the jury a "pretty good idea who killed her"—someone "who had a key to the house and had had one for some time."

Chief defence counsel F. Lee Bailey, in an opening statement, told a jury of seven men and five women that it was "no strange intruder" who killed Marilyn Sheppard 12 years ago.

"Someone else was in that house with Sam Sheppard, some adult human being who killed Marilyn Sheppard for a reason which may not be apparent to you now," Bailey said.

He said the defence would prove that the murder weapon was wielded by someone using the left hand — a person whose "physical strength was compatible with that of a woman."

He said the murder weapon was 12 inches long, "possibly a flashlight or something like that."

INFORMATION PROGRAM LAUNCHED

Teachers Tell 'Crisis' Story

Greater Victoria Teachers' Association is launching a public information program on the "Crisis in the Schools."

The teachers, currently involved in contract bargaining with the school board, plan a varied approach to parents and ratepayers.

They will issue brochures, provide luncheon speakers and speakers to PTAs and other community groups. A series of newspaper advertisements is planned.

In addition, the teachers hope to establish a liaison committee with the school board to explore differences between teachers and trustees and look for areas of co-operation.

PARTNERS

"There is no point in teachers and trustees arguing with one another. We are partners in education and we should be acting as partners," said Bob Travis, chairman of the association's public relations committee.

Mr. Travis said teachers are particularly concerned about the criticism levelled at the Victoria education system in the Hartrick-Downey report.

NOT ALL BAD

He said one of the unfortunate outcomes of the report is that it has left the impression there is nothing good about the system when, in actual fact, some areas of the system are excellent.

"Under the terms of reference of the report the authors were obliged to dwell on the shortcomings in the system and not talk about the good things," he said.

Nevertheless, Mr. Travis added, the report pointed out some serious shortcomings and the teachers believe they should comment on some of these.

CONCERNED

"Greater Victoria teachers are a responsible group who are greatly concerned about the educational standards in the community," he said.

"Like any other group we are also concerned about the advancement of our own salaries in relation to advances that others are receiving.

"We firmly believe that only by upgrading the economic conditions in the profession can we attract people who can maintain educational standards that all parents desire for their children."

Mr. Travis said teachers are continually engaged in in-service training, in their own time, to upgrade their own educational qualifications and keep abreast of new developments in education.

"We are just as concerned about class size, about classroom facilities and many other aspects of education as we are about salaries," he said.

Judge Rules Man Drunk, Goes Free

VANCOUVER (CP)—A charge of bank robbery against a Vancouver man was dismissed Tuesday when the judge ruled the man was too drunk to know what he was doing.

Eric Eugene Spicer, 27, was charged with robbing a bank of Montreal branch of $3,050.

James Anderson, a customer in the bank at the time of the robbery, said he realized something was wrong when he saw Spicer reaching for a bundle of bills from a teller. He grabbed Spicer and employees locked him in the bank vault until police arrived.

Spicer admitted drinking for seven hours before enering the bank and city analyst Edwin Fennell testified the amount of alcohol in Spicer's blood was enough to knock a normal person off his feet.

"I would have arrested him for being drunk in a public place if I had seen him on the street," said one arresting policeman.

Several Thousand Switch To B.C. Medical Plan

Several thousand British Columbians insured under Medical Services Incorporated's open medical plans have apparently taken the advice of MSI officials and switched to the lower cost B.C. Medical Plan.

Affected are 7,000 of MSI's nearly 90,000 clients. Of these 4,000 are subscribers to the open plans which provide coverage to anyone who applies, regardless of age or medical condition. The remaining 3,000 are provided free coverage.

MSI officials Oct. 14 informed its open plan clients that although the plan had been operated at loss since its inception the cost of such unselective coverage had forced the subscription fee about the fee level of similar coverage under the government-subsidized B.C. Medical Plan. A scheduled 10 per cent increase in doctors fees effective Jan. 1 was cited as a major factor in the cost push.

ENDS NOV. 30

The open plans are to be discontinued Nov. 30. Open plan clients were urged to transfer to the B.C. Medical Plan before Oct. 30 in order to obtain coverage under the B.C.M.P. beginning Dec. 1.

B.C. Medical Plan manager Alan Brown reported today that applications from new subscribers "are up substantially, by several thousand" for the month of October.

He added the increase is well under 7,000 indicating some MSI clients are late in switching.

Ordinarily these persons would be without medical coverage when the MSI plans a shut down since applications must have been received before Nov. 1 for coverage beginning in December.

Special arrangements have however been made to permit those who transfer late to receive B.C. Medical Plan coverage as soon as the MSI plans lapse.

The B.C. Medical Plan at present offers coverage to 316,000 of whom about 145,000 are subscribers.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Low cloud and fog was reported in parts of the south coast this morning and there are patches of higher cloud in the interior. However, a ridge of high pressure covers the lower half of the province and southern regions were generally sunny today. The next Pacific disturbance will bring rain and gales to the north coast this afternoon, and will spread cloud into the central interior tonight and Thursday. The south coast and the southern interior will not be affected by this system on Thursday and will retain mostly sunny skies.

Land Deal Inquiry Date Set

A public inquiry into the activities of members of the Saanich assessment department is scheduled to start Wednesday, Nov. 16.

The inquiry will be conducted by James Baird, deputy inspector of municipalities in the department.

Mr. Brown said the form of the inquiry is similar to that of a court.

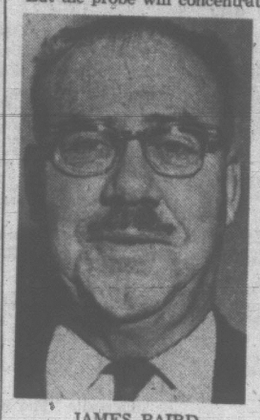

When it is completed, Mr. Baird will make a report and recommendations on what should be done.

If the cabinet approves, then the recommendations are binding.

An order-in-council instructed Mr. Baird to determine whether any municipal employee has used his position "for private advantage with respect to any real estate transaction within the municipality."

But the probe will concentrate

JAMES BAIRD

on the municipal assessment department to find out whether any former or present employee has dealt privately in real estate or been connected with a company dealing in real estate.

Mr. Baird is to determine, also, whether any of them "has used information and knowledge gained in the pursuit of his official duties with respect to any real estate transaction of any company in which he holds or has held shares or is or has been a director or officer."

Saanich council earlier issued a statement which said members of the assessment department incorporated a company called Royal Oak Estates Limited which lists as its objects the purchase and sale of stocks and securities and of real and personal property.

Saanich also said the company bought and sold two lots in "non-strategic" parts of the municipality.

Council said it believes no wrongdoing was intended but an inquiry was advisable in the interests of Saanich residents and the employees concerned.

Forester Elected By Gardeners

He is an expert flower grower and excells in Michaelmas daisies—a difficult bloom to grow to perfection.

Fred Blakeney, well-known rose hybridizer, presented the society with a trophy to be awarded to the member who grows the best Miss Canada Rose. He developed the bloom for Canada's centennial year.

Other officers elected were: Harry Parker, vice-president, and P. C. Raven, secretary-treasurer.

Directors elected for a two-year term: Doris Page, Mrs. R. S. Bevan, Emily Sartain, W. T. Roper and William Shepley. One-year term: Frank Steggles.

Mrs. Ena McCabe and Maj. George A. Wiggan, who retired as president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, each were presented with a silver paper cutter for long and outstanding service.

Trollers Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific Trollers' Association Tuesday criticized the federal fisheries department for allowing unselective seine herring fishing off-shore on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The trollers group said harm is being done to both the herring fishery and to young salmon by the use of deep seines and lights.

Lecture Planned

GANGES— Mountaineer, Mrs. Don Munday, will give an illustrated lecture on the Coast Range, Friday at 8 p.m. in the Fulford Community Hall, Salt Spring Island.

DISCUSS HOSPITALS

All Area Councils Invited to Meeting

A mass meeting of all Greater Victoria municipal councils will be held Nov. 14 to discuss Reeve Alan Cox's stop-gap solution to hospital financing.

The meeting, planned without fanfare almost two weeks ago, is scheduled to be held in Holyrood House at 6 p.m. will be preceded by a diner for all elected officials.

Reeve Cox revealed his plan to earmark an anticipated rate increase in provincial per capita grants in 1967 for hospital purposes Tuesday afternoon to the Intermunicipal Committee.

This year the per capita grant rate increased $4, a similar increase to the 1965 boost. When announcing the per capita increase in the legislature this year Premier W. A. C. Bennett indicated that the municipalities could expect another increase next year.

He did not, however, state whether the increase would be in the rate or the normal increase derived from population growth.

The grant increase announced last spring brought an additional $220,000 to city coffers. A similar increase next year would net the city approximately a quarter of a million dollars. The Saanich increase this year amounted to $200,000; Oak Bay $67,000 and Esquimalt $48,000.

Reeve Cox's proposal is that any rate increase in 1967 be set aside by all municipalities for hospital purposes and that the same amount be set aside for the next five years.

"By that time the provincial government should be in a position to accept its responsibilities," he said.

"We have to do something," he said. "If five years from now the situation has not changed we can simply tell the provincial government we are finished."

In making his proposal Reeve Cox said his council did "not consider the per capita grant to be largess distributed by the provincial government, but a poor substitute for the share of the revenues which we as municipalites enjoyed as our right prior to 1954."

He added that if accepted his proposal would "tie our local responsibility for hospitals to the provincial government's responsibility to share equitably its burgeoning revenues with our level of government."

The committee, in addition to giving tentative blessings to the Cox formula, also agreed to share the costs of an independent survey on hospital construction needs.

The firm of Agnew, Peckham and Company of Toronto has been suggested as the from most logical to do the job.

No price has yet been fixed for the survey but it is estimated that $50,000 will be a reasonable figure. The bill would be shared on an intermunicipal basis.

Erhard Offers to Quit If New Gov't Formed

BONN (AP) — West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard told his party today that he will resign if necessary. Some leaders of the party, the Christian Democrats, were understood to be urging him to quit.

Erhard, 69, told a closed-door meeting of party leaders that he would not stand in the way of formation of a new government. His statement was given to reporters by Will Rasner, the party's floor manager in the Bundestag (lower house of parliament).

Earlier today, an informed source said Erhard had agreed to resign if he could participate fully in selection of his successor.

HOME GARDEN

Green, Colorful Screen

By JACK BEASTALL

Many home gardeners are looking for an evergreen shrub which will make a screen for the garbage can or compost heap, be attractive all the year, with a bonus of flowers if possible.

No doubt, such a plant would be welcomed, and strange as it may seem, such a plant is readily available for local gardens.

Jack

It is well known to most gardeners, frequently seen, and possibly ignored because it could almost be termed commonplace.

On the other hand, the older English gardening books may have stressed too greatly its value as a greenhouse plant, and American gardening books have not helped its cause by listing it as hardy outdoors in only the southern portion of the United States.

As far as hardiness in our winters is concerned, it must be noted that several horticultural forms are in circulation, some of which appeared on the local market a few years ago and succumbed (or were severely damaged) in the seven-degree temperature of December, 1964.

The type plant seems to be the form grown here for the past 30 years or more. The growth habit is compact, to some 10 feet or more if not used freely in the home for winter decoration.

The dark green leaves are considerably smaller than the tender forms which have a more open, loose habit, and the coral-colored buds are present now, and will open to heads of pinkish-white flowers during winter mild spells with the full flush of blossom in March and April.

Yes, you are right in your guess. It is the Laurustinus or Viburnum tinus, a plant we should all want to have if it had just been discovered and was being offered at an exhorbitant price coupled with high pressured advertising.

Even without these sales promotions, it is still the best screen, a good hedge plant, and a wonder specimen shrub for a difficult-to-fill corner or the centre of a lawn.

Saanich Employees To Work Dec. 27

Saanich civic employees may be the only government workers on duty December 27 and January 2.

The Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday tried to establish uniform holiday periods over the Christmas season. But Reeve Hugh Curtis shuddered at the thought of a four-day shutdown at Christmas.

The provincial government has already announced that the two days in question will be regarded as holidays.

"I think it is going too far to turn the government buildings into a graveyard for four or five days," he said. "I am opposed to handing out extra days off just because Christmas Day falls on a Sunday."

Reeve Ray Bryant, Esquimalt, pointed out the municipalities didn't have much choice in the matter. "It's a holiday and that's it," he said.

Gas Light For Mayor's Residence?

"I think it would be wonderful if we did it here," he said. "A gas lamp similar to the one we have on the Causeway placed outside the mayor's residence, whoever the mayor may be, would be a wonderful tourist attraction."

Parks administrator Herbert Warren said he hadn't noticed any special lamps during his trip to Britain.

"But I did see a Rolls Royce parked in front of the mayor's house in one city I visited," he said.

"Much more practical," quipped Ald. Hugh Stephen.

Mayor Toone asked Ald. Baird to bring in a full report on costs and maintenance.

Money Raised To Assist Welsh Village

DUNCAN—The hat was passed around at a recent meeting of Duncan United Church's AOTS Club and $41 was raised for the Aberfan relief fund.

Inquiry showed no local agency had been set up for collecting funds.

Now Duncan AOTS has taken on the job of gathering Cowichan contributions for relief work among survivors of the Welsh mining disaster.
